End of the Hurricane? Less Poisonous Whisky. A Robot Telephone.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

FROM a wild gallop, your Wall Street friends settled down to a gentle trot yesterday, buying and selling in a day only 3,521,400 shares of stock, as against more than 7,000,000 Thursday and 16,000,000 a few days ago.

THERE was less "distress selling," which means the kind that a man does because he can't help himself.

Some big men that occasionally know something believe that the hurricane is over.

But many citizens have learned an expensive lesson.

And a majority of them will pay the same price for other lessons later.

SENATOR CARTER GLASS, who has a horror of anything that is not as it ought to be, wants the Federal Reserve to punish stock gambling.

While waiting for that, it should comfort the Senate to know that stock gambling has punished its devotees more energetically than any Federal Reserve could do.

COMMISSIONER DORAN, in charge of prohibition, says "rum poison" will do less harm this Christmas.

Bootleggers, it seems, make their own alcohol, not using so much "denatured" alcohol, in which the government has put poison to keep men from drinking it, the penalty for drinking, as for murder, being death.

IT IS pleasing to know that fewer people will be poisoned by whisky specially prepared by government order. On the other hand, the announcement that whisky is now less poisonous will not help temperance.

Those that could not be kept from drinking by common sense and self-respect could in some instances be frightened by the statement: "Bootleggers' rum is poisonous."

SOME "Robot" salesmen sell merchandise. Another Robot, at a distance, answers questions, gives information as to the amount of water in a reservoir, etc.

An airplane recently traveled from Cleveland to Washington, D. C., a Robot gyrascope in charge of the controls until the moment of landing.

NOW Mr. Gifford, of the big telephone company, has a telephone that calls out in plain English the numbers dialed. The dial telephone that you have learned to operate can be arranged to tell a central operator what number you want in a voice as clear as that of any phonograph.

It takes a good imagination to suggest something that men can NOT do.

ONE foolish statement, born of Wall Street's hurricane now subsiding, predicts that because some stocks have dropped, the United States will stop buying automobiles.

This country needs at least 5,000,000 new automobiles a year and will buy them.

Twenty-five million automobiles are running in the United States now. Thirty million will be running before long.

THE drop in stock values will interfere temporarily with the sale of expensive diamond and pearl necklaces, and a few sable coats may sell at a bargain.

But the automobile, with its price, whether it be $7,000 or $700, will be in demand as much as ever.

THANKS to the Labor government, the people of India are to have some sort of independence, a "dominion status" or something of that kind.

It would seem dangerous for a nation of 40,000,000 to give any sort of ruling power to 300,000,000 Asiatics.

However, the wise British can be trusted to make the voting or other self-governing powers of the Hindus as unreal as the phantom ruling powers of the rajahs.

TEN young Americans learn to play pool for one that learns a trade, which is bad. To educate the hands is to educate the brain.

MR. KNUDSEN, president of Chevrolet, writes from the steamship Bremen, "some time ago you observed that few native-born Americans learn a trade. I wonder if you realize what useful service you can render American industry by emphasizing often the importance and advantage of teaching young people a trade. Though they may never use it with their hands, it will develop their brains."

SOME Americans think a trade is not good enough for their boys. They say, "I want my boy to seem to be somebody."

Mr. Knudsen, a good American, but not native born, learned a trade, worked at it many years. That is why he is somebody.

Henry Ford selected him to manage his production. General Motors took him from Ford, to manage Chevrolet production.

And Knudsen has millions of dollars, plus an interesting job; a trade, plus brains, did that for him.

BYRD COUSIN AND WIFE REUNITED

Search of Two Continents For Social Leader's Son After Parting Ends Here

A comely, bobbed-haired brunet who had followed him from Italy walked into the arms of her husband in the William Penn Hotel early today.

He was Peter Upton Muir, 31, son of a New York society leader. She was Mrs. Victoria Muir, Swiss-French wife of the young man who is a cousin of Commander Richard E. Byrd.

Muir has been working in Pittsburgh as a newspaper reporter. His wife has been searching frantically for him, first in Europe, then in the states.

DESERTED ON RIVIERA

He deserted her, penniless, in their quiet cottage on the Italian Riviera because his family objected to her, she had charged, and she threatened to sue his mother, the socially-elect Mrs. Cary Talbot Hutchison, for a half-million dollars for alienation.

Today all was changed. Husband and wife stood side by side in her room in the William Penn.

"We are to be happy again," she said, and young Muir nodded assent.

HUNT APARTMENT

"Today," she added, "we will go apartment hunting," and the husband agreed.

This was their first meeting since the French-Swiss girl was left alone on the Riviera.

She had come to Pittsburgh from New York, where, she complained, her husband's rich family had failed to help her. She was worried

ROBBERS' RUM HUNT FUTILE

Three masked robbers, each carrying two revolvers, early today forced entrance to the W. J. Dillner Transfer and Storage Company warehouse at 601 Melwood street, and while one held William E. Dillner, 71, of 4025 Ludwin street, at bay, the others searched the upper floor.

A few minutes later they returned to the ground floor and told Dillner, father of the owner, that they were looking for whisky. After threatening him if he spread an alarm, the trio departed. A search of the building later revealed that nothing had been stolen.

Bootleggers, Agents Both Wait Rum Boat

CHICAGO, Nov. 9.—(INS.)—Two reception committees, one composed of coast guards and the other of anxious bootleggers, awaited the arrival of the 35-foot cruiser Rex here today.

Carrying the first consignment of holiday cheer for Chicago, the Rex was reported to have left Canada yesterday loaded to the decks with a choice assortment of liquors.

Russian Blonde Decoy Held In American's Kidnaping

LONDON, Nov. 9.—(INS.)—Charged with decoying Aaron Brenner, New York fur merchant, into the hands of kidnapers who are holding him for half a million dollars ransom, a beautiful Russian woman has been arrested at Tientsin, China, dispatches to the evening newspapers declared today.

The kidnaped man's brother, the dispatches continued, has offered $50,000 for his release.

A second letter received today from Brenner said, "For God's sake pay out this ransom."

Shortly afterward, telephonic communication which Brenner's brother had been maintaining intermittently with those who purported to be his abductors ceased.

It was believed the kidnapers had become alarmed and were desperate.

Police and American consular authorities have examined the Russian blonde who had been in Brenner's company prior to his disappearance thoroughly, but said she had thrown no light on the identity or whereabouts of the kidnapers.

Police held to their belief the abductors were a band of Causasians from Harbin, Manchuria. Brenner's first letter yesterday, addressed to his brother, said he had been warned he would be killed immediately if information of his plight was given to the police or newspapers.

The abduction occurred Thursday afternoon.

SHANGHAI, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—The Rev. Ulrich Kreutzen, of Calumet, Mich., a Franciscan missionary stationed at Wuchang, Hupeh province, today was taken captive by bandits at Weiyuenkow, 75 miles southeast of Wuchang, and held for a ransom of $10,000 Mexican, which his mission was asked to pay.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 9.—(INS.)—Mrs. Alexander Pantages today began a 10-year period of probation as result of her conviction for manslaughter following an automobile crash which resulted in the death of Jura Rokumoto, a Japanese.

During this time she must not take a drink of intoxicating liquor or drive an automobile.

The wife of the multi-millionaire theatrical promotor escaped imprisonment late yesterday when sentence was passed by Judge Carlos S. Hardy. Besides the probation order, a judgment of $78,500 damages was imposed on Mrs. Pantages, the sum to go to the Rokumoto family.

Pale and drawn, Mrs. Pantages was brought into the courtroom on a wheel chair to hear sentence passed. Two nurses attempted to comfort her as she broke into tears

Senator McCrossin Dies in Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 9.—(INS.)—State Senator Lawrence E. McCrossin, popular Democratic leader of the first legislative district here, died today in Jefferson Hospital of complications following an operation. He was 39.

The popular South Philadelphian attained much recognition a year ago by his defeat of Mrs. Flora Vare, relative of Senator-elect William S. Vare, in the seemingly solid Republican district and center of the Vare stronghold in South Philadelphia. He served as the district's representative in the State Senate during the last session of the State Assembly.

FEAR MISSING OHIO CHEMIST WAS SLAIN

Burned Auto and Discovery Of Body Along Tracks Point To Foul Play, Police Say

International News Service.

POTTSTOWN, Pa., Nov. 9.—New impetus was given today to the investigation into the mystery surrounding the strange disappearance of Dr. Ernest Watzl, Cleveland chemist, and the discovery of his charred auto on a lonely road near here, with the receipt of two telephone calls during the night by Chief of Police Jesse Neiman, of Royersford, suggesting that the body of an unidentified man found along the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks near Conshohocken last Tuesday may be that of the missing Ohio man.

The body lies in the Philadelphia County morgue, and an examination will be made today to discover whether it checks with the description of the missing physician.

The mystery surrounding the disappearance of the Cleveland man has led police to fear he met with foul play. This theory was given further credence today upon receipt of word from his wife that the missing man may have been carrying $5,000 in cash. Authorities thus far have been unable to find a single clue that would either establish his death or his safety.

Mrs. Watzl received a letter from her husband, mailed in Philadelphia Wednesday. In it he told her he had been appointed an engineer for that city. Philadelphia officials declared that no such appointment had been made and that Dr. Watzl was unknown to them.

NEW EVIDENCE IN KRAFT CASE

NEW ORLEANS, La., Nov. 9.—(INS.)—District Attorney Leander Perez announced today that he held additional evidence regarding the mysterious death of Jack Kraft, New York pressman who is believed to have been killed on board the steamer Creole.

The prosecutor refused to divulge the details of his latest discovery, stating that they would be used when John McGouldrick, second mate of the coast-wise vessel, is brought to trial November 25 for the murder of Kraft.

Gloria Rouzer, at first known as Ione Ord in the mystery case, is to be held until Monday or later, according to Perez. Both the girl and McGouldrick are being held in the Pointe-a-La-Hache County Jail.

Miss Rouzer, who was the traveling companion of Kraft on the fatal trip from New York, is being held as a material witness in the death case.

BLAST KILLS 5 IN OHIO PLANT

ELYRIA, O., Nov. 9.—(AP.)—Five workmen were instantly killed and five others seriously injured in an explosion early today, which demolished the manufacturing plant of the Timms Spring Company.

The explosion occurred as the men were going to work at 7 o'clock this morning. Husted said he noticed the smell of gas as he stepped inside and noticed a man pulling out a cigaret.

"Don't light that match!" the foreman shouted, but he was too late with his warning. The blast followed instantly. "There was a terrific roar and everything seemed to collapse around us," he said.

Husted relapsed into unconsciousness after his brief account and was taken to Elyria Memorial Hospital along with the other injured, who were not immediately identified, with the exception of himself and Mary Downs.

W. B. Timms, owner of the plant, said the main loss would be from the valuable tools and equipment destroyed. He was unable to estimate the damage, however.

Five in Family May Die of Blast Burns

DETROIT, Nov. 9.—(INS.)—A father and mother and the three children they rescued from their burning home were believed dying of burns today in Highland Park General Hospital.

Walter Waibel, 37, and his wife, Helen, 25, were severely burned when Waibel, preparing breakfast, poured kerosene into a kitchen stove in their one-story home. An explosion swept flames into the bedroom where Richard, 6; Eugene, 4, and Wanda, 2, were sleeping. The already badly burned parents rushed into the blazing bedroom and rescued the children.

Kicked by Playmate, Girl Dies From Injury

"Some boy kicked me while we were playing," 4-year-old Dorothy Obsavsky, of Homeville, explained to her parents the pain she felt in her right leg.

Dorothy had been playing near her home in Virginia avenue with a group of youngsters.

When the pain persisted she was taken to Homestead Hospital. The injury became infected. Dorothy died today.

County detectives are trying to learn the identity of the boy.

OLD RIVALS CLASH IN BOWL

Game Marks 30th Struggle Between 2 Schools; Pitt Has Won 14, Wash-Jeff 13

By JESS CARVER.

Traversing the well-worn trail over which the cleated shoes of 29 other Red and Black clad elevens have trod in the past, Washington and Jefferson's eleven moved on Pittsburgh today for the annual battle in the Stadium with Pitt, shoes of 29 other Red and Black clad elevens have trod in the past, Washington and Jefferson's eleven moved on Pittsburgh today for the annual battle in the Stadium with Pitt.

Twenty-nine times, Pitt and W. & J. have clashed in gridiron warfare and today, as the varsities of the ancient rivals swing into the fray, the long series is practically stalemate. Pitt has won 14 of the battles, Wash-Jeff 13 and two have been tied.

Not until last year was Pitt able to establish an edge over the Presidents. The teams had tied in the matter of games won back in 1925, and in '27 and '26, played each other to scoreless ties. Last fall, Pitt won by a 25-to-0 margin.

EXPECT 40,000

The turnout today hardly will approach the 66,000 jam that watched Tech and Notre Dame in the Stadium's first sellout, nor the 48-odd thousand that looked at Pitt and Ohio State, but they ought to put 40,000 in the Oakland bowl today. The game, while lacking the intersectional appeal that Notre Dame and Ohio State lent their visits here, is just as important, and will be just as tough.

For that matter, it may be a lot tougher.

Today's battle brings together two unbeaten elevens. Pitt, headed toward at least a share of the top of the eastern intercollegiate heap, strives to continue an interrupted string of triumphs. Wash-Jeff, yet to suffer defeat, but having ties with Carnegie Tech and Temple marring its otherwise clean slate, Duke, West Virginia, Ohio State,

G. O. P. WARFARE FEARED AS MOSES INVADES MID-WEST

INSURGENTS ENRAGED AT SLUR

Bolt by Independents and Formation of New Party Among Possibilities in Split

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—With the Insurgent group suspicious of every political maneuver by the "Old Guard Regulars," the rather mysterious visit of Senator George H. Moses, chairman of the Republican Senatorial Campaign Committee, to the Middle West today left in its wake fears of a far-reaching schism within the Republican party.

The flippant reference by Moses to Western Insurgents as the "Sons of the Wild Jackass" left the Independents angry and bitter toward their campaign chairman. Consequently, his invasion of their home territory for a series of "political conferences" heightened the tension within Republican ranks.

THIRD PARTY POSSIBLE

Several developments may follow Moses' trip to the political wigwams of the Middle West. In their importance, they are:

1. Organization by the Insurgents of a campaign committee of their own choosing, financed by popular subscription, with mutual aid for each other in next fall's senatorial campaigns.

2. A possibility that the regular Republican organization, despite its friendly assurances thus far, will finance and support orthodox candidates against each Insurgent senator standing for re-election next November.

3. A counter attack by the Insurgents on stand-pat regular Republicans who must likewise go to the polls in 1930.

If the Insurgents do organize their own campaign organization and a fight develops between the two factions of the Republican party, a breach would follow that would make the split of 1912 look like harmony. It undoubtedly would be carried into the 1932 election, seriously endanger a Republican success in the presidential campaign of that year, and might lead to the permanent creation of a third major party.

RECORDS HINT BOLT

Such extraordinary developments would not be far fetched, in view of the records of the leaders involved in the present controversy.

Only a year ago, Senator Norris (Rep.), of Nebraska, veteran insurgent leader, broke away from his party to support Alfred E. Smith, the Democratic presidential nominee. The rest of the Insurgents remained loyal to Herbert Hoover's candidacy, chiefly because he was promptly and warmly supported by Senator Brookhart (Rep.), of Iowa, and Senator Borah (Rep.), of Idaho. Now both Brookhart and Borah have split with the President and have taken the lead—along with Norris—in opposing the administration.

In the preceding Presidential campaign, the elder Robert M. LaFollette (Rep.) of Wisconsin, bolted his party to head a third party movement. He carried with his son, the new Senator LaFollette, Senator Frazier (Rep.), of North Dakota, and Brookhart. Frazier and Brookhart once were denied all Republican recognition because of that bolt, only to be readmitted to party councils two years later.

Way back in 1912, Senator Hiram Johnson (Rep.), of California, his state's governor, joined with the late Theodore Roosevelt in the famous Bull Moose revolt.

MOSES WATCHED

The activities of Moses in the Middle West will attract great interest, not only because of his political friendship for President Hoover and his official position as Senatorial campaign manager, but because of his known antipathy for Insurgents. The Senator's "Jackass" reference was but one of a long list of slighting comments on the little group of Republican Independents in the Senate. Then, too, Moses was responsible for offering the post of Senatorial campaign treasurer to Otto H. Kahn, the Wall street financier—an appointment that outraged the Insurgents.

There remains some possibility of peace in the Republican party, despite all the war talk. The insurgents have indicated a willingness to go right along with the party, whenever their political views are in accord with the regular organization, and remain Republicans even when the two groups disagree. Actual warfare can come only if the Regular Republicans make some overt act hostile to the political welfare of the Insurgents. If such an act occurs, there will be open and lasting warfare.

GIRL REFUELING FLIERS READY

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Nov. 9.—(INS.)—With final tests of their cabin biplane completed, Bobby Trout, 23, of Los Angeles, and Elinor Smith, 18, of Freeport, N. Y., at the Metropolitan Airport here, watched the tuning of their motor for the first women's refueling endurance record flight in history.

They set Sunday morning at 8 o'clock for the take-off of a sky quest that they hoped would last 500 hours.

To succeed Miss Trout and Miss Smith must break by at least one hour the 420 hours 21 minutes' record set by Dale Jackson and Forrest O'Brine in the St. Louis Robin at St. Louis, Mo., last summer.

The flight was planned by Miss Trout after she had pluckily conquered tremendous odds to finish in the first all-woman air derby from Santa Monica, Cal., to Cleveland, O., last summer.

Miss Trout went to New York from Cleveland and enlisted her one-time rival for solo endurance records, Miss Elinor Smith, in the refueling enterprise.

Paul Whittier, millionaire aviation enthusiast, undertook to back the flight.

The announced purposes of the flight were to encourage aviation among women, and to better the Robin record.

Rehearsals of refueling were completed today. Whittier flew the contact plane in the trials and Miss Trout handled the supply hose while Miss Smith steered the biplane.

Airport ceremonies were planned to precede the launching of the Sunbeam biplane on its time test Sunday morning.

TAX BOARD MAN HURT, 2 HELD

With two men under arrest, police today are furthering their investigation of injuries sustained by John Crooks, 47, of McElhany Plan, a member of the County Tax Revision Board, alleged to have fallen down stairs in a club at 445 Baldwin street late yesterday.

Crooks was in a serious condition in Homestead Hospital today, suffering, doctors believed, from a fractured skull.

South Side police arrested T. H. Steele, 60, of 445 Baldwin street, and William Simpson, 54, of 6345 Crombie street, alleged owners of the club, and held them on charges of keeping a disorderly house. Crooks, police were told at the club, they said, fell down the stairs.

TRACE THREAT TO MAYOR

State police and county detectives were in East Pittsburgh today searching for the author of a telegram sent November 3 to Mayor George B. Wick, of Butler, demanding $1,500 to suppress a special issue of "The Butler County Farmer," dedicated to alleged irregularities of the mayor's office. Wick was defeated for re-election the same day by Joseph Heineman.

The Butler official, in Pittsburgh yesterday, laid the telegram before District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner, requesting that official to locate the writer, if possible.

When he heard the details and read the telegram, the district attorney sent detectives with Mayor Wick to the court of Alderman Thomas A. Flanigan, in Grant street, who was conducting a hearing on criminal libel preferred against C. A. Boddie, of Wilkinsburg by Chief of Police Wallace R. Bishop and Constable A. F. Fornoff, of Wilkinsburg, growing out of the publication of articles in a newspaper directed against the two officers.

The district attorney expressed hopes that some clew to the identity of the telegram's author might be gained from evidence offered.

No apparent connection between the Butler County publication and the paper Boddie is alleged to have sponsored was revealed at the hearing.

Magistrate Flanigan reserved decision until Monday in the Boddie case.

AWAIT LIBEL VERDICT

Alderman Thomas A. Flanigan, who yesterday heard testimony in the case against C. A. Boddie and B. N. Musick, of Wilkinsburg, charged with criminal libel by Chief Wallace R. Bishop and Adam Fornoff, former lieutenant of Wilkinsburg, said today he would make his decision Monday.

Testimony was produced by Bishop's attorneys to show that Boddie and Musick were responsible for the publication of the Wilkinsburg Herald, newspaper in which he and Fornoff were attacked.

Mike Bobic, 10, and John Bobic, 13, East Pittsburgh newsies, identified Boddie as the man who paid them to distribute the paper. Musick was identified by G. A. Intethal of the Western Newspaper Union as the man who brought the copy to him to be printed.

HOOVER SEES $100,000,000 BUDGET CUT

Expansion of Army Aviation, Waterways Development Are Forecast by President

By WILLIAM P. FLYTHE.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—Material expansion of Army aviation and development of waterways, and a probable decrease of $100,000,000 in total government expenditures for the fiscal year 1931-32 have been forecast by President Hoover in preliminary budget estimates.

The total for the next year is fixed as $3,830,000,000, as compared with $3,941,000,000 for the present fiscal year. In both instances this is exclusive of the emergency funds for the Federal Farm Board. It does not include the $150,000,000 made available for the board this year, nor such sums as may be made available for the next.

PLAN BIGGER AIR FORCE

The exact estimate for the Army Air Service program was not given out by the President. He said, however, that the next fiscal year is the last of the five-year Army expansion as authorized by Congress. During the first four years, he said, the program had been allowed to lag. This has been due to the lack of the proper housing facilities for planes and trained personnel to man the planes authorized by Congress.

During the fiscal year 1931-32 every effort will be made to catch up the slack of the last four years to give the United States Army an air service second to none, it was stated. This will call for the letting of contracts for a large number of planes, more than have been ordered in any one year in Army history. It will also call for the construction of suitable quarters for the men and hangars for the planes.

It will have the advantage, it was pointed out, of providing the Army with a large number of planes of the latest models, rather than planes built during the last few years which are rapidly becoming obsolete.

RIVER FUND UP

The appropriation for the waterways, both inland and coastal, will be $15,000,000 more than in the present year. This will be provided for in an increase of $5,000,000 for rivers and harbors, $5,000,000 for flood control and the diversion of $5,000,000 from the Ohio River project, which has been completed and will require no further expenditure except for maintenance. This sum will be used to open up new water routes.

The President did not say anything regarding the estimate for the Navy, but it was understood that it will contain the necessary funds to carry out the annual program for the 15-cruiser program as authorized by Congress. Complete figures will be published within the next week, the President said.

Mrs. Hoover Sends Girl Scouts Greeting

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—Delegates to the National Girl Scouts convention at a banquet last night received the telegraphed good wishes of Mrs. Herbert Hoover, honorary chairman of the Scouts National directorate and enthusiastic worker for the movement. The nation's first lady expressed regret at not being able to attend this year's convention. Announcement was made of a donation of $250,000 by John D. Rockefeller, Jr., to the Girl Scouts' Five-Year Development Plan. The gift brings the fund so far collected for the expansion program to $1,500,000 or half of the goal of $3,000,000.

into sickness by an unpaid hotel bill, she added.

Mrs. Muir was smilingly triumphant today, her long chase ended. She had carried her hunt to Secretary of State Stimson, to Mayor Walker, of New York; to friends of her husband.

"I went to see his people," she has told. "They would not help me. My husband's mother said I could go to the poorhouse so far as she was concerned. I have no money—no place else to go.

"My husband left me while I was visiting friends. This was after friends of his family had relayed to him a message of mysterious import.

"We have been married seven years, in spite of constant efforts to break up our home. They have told him lies about me, even trying to convince him that I am much older than he.

"Ours was a case of love at first sight. We met in Europe when he returned there to visit the scenes which had grown dear to him during the two years he served under President Hoover in the Relief Administration in Russia."

Young Muir's step-father, Carey Hutchinson, wealthy engineer and socially registered, supplies another version. Said he:

"He left her because of the disparity in their ages and because their temperaments made it impossible for them to continue living together. She is 10 years older than he."

when Judge Hardy began to read his decision.

In a jail cell on an upper floor of the building where the courtroom is located, was Mrs. Pantages' millionaire husband, who today is scheduled to go before Judge Charles Fricke to be sentenced for assaulting 17-year-old Eunice Pringle, co-ed and dancer.

Facing a sentence of from one to 50 years in San Quentin Penitentiary, Pantages, through his attorneys, will ask for a new trial on the basis of affidavits sworn to by three jurors that they were coerced into voting for Pantages' conviction.

SOBER, FRIENDS SAY

At yesterday's session in Judge Hardy's court room four women and three men friends of Mrs. Pantages swore that Mrs. Pantages had not been drinking at a beach party which preceded the fatal automobile collision.

Judge Hardy himself questioned the witnesses, among them Lloyd Pantages. The judge read a lengthy statement before issuing his ruling.

Mrs. Pantages must report once a month during the 10 years to the probation officer under the judge's ruling. Her automobile license was revoked for one year, and she promised that she would not take a drink during the probation time.

FRANCE MAY DELAY NAVY PARLEY

Lack of Sufficient Time to Prepare Feared by New Government of Tardieu

By FREDERICK K. ABBOTT
International News Service.

PARIS, Nov. 9.—The new government of Premier Andre Tardieu may ask for a postponement of the five-power naval conference scheduled to begin in London on January 20, International News Service learned exclusively today from an authoritative official source.

The new cabinet, it was revealed, fears that it will not have enough time to prepare sufficiently for a conference of such importance before the middle of January.

The interchanges on the subject of armaments between the various governments, it was pointed out, have indicated the vast extent of preparations necessary for participation in such a conference.

DOMESTIC PROBLEMS

These preliminaries, it was stated, would be doubly lengthy from the French standpoint because of difficulties the government would be certain to encounter in attempting to dovetail the ideals established by the United States and Great Britain with France's pledges to the League of Nations.

There is also a domestic political friction to be reckoned with. A definite attitude on the subject of disarmaments taken by the new government might endanger the majority it received in the votes of confidence taken this morning.

This probably explains why neither M. Tardieu nor M. Briand mentioned the disarmament problem in their brilliant speeches in the Chamber of Deputies before the two votes of confidence were taken.

TWO CONFIDENCE VOTES

The French chamber twice voted confidence in the new government by a greater majority than its fondest friends had hoped.

The poll was 327 to 256, a majority of 71, on the first ballot, when the Socialists sought to amend the government's motion of confidence; the majority was increased to 79 by a vote of 332 to 253 when the confidence motion itself was put before the chamber.

The two votes followed a speech by Aristide Briand, foreign minister and former premier, and a discussion of cabinet policy by the premier himself.

Briand closed his defense of his foreign policies with the shouted peroration:

"The French Nationalists have attacked me. The French Hugenbergs have wished to overthrow me. Erzberger, Rathenau and Stresemann were likewise suspected in Germany because they sought to improve Germany's relations with France."

GERMANY AROUSED

BERLIN, Nov. 9.—(INS.)—Genuine consternation was expressed in political circles today over the recent declarations of Andre Tardieu, new French Premier, with regard to the Hague reparations agreements.

Coming on top of the delay in French evacuation of the Rhineland, feeling has been aroused here that international agreements are being pushed aside in the stress of politics in France.

Authoritative foreign office circles declare that Germany takes the stand that the Hague agreements specifically provide that if the Young plan is ratified before June 30, 1930, evacuation of the Rhineland must be completed by that date also.

ITALY MAY SUPPORT U. S.

LONDON, Nov. 9.—(INS.)—Italy is seriously considering the question of abolishing submarines in support of the disarmament policies of the United States and Great Britain, it was learned here today.

There is no confirmation of a report that Premier Mussolini has already rendered a decision on the subject.

Prince of Wales Dines Destitute War Heroes

By KINGSBURY SMITH

LONDON, Nov. 9.—(INS.)—The Prince of Wales tonight is giving a dinner in the House of Lords to 321 ex-soldiers from all over the British Empire who by their individual heroism won the Victoria Cross, the highest honor in the British army, during the World War.

Some of those attending have no arms. Others lost their legs in the war. Two are totally blind.

Places at the table were drawn by lot. Viscount Gort was to sit on the left of the Prince. Former Sergt. Burman, a chauffeur, was to flank his royal highness on the right.

This dinner was the Prince's own idea and was suggested by him to the British Legion several months ago as the best way in which he might "do his share" on the eleventh anniversary of the Armistice towards remembering the men who risked their lives to save the future throne.

Realizing that these men came from every rank in life and that many might be ill at ease in the presence of the heir to the throne, the Prince stipulated that the dinner was to be entirely informal and that all should come in lounge suits. So tonight these men, who by their bravery under fire won a little bronze medal inscribed "for valor," will gather in a banqueting hall usually frequented by the peers of England.

That the war heroes have been quickly forgotten with the passing of time was clearly brought out during the efforts to bring these men together. Nearly 100 of them did not reply to the invitations and, when sought out, shyly revealed they were destitute, without either an extra suit of clothes or money enough to take them to London. A number of them were without work, others only had part time jobs and still others were just able to make both ends meet with the small wages they were earning.

And the newlywed Mrs. John Coolidge, wife of the former President's son, will be a matron of honor.

The ceremony will be performed at 5:30 o'clock by Rev. Dr. Robert N. Meade, of the Episcopal Church of the Redeemer. A sister, Mrs. Lloyd Hornbostel, of Beloit, Wis., will also be a matron of honor.

Mrs. Coolidge arrived yesterday afternoon, and motored through the downtown and East End sections of the city with Mrs. Hornbostel, a former newspaper girl here, and others. Mr. Coolidge came here this morning.

The visit and participation in the wedding continues a college-girl friendship that began when Miss Rogers and Mrs. Coolidge, then Florence Trumbull, daughter of the Governor of Connecticut, attended Mt. Holyoke College. Recently when Miss Trumbull became Mrs Coolidge the Pittsburgh girl was bridesmaid. Reciprocation will be made today with Mrs. Coolidge assisting at her classmate's ceremony.

COYNE FIGHTS DRY PADLOCK

State Senator J. J. Coyne filed a petition in Federal Court asking for vacation of a one-year "padlock" injunction decree, granted Monday, against the first floor of a three-story building at 4731 Second avenue. Coyne and Mary Coyne were designated as the owners of the property, and Patrick Coyne as proprietor of a saloon on the first floor.

Coyne, in his petition, said he never was served with a bill of complaint and had no knowledge that a final hearing would be held. Coyne said that a deputy marshal visited the office of Howard Neely, 3717 Forbes street, and asked the latter to accept service for the two alleged owners. Coyne averred that when Neely offered to accept service for him, but not for Mary Coyne, as the latter "did not exist," the deputy marshal left without making any service.

Judge F. P. Schoonmaker granted a rule on the government to show cause why the injunction decree should not be vacated and set aside, returnable November 16.

SCHOOL BOARD CUTS BUDGET

The finance committee of the Board of Education last night made the third slash in two months in the 1930 school budget estimates, when $25,950 was cut off from the miscellaneous supply and expense items. The first slash was made October 22, when $7,546.25 was eliminated and the second last week when $31,522 was cut off.

On request of Carl M. McKee, superintendent of supplies, an item for swimming pool supplies for next year was increased to $3,900, while a request for $1,800 for photographic services was reduced to $900.

A request for an increase in the amount for repairs and replacements was deferred.

The committee approved increases of $200 for hauling ashes and rubbish, and $400 for telephone service, necessitated, McKee explained, by the opening of the new Clifford B. Connelley Trade School on Bedford avenue.

CHURCH OUSTS MILL STRIKERS

MARION, N. C., Nov. 9.—(AP.)—Letters of dismissal were received in the mill village here by a large number of members of the East Marion Baptist Church, who are either strikers or strike sympathizers.

The letters were signed by A. R. Black, church clerk, and S. J. McAbee, "moderator" or chairman of the board of deacons, the church being on a circuit and having no regular pastor.

Black said that the "lawlessness in connection with the strike and disregard of church discipline on the part of the members was the reason for the step."

"Was it because of their union activities?" he was asked.

"It was."

Strike disturbances have been going on in Marion at its two mills, the Clinchfield and Marion manufacturing plants, for the last several months, eight persons being killed in the last disturbance. State troops still are on guard.

Texas Man Convicted Twice for Murder

EASTLAND, Tex., Nov. 9.—(AP.)—For the second time in a little more than a year Clyde Thompson heard an Eastland County jury pronounce the death sentence upon him for his part in the slaying of Lucian Shook, 27-year-old oil field worker. A witness testified that Thompson told him before the murder he was going to shoot Shook "to see him kick." A new trial was granted Thompson by the Court of Criminal Appeals, which disproved the finding of the jury in his first trial in October of 1928.

Treasury States Revealing of Embassy Liquor Imports Would Violate Precedent

By ROBERT S. THORNBURGH.
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—Disclosure of the volume of liquor imports for foreign embassies and legations would violate diplomatic precedent and would be contrary to international courtesy, Treasury offiicials said today, in commenting on the demand of Senator Howell (Rep.), of Nebraska, for this information.

Howell asked for data on imports of diplomatic liquor in a letter to the Treasury Department and in a personal conference at the State Department. The Treasury replied that the desired information was considered confidential and could not be furnished. It was understood Howell received about the same reply at the State Department.

DENY ABUSE OF RIGHT

Officials declared there has been virtually no illegal use of diplomatic liquor in Washington and that diplomats have not abused this privilege, recognized under international practice.

The contention that transporters of embassy liquor from ports of entry to Washington, or other diplomatic stations, are guilty of violation of the national dry law was disputed at the Treasury.

Some time ago regulations were issued to the effect that each consignment of diplomatic liquor must be accompanied by an accredited agent of the embassy or legation to which it was being taken.

LAW QUOTED

It was pointed out that in this way the diplomat or his agent is technically in possession of the liquor and that under chapter 6, sections 251 and 252 of the code of laws of the United States he cannot be molested. These read:

"Section 251. Violation of safe conduct; penalty. Every person who violates any safe conduct or passport duly obtained and issued under authority of the United States shall be imprisoned for not more than three years and fined at the discretion of the court.

"Section 252. Suits against ministers and their domestics prohibited. Whenever any writ or process is sued out or prosecuted by any person in any court of the United States, or of a state, or by any judge or justice, whereby the person of any ambassador or public minister of any foreign prince or state, authorized and received as such by the President, or any domestic or domestic servant of any such minister, is arrested or imprisoned, or his goods or chattels are distrained, seized or attached, such writ or process shall be deemed void."

IMPORTS HELD LEGAL

Permits for importation of diplomatic liquor are obtained at the State Department, which forwards them, on approval, to the Treasury. The customs collectors then are notified to permit the importation. So far as practicable the Treasury has instructed that diplomatic liquor be brought into this country through the port of Baltimore.

Officials pointed out there could be no advantage to making public the volume of diplomatic liquor imports since they are legal, under international common law and practice, and for the reason that these goods cannot be seized by the government or other persons legally. Should there develop open abuse of the diplomatic liquor privilege the government whose representative had been guilty of abuse would be notified through the State Department.

HINDMAN WEEPS AT VERDICT

A profusion of tears followed the return of a second degree murder verdict in Criminal Court late yesterday against Otto Hindman, 28, of New Eagle, tried for shooting to death his father-in-law, Anthony Schragl, 46, of North street, Baldwin Township, last April 29.

First, Hindman burst into tears as the foreman of the jury announced the verdict, and said the jury recommended the extreme penalty for second degree murder. This is 10 to 20 years in the penitentiary, and the recommendation was considered a compromise in the jury room with jurors who had held out for more than 24 hours for a verdict of first degree.

Next, Mrs. Hattie Archibal Hindman, mother of the prisoner, burst into loud sobs as she realized that her son's life had been spared.

Then, Mrs. Hindman made a quick rush towards the jurors as they filed from the jury box. She kissed each of the four women jurors and in an instant all five women were crying and sobbing together. Mrs. Hindman wrung the hand of each of the men jurors, telling each that she thanked him for sparing her son's life.

Mrs. Mary Barnes, Republican chairman of the Third District of Stowe Township, was deserted by her husband, Frank Barnes, and left penniless with four children, she said as she asked Judge George V. Moore for a divorce.

She told her story to the jurist in Common Pleas Court yesterday. She was married at 15, in 1915, and separated eight years later. Her husband told her "I am going to visit a friend," and he did not return," she testified. She never saw him until two months later.

Today Mrs. Barnes is employed in a downtown store as a manniken, earning a livelihood for herself and children. The pretty brunet lives at 153 Stowe avenue. She told Judge Moore, in response to his questions, that since her husband left her he has not contributed one cent toward either her support or the care of her children.

EXONERATE MOONEY IN BOMBING

2 Confirm Statement Clearing Convicted Man of Blast Killing 10 in 'Frisco

BELLAIRE, O., Nov. 9.—Two persons confirmed the statement of a third, exonerating Tom Mooney of complicity in the San Francisco preparedness parade bombing. Frank O. Stevens, inmate of the National Soldiers' Home, made the statement that he had heard Lewis Smith, now dead, make statements in the home of Smith's sister, Mrs. George Monroe, in Wetzel County, W. Va., and later at Shadyside, O., that he was paid to do the bombing, but never received any money and declared Mooney knew nothing of the incident.

Mrs. Monroe, located by a newspaper reporter, confirmed this statement, saying it had been made in the presence of Stevens and her son, Otto Monroe, 20, as well as herself. Young Monroe, interviewed at a mine where he is employed, admitted correctness of his mother's story. Fear of getting into trouble kept the Monroes silent. Smith died in Cleveland in 1922, while cranking an automobile. His widow, a world war nurse, still resides there, Mrs. Monroe said.

STEVENS QUESTIONED

DAYTON, O., Nov. 9. — (AP.) — Frank Stevens, Spanish war veteran who furnished officials with information relative to the Mooney bombing case in San Francisco, was taken to Cincinnati from his residence at the National Military Home here last night by federal officers for further questioning regarding his knowledge of the case.

LETTER TURNED OVER

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—A letter purporting to give information about the preparedness day parade bombing in San Francisco in 1916, in which 10 were killed and for which Tom Mooney is serving a prison sentence, has been referred to the Department of Justice by Senator Schall, of Minnesota.

The letter, signed by Frank O. Stevens, of the National Military Home, Dayton, O., said the man who "threw the bomb, which resulted in the death of several persons, died in July, 1922, at Cleveland."

The Department of Justice said it had not decided what action would be taken.

JUDGE URGES PROBE

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 9. — (AP.) — Superior Judge Franklin J. Griffin, who presided at the trial of Thomas J. Mooney, in commenting on dispatches from Bellaire, O., that another man had been named as the perpetrator of the 1916 preparedness day bombing, said:

"It is a story that should be run down. So far as I know, no real investigation ever went beyond Mooney. No one has any idea who set off the bomb, to my knowledge. If it is possible to check Smith's movements at the time of the bombing, it should be done. If any truth is found in the story it might serve the additional purpose of convincing those persons who are still reluctant to believe in Mooney's innocence."

ENGINE IN MUD, HOUSE BURNS

After working more than two hours digging their truck out of the mud late last night, firemen of No. 10 Chemical Company, West End, agreed today that Westwood's streets aren't what they might be.

Answering an alrm for a fire in the home of Anthony Caputo, a two-story frame building at West Chester and Queensboro streets, Westwood, the truck was caught in a mudhole which delayed arrival at the fire several minutes. The house was damaged to the extent of $2,500.

Returning to their headquarters in South Main street, they were again caught in the mud, this time being stuck more than two hours.

Truck and firemen were covered with mud which required another hour to remove.

Heiress Loses $900,000 On Stock, Owes $50,000

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.— (AP.)—Miss Margaret Shotwell, concert pianist, of Omaha, Neb., last night disclosed that she not only lost her entire fortune of $900,000 in the recent stock market break, but also incurred a debt of $50,000 which she still owes her broker.

The loss was part of an inheritance, estimated at $1,000,000, which she received from the estate of John Neal, district manager for the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company, which caused her to become known as the "cigaret heiress."

"I lost every cent I had in the world," she said. "That was $900,000, and I owe $50,000 to my broker besides."

"But it isn't smart any more to be rich," she added with a laugh that might have been more hearty. "I have lots of company now, you know."

The 22-year-old pianist received her inheritance after John Neal died in 1923. Most of it was in stock of the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company.

"I was in Omaha, visiting my mother, when the market started to drop," she recounted. "I sent my Reynolds stock to protect my margin and started for New York. My broker carried me as long as he could and I began to hope I'd pull through when I lost all in the last big slump."

Miss Shotwell said she planned to remain in New York for a few more days and "try to find a bear who'll buy my chinchilla coat." If she fails in her efforts to raise the $50,000 she owes her broker during her stay here, she will return to Omaha, she said. Beyond her intention to accept all concert engagements that are offered to her, she said she had no definite plans for the future.

Notables Aid Milk Fund By Visiting Art Show

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—Names representative of art circles and institutions in many countries are inscribed in the book of honor at the Kleinberger galleries since the loan exhibition of Flemish primitives opened there for the benefit of New York's free milk fund for babies.

Every name in the thick guest book means a friend for the free milk fund, of which Mrs. William Randolph Hearst is president.

Organized by Mrs. Hearst, with the co-operation of great private collectors, the remarkable showing of fifteenth and sixteenth century art masterpieces by Flemish painters has become the outstanding event of the art world. It will continue until November 16.

By special request the galleries, at 12 East Fifty-fourth street, will be kept open Sunday to permit the attendance of visitors who otherwise might miss the exhibition.

Characteristic of the genius of the Flemish masters is the painting on wood by Colijn de Coter, fifteenth century, of the "Coronation of the Virgin." It is on a panel 58 by 33 inches, and is considered the most important of de Coter's works. The picture is lent from the private collection of Martin A. Ryerson, of Chicago.

"Curse ye Meroz, said the angel of Jehovah, curse ye bitterly the inhabitants thereof; because they came not to the help of Jehovah, to the help of Jehovah against the mighty." Judges 5:23.

Meroz is a town remembered by a curse. Nowhere else in the Bible is she mentioned. The knowledge of her existence depends on this one verse. It is a terrible thing to be remembered by a curse like this ancient city but when we look at her sin we find it strikingly modern.

I. It was a sin of omission. Israel had been invaded by a heathen host. Country, home and religion were in deadly peril. In this time of dire need the men of Meroz did nothing. They are not accused of siding with the enemy, but neither had they come to the help of Jehovah. It was not what they had done but what they had failed to do that embalms their memory in a curse. The battle between good and evil is eternal and Jehovah still calls men to his help against the mighty.

"God bends from out the deep and says,
"I gave thee the great gift of life;
Wast thou not called in many ways?
Are not my heaven and earth at strife?"

In this strife so many are neutral. Their idea of being good is not to do anything so very bad. Organized religion today suffers not so much from its enemies who are openly fighting against it, as from the so-called friends who are doing nothing for it. It is their deadly indifference, their calm neutrality in things religious that ranks so many with the men of Meroz.

II. It was the sin of the sponge, the slacker. These men of Meroz would share in the blessings of peace and security that would come with the defeat of the heathen. But they refused to share in the danger and struggle that won this peace and security. Sponge! The man who sucks in as much and gives out as little as he can. Slacker! The man who enjoys the benefits that come from the sacrifice and toil of others but contributes little sweat and labor of his own. Ugly words in other spheres of life, but how easy to play this part in religion. Most agree that morality is necessary for the prosperity and happiness of a community. Most agree that the sanctions of religion are basic to morality. Most agree that church and other forms of organized activity are necessary to maintain religion. Few fail to call on the Church for some form of service in the time of need. But how many wish others to bear all the burden and sacrifice necessary to keep organized religion alive.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Mrs. Frew Chooses Aids

NO sooner is one week over than we start wondering about the next. And this year it's hard not to believe that the best is yet to come, since new entertainments are announced every hour.

The coming week will have its debutantes, too, and a holiday, Armistice Day, in the bargain. There'll be no debuts on Monday, but on the following day charming Emily Frew will be presented to society by her father and mother, the William Frews, of Devon road, in the Pittsburgh Golf Club at a tea.

A day or so ago I announced Emily's aides, and now I know who'll assist Mrs. Frew.

Her monther-in-law, Mrs. W. H. Frew will be an aid, of course, as will Mrs. S. R. Kelly, Miss Eleanor G. Park, Mrs. Lewis A. Park, Mrs. J. Frederic Byers, Mrs. H. M. Curry, Jr., Mrs. J. C. Dilworth, Mrs. P. E. Donner, Mrs. Clinton Childs, Mrs. Donald Bakewell, Mrs. Thurston Wright, and her sister, Mrs. Harrison Townsend, of Santa Barbara, Cal.

THANKSGIVING time will be a forerunner of the social activity, longer sustained, that we're going to have at Christmas. The newest plan added to the last days of November is a small dinner-dance Senator and Mrs. David Aiken Reed will give in the Pittsburgh Club for their niece, Frances Preble Reed, debutante daughter of the junior James Hay Reeds, of Castleman street.

Instead of a dinner-dance on December 2 the John G. Frazers will entertain for Frances, their niece, at a dinner in the Pittsburgh Club before the Stewart dance.

FOUR buds, almost a nosegay, will be honored at a buffet supper Mr. and Mrs. J. Frederic Byers will give on November 30. And the guests of honor will be Virginia Frew Wright, Emily Berry Frew, Peggy Milligan, and Mary Franklin Robinson.

And on November 3 the Grant McCargoes will give a small dinner dance in their home for Frances Forsyth, debutante daughter of the James M. Magees, and for Nancy Allderdice, debutante daughter of the Taylor Allderdices.

I KNOW of another tea that will not be for the buds. Mrs. Alexander Stuart Hunter and her daughter, Miss Laetitia Hunter, of Fifth avenue, will give a tea on December 3 in their home for Mrs. Alexander Hays Hunter, daughter-in-law of Mrs. Hunter. Last May, do you remember, the young Hunters were married?

BECAUSE of illness, the dinner dance that Mrs. Charles Arbuthnot, Jr., had planned for her debutante niece, Margaret Rolfe Berger, has been postponed, I hear, indefinitely.

DURING the Yuletide season the school set will be as much entertained, I do believe, as the debutantes. Another entertainment planned for the boys and girls home for vacation is a tea dance the Harry L. Mitchells will give the day after Christmas for their children, Caroline Stewart Mitchell and Margaret Davidson Mitchell, who are at Rosemary Hall, and their son, Charles Davidson Mitchell, who attends the Taft School.

MISS MARY ELIZABETH M'GOWAN, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry James McGowan, of Prospect avenue, Ben Avon, will marry Charles Ross Luker, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ross Luker, of Home avenue, Bellevue, on Thursday.

THE Ladies' Auxiliary of the Permas Club of the North Hills will give a card party Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock in the Permas Club rooms, East street, North side.

THE Druids, University of Pittsburgh national honorary sophomore activities fraternity, will hold a dance in the Pittsburgh Athletic Association this evening after the Pitt-Washington and Jefferson game.

MEMBERS of the faculty of the Carnegie Institute of Technology will be guests of President Thomas S. Baker this evening in the College of Fine Arts.

NEW SUNDAY NIGHT FROCK IS PRESENTED BY PATOU

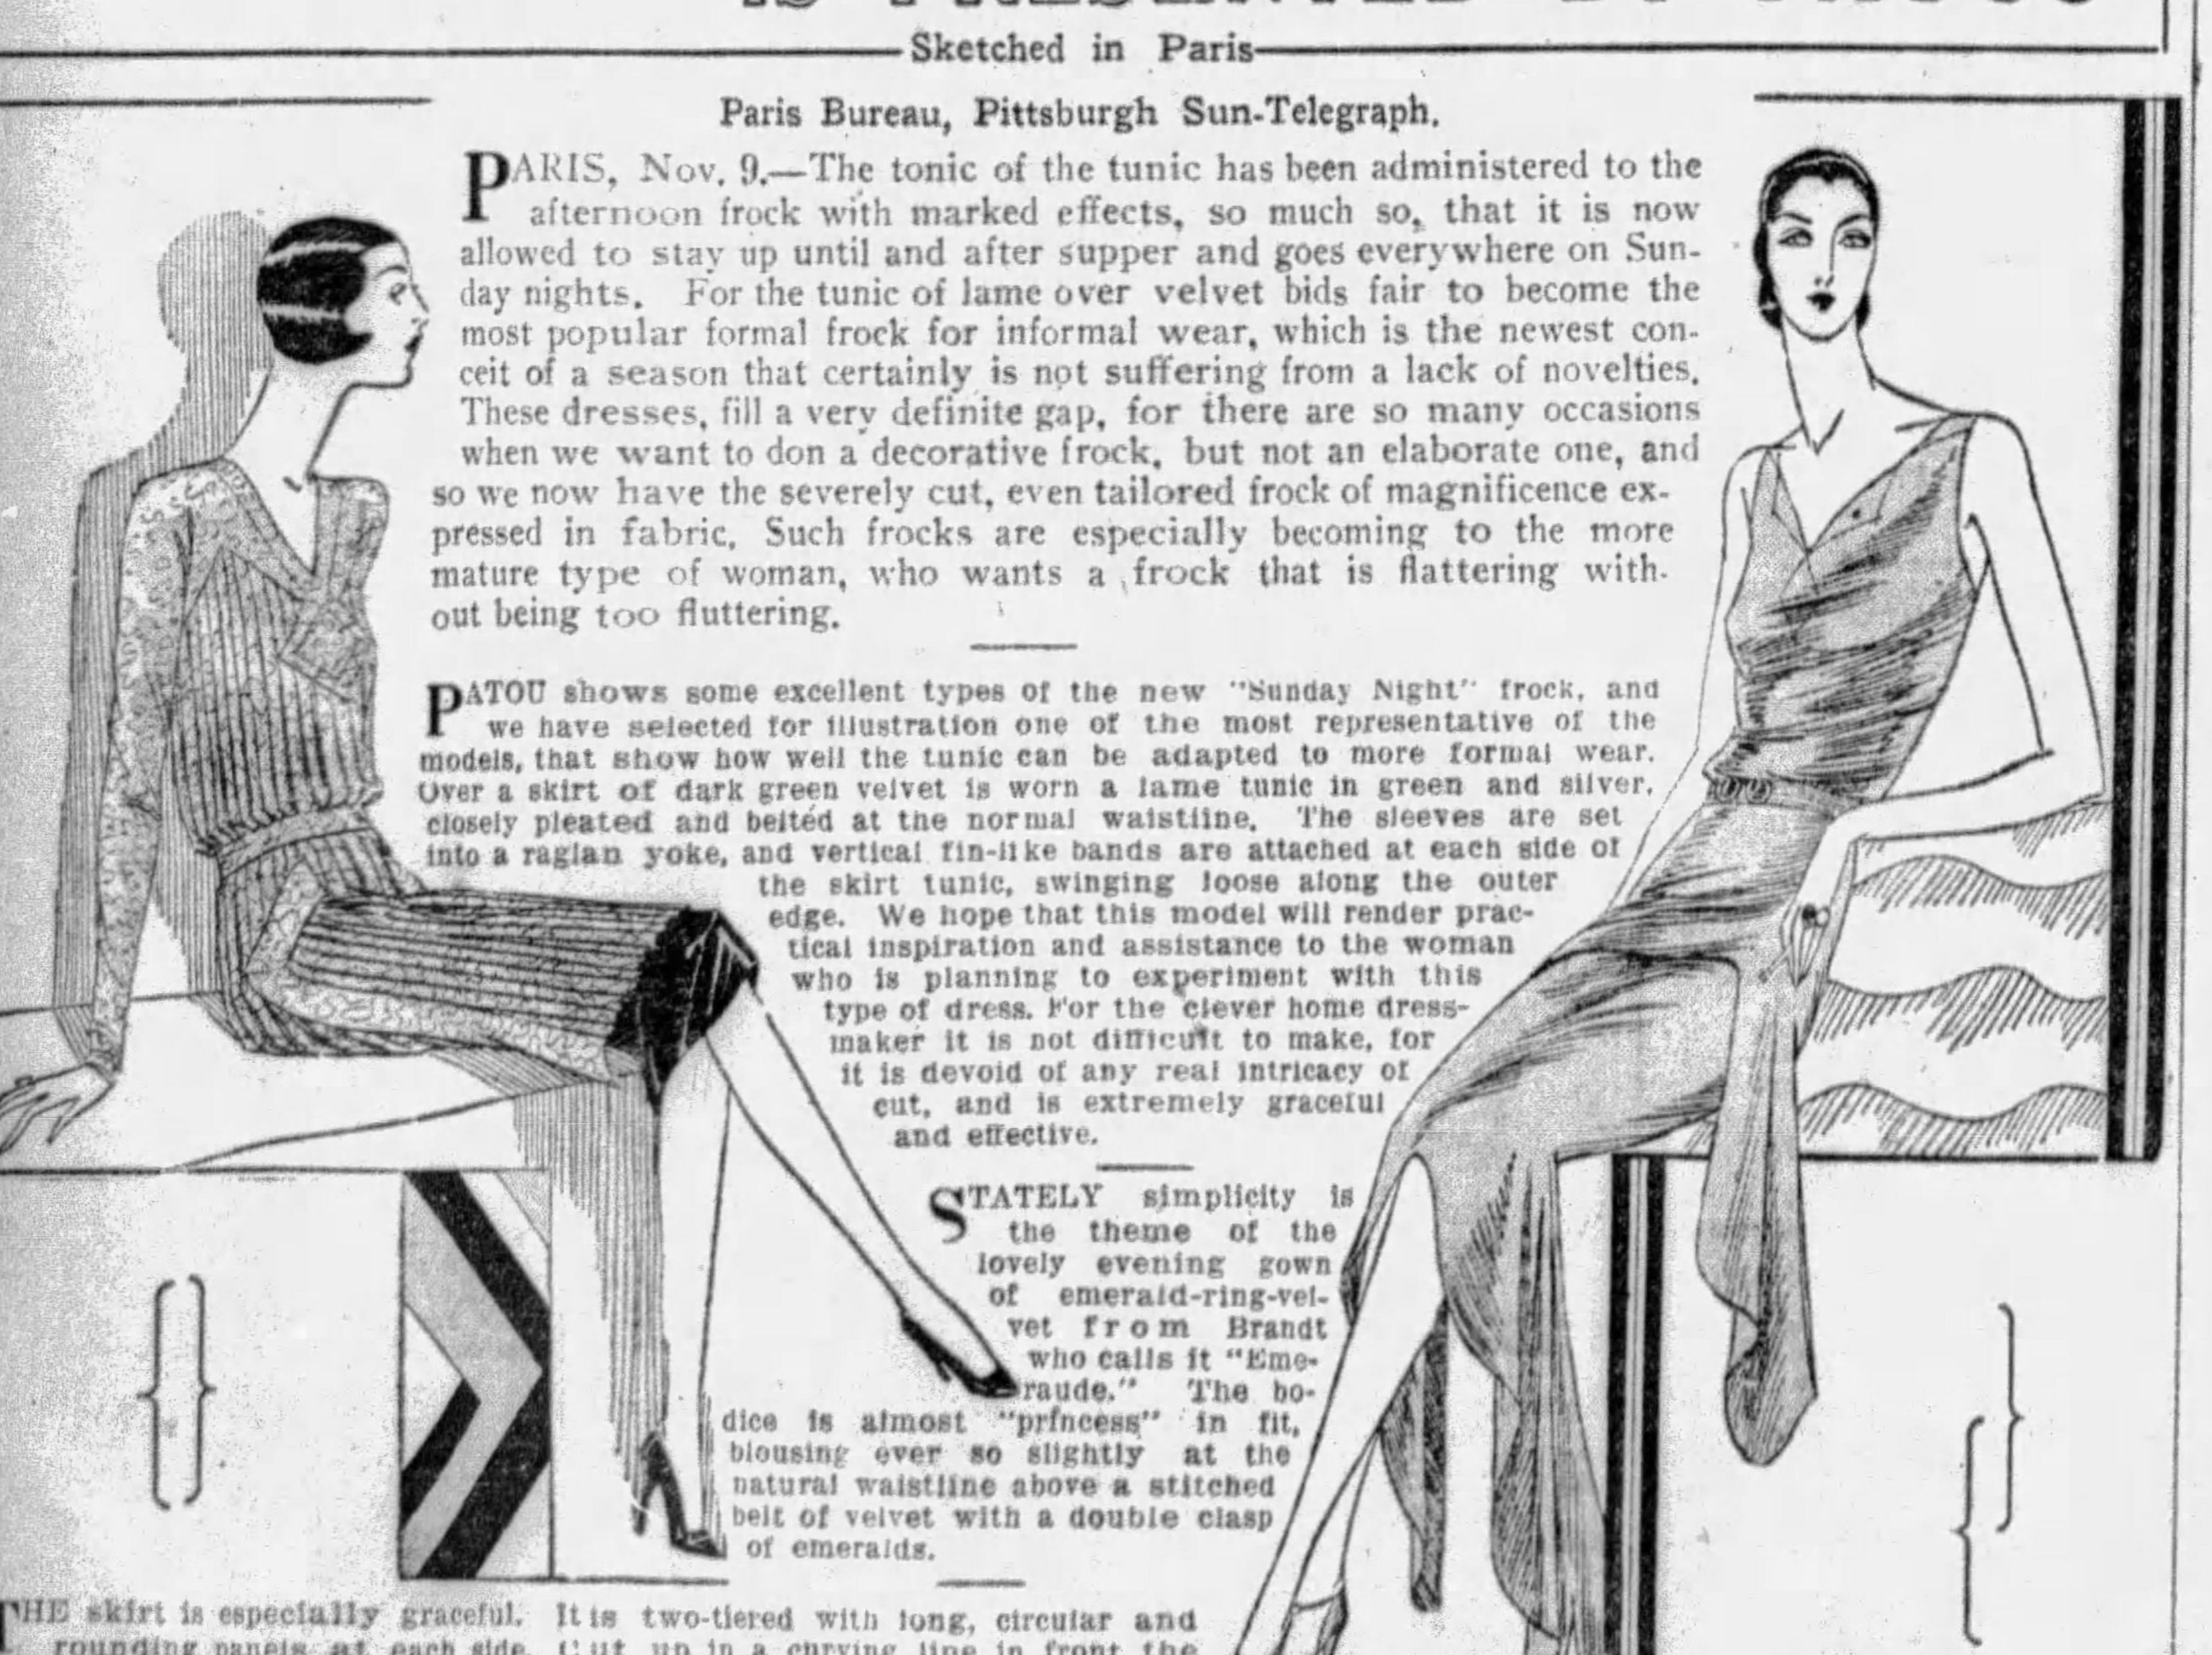
Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.



PARIS, Nov. 9.—The tonic of the tunic has been administered to the afternoon frock with marked effects, so much so, that it is now allowed to stay up until and after supper and goes everywhere on Sunday nights. For the tunic of lame over velvet bids fair to become the most popular formal frock for informal wear, which is the newest conceit of a season that certainly is not suffering from a lack of novelties. These dresses, fill a very definite gap, for there are so many occasions when we want to don a decorative frock, but not an elaborate one, and so we now have the severely cut, even tailored frock of magnificence expressed in fabric. Such frocks are especially becoming to the more mature type of woman, who wants a frock that is flattering without being too fluttering.

PATOU shows some excellent types of the new "Sunday Night" frock, and we have selected for illustration one of the most representative of the models, that show how well the tunic can be adapted to more formal wear. Over a skirt of dark green velvet is worn a lame tunic in green and silver, closely pleated and belted at the normal waistline. The sleeves are set into a raglan yoke, and vertical fin-like bands are attached at each side of the skirt tunic, swinging loose along the outer edge. We hope that this model will render practical inspiration and assistance to the woman who is planning to experiment with this type of dress. For the clever home dressmaker it is not difficult to make, for it is devoid of any real intricacy of cut, and is extremely graceful and effective.

STATELY simplicity is the theme of the lovely evening gown of emerald-ring-velvet from Brandt who calls it "Emeraude." The bodice is almost "princess" in fit, blousing ever so slightly at the natural waistline above a stitched belt of velvet with a double clasp of emeralds.

THE skirt is especially graceful. It is two-tiered with long, circular and rounding panels at each side. Cut up in a curving line in front the skirt is moderately short, but at the sides and back, the panels do their duty and bring the line almost down to the floor.

HER HAPPY DEBUT INTO TALKING PICTURES

Marion DAVIES

Nothing so completely captivating has thus far come from the talking screen. Armistice days in France. Fun-starved doughboys and love-starved peasant beauties meet merrily in this thoroughly delightful musical comedy romance. Grand songs! A thousand laughs with Marion at her best. And her first talking role is a personal triumph for America's first comedienne.

BOYS SEARCH FOR FATHER

Two boys, Robert Brown, 14, and John Brown, 11, asked the aid of Chief County Detective George W. Murren yesterday in a search for their missing father, Arthur Brown, 45, who has been missing from his home at 1914 Croft street, North Side, Pittsburgh, for the last five years.

The boys were orphaned since the death of their mother, two years ago, and cannot secure the insurance money on policies held by their father unless some proof of his fate can be produced.

Arthur Brown was employed as an automobile mechanic in an East Liberty garage. He went to work one morning in 1924 and never returned home. No clue has ever been discovered as to his movements after he left work on that day or his possible fate.

COURT RULES ON POLL BOOKS

An order was made in Common Pleas Court yesterday by Judge George V. Moore directing that the County Commissioners turn over to the district attorney's office the voters' check book, voting check book and numbered list of voters in four districts of the Second Ward, Homestead.

The purpose of the order, obtained by Viers D. Edwards, of the district attorney's office, is to check up on the alleged confession of two unnamed Negroes who claim to have done repeating in the first four districts of the Second Ward during the recent election.

COUNCIL TO BUY LAND FOR ROAD

Council has ordered legislation for the purchase of property to provide an area to separate traffic where the Boulevard of the Allies is bisected by Coltart street, Zulema street, Bates street and Wilmot street. City engineers appraised the required land at $30,000.

The site was suggested for a traffic circle, but the latter was rejected by Council recently in favor of extending the Boulevard of the Allies to Schenley Park by widening Wilmot street from Bates street to Park View avenue.

The proposal for a method of separating traffic at the intersection was reopened yesterday by a committee from the City Planning Commission that pointed out, if land is not acquired now the price may be prohibitive when the city decides to buy.

The committee included Frederick Bigger, J. D. Hailman, John Weber, Albert Horner and E. W. Mudge.

AGED MAN HIT BY AUTO, DIES

J. Emerson Ash, 79, of Cathedral Mansions, an insurance broker with offices in the Arrott Building, died in Homeopathic Hospital last night, three hours after he was struck by an automobile at Baird and Dithridge streets. C. C. Salmon, of 5624 Penn avenue, driver of the machine, was notified to report to the coroner today.

Oakland police reported that the accident was unavoidable, as the aged man stepped off the sidewalk and walked into the path of the car. Morgue attaches said death was caused by shock and a fractured left leg.

Woman Hurt in Auto Collision Succumbs

Mrs. Olive Gainsford, 44, of 228 Coleridge street, died in the Pittsburgh Hospital yesterday from injuries suffered Wednesday in an automobile collision at Negley and Stanton avenues. She was riding in a car driven by Joseph Wentz when it crashed with a machine driven by Edward Hinley, of 115 Bayard street, according to the coroner's report. Both drivers were ordered turned over to the coroner.

Man Robbed of $500, Jewels in Holdup

Detectives last night were informed that D. J. L. Pheophines, of 2424 Center avenue, was held up and was relieved of a diamond ring valued at $500, a set of cuff links, valued at $15, and $30 at the Chauncey street steps.

RETAIL TRADE DULL, DUN REPORTS

Some Stores Report Fair Volume—Others Show Falling Rate of Sales

Retail trade is not particularly active, according to R. G. Dun & Co. The volume of business transacted by some of the larger stores is reported fair, while in the case of others it is slower than recently. Men's and women's wearing apparel does not appear to be moving as freely as usual at this season, although there is a slight improvement in the demand for cheaper grades of millinery.

The demand for shoes and rubber foot wear is comparatively light and there is only a moderate demand for leather. Lumber and building materials are generally less active than a year ago, with the volume of building lower than for several years. Demand for seasonable lines of hardware is fairly good. Demand for jewelry is not up to normal, being considerably lower than last year.

STEEL UNCHANGED

There is not much change in industrial operations with the steel industry at not over 80 per cent and some plants showing a slight recession. There has been a slowing up in demand for plate glass, particularly from automobile sources. A slight improvement is noted in the demand for window glass, which, however, continues considerably below the average for this period of the year.

Automobile sales are light and there appears to be a considerable overstock of used cars on the market. Accessory dealers report sales fairly active.

ELECTRICAL LINES

Manufacturers of electrical equipment continue operations at a high rate, and there is considerable activity in radio equipment, although competition is keen and there have been quite a few price reductions during the past week.

Radiator and heating equipment lines show considerable activity, but sanitary equipment sales are somewhat lower than last year. Production of crude oil shows a slight reduction.

There has been a moderate improvement in demand for bituminous coal, but prices continue unsatisfactory to producers. Western Pennsylvania grades of run-of-mine coal are quoted per net ton at mines: $1.25 to $1.75; coking coal $1.50 to $1.75; gas coal $1.65 to $1.75; steam slack 80 cents to 90 cents, and gas slack $1.00 and $1.10.

Collections show no particular improvement, still averaging slow with jobbers.

District Leads In Industrial Growth

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—Of the nine geographical divisions of the United States, the Middle Atlantic area—comprising the states of New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania—showed the largest relative increase in the number of new local industries established during 1926 and 1927.

This fact is revealed in an exhaustive survey of industrial development in the United States and Canada in these two years, made by the policyholders' service bureau of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company in co-operation with the civic development committee of the National Electric Light Association.

Decrease Shown In Commercial Failures

Only three commercial failures took place in Allegheny County last month, according to R. G. Dun and Company. Their liabilities totaled $106,933 and assets $82,350. The Pittsburgh district had 11 failures, with liabilities of $168,669 and assets of $135,337.

In the first 10 months of this year Allegheny County had 46 failures, with liabilities of $702,723 and assets of $305,878. This compared with 55 failures, with liabilities of $768,260 and assets of $390,669 in the same period of 1928.

The Pittsburgh district had 121 failures in the 10 months, with liabilities of $3,357,366 and assets of $1,459,580. This compared with 130 failures, with liabilities of $4,588,339 and assets of $1,823,327, in the corresponding period of 1928.

Remington-Rand Co. Gets French Order

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—Remington-Rand, Inc., has closed a contract with the French government for a large set of tabulating machines for use in the new pension-insurance bureau. The order amounts to $800,000 and is believed to be the largest foreign contract ever made for tabulating machines.

WARD MERGER RESTRAINED

RICHMOND, Nov. 9.—Judge D. Lawrence Groner of United States District Court here today sustained the petition of minority stockholders of Hartman Corporation and issued an injunction restraining that company from merging with Montgomery Ward and Company, Inc., through an exchange of stock.

The restraining motion is for an indefinite time, or until all stockholders of Hartman Corporation shall have come together and agree on one course, at which time the injunction is to be dismissed without cost to either side.

Total Inventories Show No Inflation

Inventories of industrial corporations are not abnormally high, according to a survey made by the Federal Reserve Bank of Cleveland.

The balance sheets of 77 industrial concerns which have published regular semi-annual statements since December 31, 1927, whose activities are diversified enough to be considered representative, and for 36 concerns whose figures are available back to December, 1926, were analyzed. It was found that, though inventories have increased nearly 28 per cent in two and a half years for the 36 concerns, the ratio of inventories to total resources, which was the only comparison possible to make, due to variations in the statements, has actually declined. The low point was reached in June, 1928. During the past fiscal year inventories have grown faster than resources, the increase in the ratio being 3.5 per cent for the year, which is not unusual when the rate of activity that has been experienced is considered.

Junior Chamber Addressed by Harper

The Pittsburgh Academy Junior Chamber of Commerce, at its luncheon on Wednesday, November 6, had as its guest speaker Frank Harper, secretary in charge of publicity of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce.

The junior chamber, an organization composed of the men students of Pittsburgh Academy, meets each Wednesday for luncheon in the Chamber of Commerce dining rooms. Its aim is twofold; to start the student thinking along business lines by bringing him in contact with current business problems, and to overcome the feeling of backwardness and awe that seems to prevail when he is associating with the outstanding men of the business world. Through informal luncheon talks with the various business men of the city, the formal barrier is broken down and at the end of the meeting the student and business man are freely discussing points of current business interest.

Trade Conditions Reported Unsteady

The irregularity of conditions recently commented upon seems to be more in evidence than it was a month ago, according to the Federal Reserve Bank of Cleveland. Business generally is above last year's levels, but declines in several lines have been reported at a time of normal seasonal expansion, and the trend is moderately downward.

In two out of three highly important industries, declines in September from the preceding month were reported. Iron and steel production receded faster in the Fourth District than in other parts of the country because of the decline in automotive requirements. Some orders for railroad steel were placed, but these were not large enough to counteract the declines shown in other lines. Building in September showed an increase of 3 per cent from August, contrary to the decline shown for the country, but is still below 1928 levels. Automobile production declined in September for the fifth consecutive month, and barely exceeded last year's output for that month.

LIBERTY DAIRY MODERNIZES PLANT

New Machinery at Forbes And Boyd Streets Aids Supply of Safe Milk

It is a far cry from the good old days when mother used to put "warm" milk on the evening table to the highly specialized milk of today. When everyone kept at least one cow, no particular attention was paid to the matter of sanitation and pasteurization, but in these modern days the source of the milk supply is often hundreds of miles away, the organization is an immensely large one, bound to observe definite laws and regulations in the handling of its product in order that the health of customers may be safeguarded.

Realizing the tremendous importance of fully protecting the health of customers, the Liberty Dairy Products Corporation has just completed the rehabilitation of the Pittsburgh branch plant at Forbes and Boyd streets with the installation of the most modern machinery and equipment. But the story of the precautions used to safeguard health goes back far beyond the plant for its beginning.

CATTLE TESTED

The entire supply of milk brought into the local plant comes from tuberculin-tested herds on the company's own frams in Western Pennsylvania and Eastern Ohio. Here the best dairy methods are used and very strict rules and regulations are followed in order to insure cleanliness and sanitation. From these farms, the milk is taken to the depots, two of the largest of which are located at Brookville, O., and Somerset, Pa.

All day long, seven days each week and 52 weeks each year, the huge 1,500-gallon glass lined thermostatic tanks haul the milk from these depots into the plants in this city. As soon as a shipment is received here a sample is taken to the laboratory where many tests are made as to the purity and content of the product. When these tests have been made the milk is placed in large cooling vats to await further conditioning.

NEW EQUIPMENT

From these vats the milk goes through the pastuerization process and is then stored and bottled by the latest type of machinery and equipment, the liquid being kept constantly cooled by refrigeration. Every bottle is thoroughly scalded and washed so that the Liberty Dairy Products Corporation delivers to the door of its customer pastuerized milk as free from impurities as it is humanly possible to make it.

The company has always made it a point to keep abreast of the times in methods of handling and equipment. The recent installation of new machinery is but a step in its well ordered program to insure patrons of every possible sanitary precaution in order that the delivered product may be altogether pure.

Over 11,000 homes, 64 schools and 15 hospitals are served by the Liberty Dairy Products Corporation each day from the Forbes street branch plant. From all of the plants in the Pittsburgh district Liberty Dairies supply more than 30,000 families and 3,000 stores.

Glass Distributors Meet in Pittsburgh

The fifteenth annual meeting of the National Glass Distributors Association is to be held on December 3, 4 and 5 at the William Penn Hotel. North Storms, secretary of the association, in the preliminary notice of the event, said:

"Our program committee is arranging a most interesting program for the general sessions which, this year, will be held on two days—December 4 and 5—instead of just one as formerly. Complete details will be announced later.

"On Wednesday evening, December 4, we are to be guests of the Plate Glass Manufacturers Association at a banquet in the Urban room at the William Penn."

ALLEGHENY COUNTY
'Public Improvements Promote Progress'
Convinced that public improvements exert an important influence upon the progress of any community, the Board of County Commissioners of Allegheny County on January 1, 1924, initiated a program of major public works, many of which are already effectively serving the citizens, while others of vital importance are being rapidly brought to completion.
OHIO RIVER BOULEVARD, now under construction, parallels the Ohio River along the hillside for a distance of 4½ miles and provides a scenic artery from the City of Pittsburgh through the Boroughs of Bellevue, Avalon, Ben Avon and Emsworth. At Emsworth it will connect with the Beaver and Camp Horne Roads for traffic west and north. This new improvement will enable quick travel with a minimum of danger, due to the fact that there will be few crossings. It will require eight bridges over the deep ravines. The estimated cost is $3,500,000 and will be completed in about two years.

PLAZA LEASING COMPLETION NEARS

Growth of the Upper Fifth Avenue District Helps Work of Renting Space

Elmer E. Beeck, co-trustee and new owner of the Plaza Office Building at Fifth and Sixth avenues, recently announced the appointment of Fleming & Fleming, Realtors, as renting agents for the building.

Mr. Beeck took title to the building last July and, after making a survey of the rental situation with regard to office space in the newer buildings in Pittsburgh, decided to put W. L. Fleming, the head of this firm, in charge of the building's management, maintenance and renting.

The firm of Fleming & Fleming were the original renting agents for the building, and made a record showing within a few months after its completion by disposing of over 90 per cent of its space to high-grade tenants. Mr. Fleming reports that there is quite a demand for space in the building and predicts that the spring renting season will see it 100 per cent occupied.

TRIANGLE EXTENDED

The erection of the Plaza building marked a new departure in office building location in the downtown triangle. Grant street had been considered the deadline for high-class structures. The erection of the Plaza was followed by the construction of the Grant Building, Koppers Building, William Penn Hotel addition and the American State Bank Building. Many observers now predict that the downtown section will, in the not distant future, be developed as far as Tunnel street.

The widening of Grant street had an important bearing on the building activity at the upper end of the triangle, as did the opening of the new Liberty Bridge. The convenience to the city's main boulevards and railroad stations with less traffic congestion than exists below Grant street has been a feature which has appealed to many. Street car transportation also centers at the corner of Fifth and Sixth avenues and the principle delay to the cars occurs after they have unloaded at this point and are making the loop for the outbound trip.

Pittsburgh office workers, employed in buildings as far down Fifth avenue as Wood street, have been in the habit of walking from this corner to their offices on account of the saving in time. The three parking garages in the vicinity of the Plaza building, as well as the parking lots, make it attractive to those using automobiles to go to and from their work. The three garages have a total capacity of over 1,700 cars.

MODERN DESIGN

The building is distinctive and thoroughly modern in its design and conveniences. Its interior finish is both beautiful and original, offering a pleasant change from the standardized ideas of the past which have resulted in some of the older buildings leaving a cold and unwelcome impression on the visitor. Good light, sanitation and elevator service have been provided for as first essentials in a modern building of this type. One unique feature is that there is but one straight central corridor on each floor, without right or left turns, providing an ideal arrangement whereby every office on the floor is easily and immediately located without loss of time.

The restaurant, occupying the entire basement, owned by the Plaza Restaurant Company, headed by Col. B. L. Succop, and operated by Frank Tracy, with Tracy-Brown's Columbia Recording Orchestra as a regular entertainment feature at the lunch hour and in the evenings, is a very popular part of the Plaza. Elevator service to the restaurant and a well-equipped drugstore opening into the lobby, as well as to Fifth avenue, are conveniences that appeal to the Plaza tenants.

IMPROVEMENTS RUSHED

The improvements, with regard to the addition to the City-County offices, the changes expected at Tunnel street, and the probable removal of the jail, which has been strongly advocated for sometime past, will no doubt be brought about earlier than is generally anticipated, due to the expansion of the Fifth avenue district.

One of the many locations suggested for the Town Hall is the plan advanced by the Golden Triangle Town Hall Association, that the city lease the property of the Pennsylvania Railroad yards, known as the Try street yards, and of the Pittsburgh Terminal Transfer Company, consisting of approximately five acres bounded by Diamond street, Liberty Bridge approach, the Boulevard of the Allies and Forbes street to the property line of the morgue.

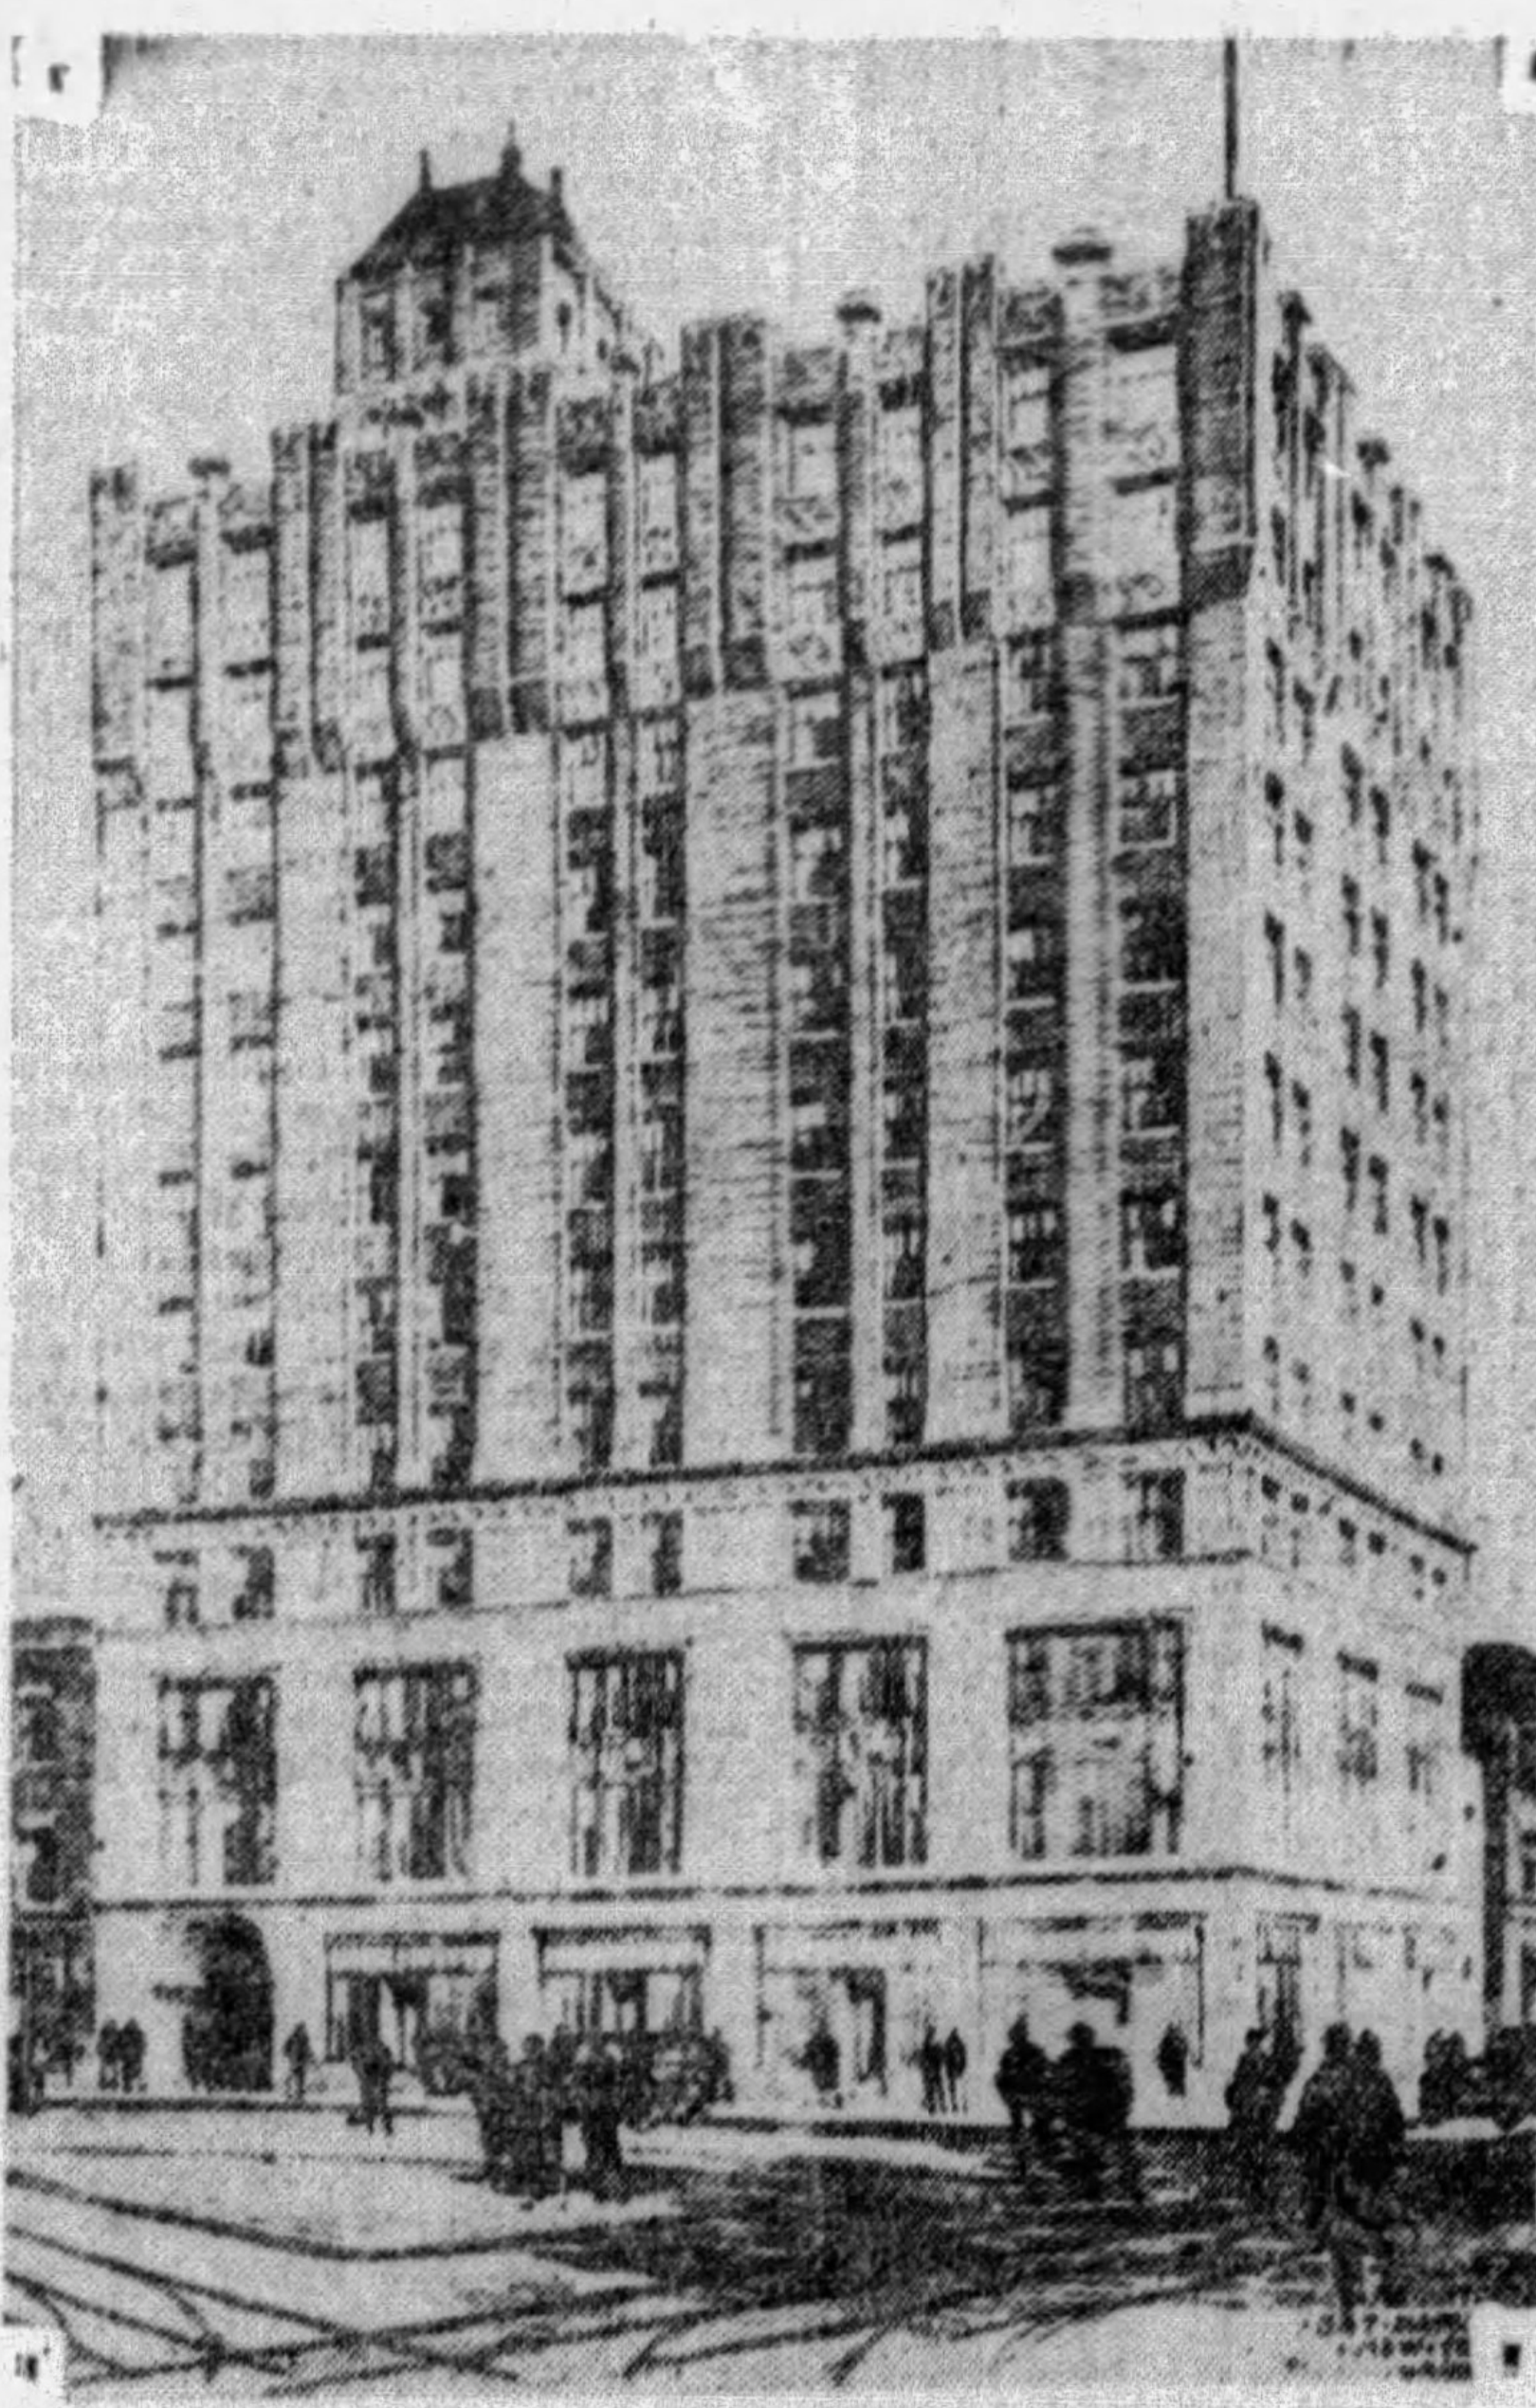
The association proposes that the terminal property be excavated to the Second avenue level and used as a bus terminal, with two sub floors for parking with ramps to Second avenue, Fourth avenue and the bridge approach.

TOWN HALL PLANS

A portion of the first and second floors would be used for the main entrance with elevators and ramps to the auditorium and meeting rooms. The Town Hall would be constructed over the tracks and, by the removal of the jail and securing properties south of Fifth avenue and north of Boyd street; a civic center and public square could be designed of approximately five acres. This is in line with a project of similar nature now under way in St. Louis, Mo. Under this plan it is claimed that more than 5,000 cars could be parked indoors in the town hall and nearby garages, taking care of a crowd of from 15,000 to 20,000 people.

The interest that is being displayed in getting construction started on the new Federal building, the removal of the morgue to its present site to make way for the new County Building, and the attention of the City Planning Commission to improvements in this part of downtown Pittsburgh, indicate that many changes for the better will occur that will increase the building activities above Grant street during the coming year.

SPACE IN DEMAND



PLAZA BUILDING, FIFTH AVENUE AND GRANT STREET

The Plaza Building by next spring will be entirely rented, its managers say and point out that the rapid growth of Fifth avenue east of Grant street has increased the demand for Plaza Building office space. More than ninety per cent is now rented.

Two Industrial Groups Show Gains

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

TWO phases of Pittsburgh's industrial activity are maintaining an active production rate and have prospects for increasing their order books before the end of the year. This is in sharp contrast with the general trend of business which is showing a tendency towards recession.

Producers of electrical equipment have had one of the best years in their history and increased bookings of orders in the third quarter indicate that further expansion in shipments and earnings may take place in the final months of the year. The plant of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company at East Pittsburgh is operating at a high rate and the current production level is expected to continue.

Producers of railroad equipment constitute the other industrial group which has prospects for an increasing rather than a declining rate of activity. The equipment companies have had a much better year than in 1928 but their operations are still far from capacity.

Bookings Gain

THE bookings of new orders by the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company have shown a continuous increase this year. In the first quarter they were $59,852,029. They expanded to $61,332,517 in the second quarter and to $64,440,589 in the third quarter. In line with this growth in the volume of orders actual sales billed have shown a corresponding gain. The company's billings of $45,680,249 in the first quarter increased to $54,247,541 in the second quarter and to $59,716,988 in the third quarter.

In the first nine months of 1929 bookings showed an increase of 29 per cent. Net profit for this period was equivalent to $7.32 a share on 2,666,315 shares of common and preferred stock as compared with $6.03 a share on 2,370,063 shares in the corresponding period of 1928.

Car Inquiry Gains

THE railroad car builders, in addition to unfilled orders, have inquiries for about 11,000 more cars. Railroads which would naturally buy in the Pittsburgh district are expected to place orders for about 10,000 additional cars while the Western carriers may soon enter the market for 15,000 cars. The purchase of about 50,000 cars in all districts is expected by the end of the first quarter of 1930.

All this means more business for the Westinghouse Air Brake Company. Its susidiary, the Union Switch and Signal Company is also expanding its bookings with orders for other types of railroad equipment.

Another local company which has a much improved outlook for the next few months as a result of the increase demand for railroad cars is the Pressed Steel Car Company. A year ago the continuance of this organization's preferred dividend seemed doubtful but the business of the present year and the future prospects now make the preferred dividend seem quite safe.

SUGGESTS FALL AUTO BUYING

The same seasonable advantages are found in the automobile market as in the buying of other important products, according to J. R. Pierpoint, president of Pierpoint Motor Company.

"The best buy at any time is plainly the car that gives the most for what you pay," said Mr. Pierpoint. "The interest and buying of motordum have swung this year with landslide force to Hudson-Essex. On the basis of wide comparison, the public has adjudged the 'Greater Hudson and Essex, the Challenger' as the greatest value on the market, notwithstanding the introduction of many new features in other makes. This opinion is expressed in the biggest business Hudson-Essex ever had.

"To those who have not made a study of the automobile business, some advise can be given as to the best time to purchase an automobile —that time is here.

SPRING DEMAND

"While the merchandising of automobiles doesn't permit any reduction in prices, conditions at this time of the year do afford the buying public many advantages. For instance, during the spring and summer seasons, force of habit and the lure that spring holds for the renewing of all things creates automobile sales to such an extent that the dealer can afford to select his deals. That is he can give you the least amount for the car that you trade in and insist upon many other conditions of the deal entirely advantageous to him.

"At this season of the year the automobile dealer is in a different position. It is a buyer's market—a time when the buyer can insist on the most for his used car and all advantages that the dealer has to offer," said Mr. Pierpoint.

"Then again, the public at this time of the year is buying a proven product. Any changes, if made in next year's automobiles, are simply changes demanded by custom or so trivial in detail that they do not offset the buying advantages obtained now. If the changes happen to be very radical, the present day buyer again has the advantage in a proven product.

NO ADVANTAGE

"In the manufacturing of Hudson-Essex, most improvements are put in the car from time to time, regardless of the season, and, with the great progress made in Automobile Engineering, such changes will continue to be made from time to time for years to come, so that the deferring of your purchase until some later date, amounts to very little in a year's time.

"There are also many other advantages for automobile buyers at this time of the year. The dealer has accumulated many high-grade automobiles, which have been traded in on new cars, and which he has held for price. Most fiscal years end with the old year, and these automobiles are sacrificed before the inventory period, giving the buyer many advantages in high-grade cars, the first years' depreciation of whirh has been taken by original owners," Mr. Pierpoint concluded.

Am. Window Closes Last Cylinder Plant

At midnight last night the American Window Glass Company discontinued blowing operations at its factory at Jeannette. This marked the end of the production of glass by the cylinder process by that company. Contracts are to be let shortly for the installation of the Fourcault process for making sheet glass.

Steel Prices Show Increased Firmness

Finished steel quotations at lower levels are more stabilized, with more resistance shown in shading. Bars, shapes and plates are quoted $1.90 and $1.95, Pittsburgh, the higher figure being named on carload lots. Sheets are firmer, if anything, at recent concessions. The price of $3.50 covers ordinary transactions in galvanized, with $3.40 quoted specially.

Blue annealed sheets are quoted at $2.20 and black sheets $2.75. The revised figure of $2.40 a keg on wire nails is being observed. Plain wire is being quoted at $2.40 to $2.50. Hot rolled strip mills admittedly need business, but for cold rolled descriptions the situation is firmer.

GLASS TRADE INACTIVE

The outstanding features in the flat glass industry seem to be that window glass manufacturers are not booking orders in the amounts anticipated earlier in the year. Orders for plate glass placed with producers are showing a seasonable decline, and the rolled and wired glass situations are in a better state than they were in recent months, according to the National Glass Budget.

The mirror, furniture and jobbing industries continue to buy at about a seasonable pace with the market firm. Manufacturers are putting some glass in their warehouses. For the next two months, or until after the annual automobile show in New York in January, little increased buying of plate glass is anticipated from the automobile trade.

November did not bring with it the hoped-for increased amount of orders for window glass. Orders placed with the producers are smaller than the yearly average in both number and quantity. The year is certain to end as a very unsatisfactory one so far as this commodity is concerned.

Steel Mill Output Gains at Baltimore

BALTIMORE, Nov. 9.—The plant of the Eastern Rolling Mills Company this week is operating at approximately 80 per cent of capacity. A week ago only 50 per cent of the company's machinery was in operation. Increased output this week is due to the placing of orders for immediate delivery.

Retail Trade Gains Slightly for Month

Retail trade, as shown by the sales of 60 large department stores throughout the Fourth Federal Reserve District, was 0.1 per cent larger in September than it was in 1928. Comparatively large increases shown in Toledo and Cleveland counteracted the declines shown in all other large cities. For the first three quarters of the year, sales have exceeded the same period of 1928 by 3.2 per cent.

Sales of clothing, both in the department stores and in the wearing-apparel shops, were in smaller volume in September than they were a year ago

Grant and Seventh
Operators of retail stores should study the possibilities of Grant Street and Seventh Avenue. The Koppers Building is an accomplished fact. The Gulf Building will be occupied by May 1, 1932. The New Federal Building will be started next year. This means that the three of the four corners in this location will be occupied by magnificent buildings by May 1, 1932. Automobile and pedestrian traffic in this area is increasing rapidly. The district has adequate parking facilities. It is well served by street car and bus lines. The Pennsylvania suburban trains haul a large number of prospective customers daily. There is a spendid opportunity to secure excellent locations for retail stores in this district, which will be represented by Pittsburgh's finest buildings.

COUNTRY PAYS FOR FALLACIES IN SLUMP

Threat to Tax Corporate Surpluses Seen Behind Effort to Hide Assets

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER.

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—In times of liquidation, the country pays a price for its economic fallacies, which in periods of boom are seemingly overlooked.

The time has come for clear thinking in Washington about economic legislation. The recurrent threat in Congress to tax corporate surpluses lies behind much of the unsoundness in the accounting methods of numerous industrial corporations, which have been hiding assets and earnings in their financial statements for the purpose of evading threatened punitive taxes on thrift.

If the Federal government taxes corporate income, that is enough. There is no need for going a step further and insisting that the corporation promptly distribute earnings to stockholders. The income, which is distributed to small stockholders, is not subject to double taxation, for dividends are exempt from the normal income tax. However, dividends which go to large stockholders are subject to surtaxes. And politicians have rankled over the fact that multi-millionaires, who dominated large companies, like the Standard Oil group, were holding down dividends in order to keep down their personal income taxes.

ENCOURAGES DECEPTION

The threat that in time accumulated surpluses would be subject to punitive taxation has not resulted in a rush to make unwarrantably high cash distributions to shareholders, but has instead encouraged deceptive accounting, which has promoted mystery stock markets, exaggerating the advance during periods of bull excitement and tending to intensify the setback during interludes of liquidation.

Another attempt of Congress to rewrite the law of economics has to do with the characterization in the internal revenue act of realized capital gains as income. In England, the law is more logical, and differentiates between appreciation of capital assets and income. For example, the British investment trusts, which choose to regard trading profits as capital gains, do not pay an income tax on them. But, by the same token, may not distribute such profits to shareholders, but must set them up as reserves against future losses and other contingencies.

The effect of high taxes on capital gains in the United States was artificially to discourage profit taking in stocks—and it thus contributed to the exaggeration of the sustained advance, which this fall has been so ruthlessly deflated. If profit taking had not been artificially deferred, the movement up and down would in all likelihood have been somewhat less violent.

BANK PLEA RECALLED

Before the break, the National City Bank, in a special bulletin effectively called attention to this situation and recommended:

"Immediate action by Congress to remove the income tax on capital gains on the sale of securities, and at the same time, of course, eliminate the tax credit resulting from capital losses. In this tax lies, we believe, one of the prime causes of the present difficulties. It has created artificiality in the security markets, in the credit structure and in interest rates. It has introduced a scarcity value in stocks that have spelled high prices and it has created an enormous increase in the loan account.

"Many stocks have increased in value in no small part because holders are unwilling to sell and pay the tax liabilities incurred, even though prices may have gone to excessive levels.

"Mr. Mellon has frequently discussed this tax and pointed out its effect in postponing the taking of profits wherever possible, while at the same time placing a premium on the acceptance of losses in order that they may be charged against income and so reduce the amount of tax liability."

Unless industrial corporations voluntarily reform their accounting methods, they may in time be required by public regulation to do so. Unquestionably, as a group the regulated railroads issue more informative financial reports than the unregulated industrial enterprises. Here is a magnificent opportunity for the Chamber of Commerce of the United States to render a service to business and to investors in setting up better standards for balance sheets and income accounts of corporations. During the current stress, the habit of issuing prompter and fuller reports of good earnings is likely to grow.

BANK MERGER HIT

The favorable aspect of the further liquidation in brokers' loans this week to the lowest level of the year lies in the fact that the New York banks, which increased their loans last week by more than $900,000,000 to offset withdrawals by bootleg lenders and out-of-town banks, were able to cut down loans by $549,000,000 against a total reduction of $656,000,000. The further reduction in bootleg and out-of-town bank loans was moderate, indicating that the stampede on the part of less responsible lenders to get out was over.

Human nature is much the same in high and in low places. The recent collapse in prices made a pending deal disadvantageous to the absorbing bank in a proposed merger and favorable to the stockholders of the other bank. Accordingly, 82 per cent of the stockholders of the bank that would have benefitted, voted to ratify the deal, whereas the other bank reported that only 49 per cent of the stock was represented at its meeting, where two thirds was required for a quorum.

Exchanges Close For Special Holiday

Securities markets throughout the country are closed today in accordance with the program of the New York Stock Exchange in curtailing trading hours on that institution.

The stupdendous volume of trading the past three weeks has overtaxed the personnel and machinery of the financial community and the shorter hours were obligatory, the exchange governors stated.

During the coming week the stock markets will operate from 10 a. m. to 1 p. m., Eastern standard time, the same schedule as was observed on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of this week. Next Saturday the exchanges will be closed all day. Customary trading hours are from 10 to 3 on week days and 10 to 12 on Saturday.

The coming week's schedule calls for a total of 15 trading hours as against 14 hours this week. Last Tuesday the markets were closed all day owing to the election day holiday.

The Pittsburgh Stock Exchange and some of the other interior exchanges will be closed all day Monday, Armistice Day. The New York Stock Exchange and Curb will observe the occasion by a two-minute suspension at noon.

Banks here will also be closed on Monday. New York banks and the New York Clearing House will be open Monday, as it is not a legal holiday in that state.

Commodity markets are open as usual today.

Sinclair Oil Cuts Price of Gasoline

CHICAGO, Nov. 9.—The Sinclair Oil Company announced a two-cent per gallon cut in the price of gasoline effective Monday in the Chicago territory.

The reduction, bringing the price down to 15 cents, plus the three-cent state tax, came as a surprise move to other companies. Standard Oil Company officials were to meet today to take action toward similar reduction.

Big Vote Machine Orders Follow Elections

Officials of Automatic Registering Machine Company, manufacturers of the only voting machine now in use in the United States, state that practically all the leading counties of Pennsylvania, including the cities of Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Scranton and Erie, voted by a substantial majority in favor of using voting machines. Requirements of these counties alone would keep the company's plant at Jamestown, New York, at capacity for over a year.

Officials stated they had received two substantial orders from Los Angeles and Florida, the Los Angeles' order being for additional machines to those now in use in practically all districts of the city.

Stock Exchange Topics

Unconfirmed Rumors Have Had Much to Do With Stock Selling.

UNCONFIRMED rumors have had much to do with selling in recent sessions. Many wild reports have been circulated and these have disturbed longs so that selling came not only from speculators but also from investors who were taking their stocks out of strong boxes and throwing them on the market at a time when the demand was comparatively limited except at sharply lower levels. So far as can be learned, there has been no foundation for the rumors which have been heard. Normally when the market is reacting sharply without any outside reason the rumor mongers get to work with a vim and experience has been that the selling at such times is usually weak in character.

Of course the equilibrium of the street has been entirely upset by the market in the past two weeks. Although Wall street observers had been fearing a decline of large proportions, they were not prepared for the abrupt crash which came. Until all the weak situations have been cleared up, there is no reason to expect anything more than technical rallies. Good progress has been made in commission houses in recent days, and the abbreviated sessions, with the closing today, may see affairs in better shape again.

IT is noted that buying advices are not heard around the "street." Conservative observers are strongly urging clients against following up stocks on the advances and recommend that investors who have the cash place orders in the standard stocks at levels slightly above the previous lows on the current movement on the theory that these levels will again be approached. They are strongly in favor of continuing the policy of reducing long commitments whenever the market is having a fairly good recovery.

Much more interest is now being shown by students in the probable yield to be obtained in investments. This tendency is expected to spread particularly with credit in liberal supply at comparatively low rates. Some bonds and preferred stocks are likely to be favored by investors because they are now selling at a higher yield than money. Eventually, when conditions are more settled, it is possible that some of the high-grade common stocks will receive the attention of investors.

A SURVEY conducted by one large investment banking firm develops the theory that Thursday's rally was not occasioned by the appearance of strong banking support, but rather came as a natural development. It is contended that prior to Thursday's opening several instances of distress were duly relieved, and more over that large blocks of stock had been pressing for sale on Wednesday, such pressure was subsequently relieved by private negotiations. Bankers consulted feel that a turn for the better has come, but hold that high priced favorites are likely to settle down to an investment basis, while many of the so-called secondary stocks now selling to yield abnormal returns will be more likely to be favored in any advance that may develop.

The tendency of the market yesterday toward renewed reaction following its spectacular upturn Thursday was generally construed as indicating that considerable selling of support stock was being negotiated. The general run of pivotal shares made a fairly good stand in the first half hour or so, but then showed a tendency to fall away again, dropping back in most instances to levels under the final prices of Thursday. While there was evidence of pressure of support stock on the market, it was indicated also that no effort was being made to press such offerings aggressively. On the contrary, when it became apparent that such selling was seemingly too much for the market to stand, pressure appeared to lift and frequent rallies were the result.

Kansas Pipe Line Co. Sales on Increase

CHICAGO, Nov. 9.—Missouri Kansas Pipe Line Company reports natural gas sales for month of October of 400,000,000 cubic feet. This is a record for the organization and a 200 per cent increase over the same month in 1928, when sales were 118,747,000 cubic feet. The American Pipe Line Company, a subsidiary of Cities Service, was the largest user of Missouri-Kansas Gas in October, the latter organization delivering 185,000,000 cubic feet to the American pipe line at Kansas City.

Carbide Profits May Set Record

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—The fourth quarter normally is the most profitable with Union Carbide and Carbon Corporation and in 1928 the last three months accounted for $10,947,900, or roughly a third of the total net income of $30,577,382 earned in that year. On that basis and assuming that the last quarter of 1929 continues to show 23 per cent gain in net as realized in the third quarter over the same period last year, net in the last three months should approximate $13,000,000. This would indicate total net profit for 1929 of around $37,000,000, equal to about $4.50 a share on 8,313,818 shares outstanding during the greater part of the year and to more than $4 a share on 8,970,000 approximate shares outstanding following recently completed financing.

MARKET SLOWS BUYING OF STEEL

Curtailment of Orders, Due to Stock Collapse, Regarded as Temporary

By B. E. V. LUTY.

In the last week there has been a noticeable curtailment in the volume of current buying of steel, attributable to occurrences in the stock market.

Part of the total decrease in steel buying is merely a continuance of the downward trend previously observed. It is important to remember that steel activity was already decreasing, and avoid ascribing all the decrease to the stock market. There is a means of checking this point by observing steel production in October. The break in the stock market began on the afternoon of Wednesday, October 23, and would not affect the month's production.

TREND REVERSED

From September to October steel production decreased 7.4 per cent whereas in the preceding four months there was a total decrease of only 7.6 per cent, or an average of 1.9 per cent a month. The larger decrease September to October is made more impressive by the fact that according to precedent it was a time for seasonal increase. In four of the last five years there was an increase September to October, 1927 with its poor second half constituting the exception. Last year the increase was 3.8 per cent.

FAIR BACKLOGS

The average rate of Bessemer and open-hearth steel ingot production in October was 85.21 per cent, against the peak rate of 99.59 per cent last May. A continuance of the September to October rate of decrease would make the rate at the close of this week about 80 per cent. In view of various reports the actual rate is probably somewhat nearer 75 per cent. The Pittsburgh district is fully up to the general average of the entire industry. While some of the smaller Pittsburgh district mills are at low rates, the leading interest is well above the general average. It has a large backlog of structural business and a fair backlog in plates while it is now running well on rails.

CONSUMERS' STOCKS LOW

The recent curtailment in general or current buying is regarded as largely temporary. For a time at least steel consumption proceeds much the same as if there had been no break in the stock market. Forward engagements had been very limited and consumers and jobbers have practically no stocks. Accordingly steel sellers do not feel that the dullness of the last week will prevail to its full extent in the next few weeks.

To picture the immediate influence on the steel trade of the stock market's break as relatively small is by no means to argue that the long range influence will be small. There are substantial reasons for suspecting that instead of the influence wearing off it will rather be felt with cumulative force as time passes.

SENTIMENT A FACTOR

With respect to the change in steel, comparing conditions since the middle of last year to date with conditions from the present to the middle of next year, there is a double influence. In the past period the buoyancy of the stock market stimulated steel as for instance in the buying of automobiles and in construction work financed by issuing common shares at prices which previously would have appeared fanciful. For the ensuing period not only is this support withdrawn but an unfavorable sentimental influence is brought to bear. It was reasonably certain, however, that the special bulge in steel demand, dating from the middle of last year, was bound to come off even if the stock market stayed up.

RAILROAD EARNINGS

While the fact is usually emphasized that hand-to-mouth buying is practiced in steel generally, as has been the case for six years with occasional slight intermissions, there is quite a volume of backlog business on mill books as a matter of necessity. There is such a business in rails, freight car material and standard material. Already rail production has mounted to a very fair rate and the situation as to freight cars is somewhat better than recently appraised. As to structural material it is now well known the fabricating shops are well booked for from four to six months.

Lonsdale Claims Business Is Sound

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 9.—General business conditions in the United States are on a sound basis, John G. Lonsdale, president of the American Bankers' Association, said. There is plenty of money available at a reasonable rate, Lonsdale said, but declined to comment directly on the stock market situation, saying various committees of the association are now studying trade and business problems and it would be discourteous for him to anticipate their reports.

Calm Restored; Stock Is Ideal Christmas Gift

By B. C. FORBES

IT WOULD be a good thing if the stock market took one more "drop;" a drop from the front page.

Yesterday's calm session suggests the hurricane has passed.

WHAT wonderful Christmas gifts stocks purchased at current prices would prove! Unlike other gifts, they probably would be worth far more by the following Christmas. Not a few issues already have recovered 50 per cent from their panic-bottom. Some already have doubled in market value. Recoveries of 25 per cent are very common.

It is a poor stock, in my opinion, which will not net bargain-buyers at least 25 per cent within a very short period.

One group of stocks purchased by the writer during the Tuesday panic actually showed a profit of more than 30 per cent within 48 hours.

SAMUEL UNGERLEIDER, member of the New York Stock Exchange, sends out this bulletin:

"It is the judgment of our statistical organization that holders of bonds and preferred stocks, which return only a limited yield, will do well to sell these securities now, and purchase in their place the common stocks of the United States."

ONE oil company president sent this telegram to stockholders when the storm arose:

"We hope our stockholders will not unnecessarily liquidate because of panicky condition of stock market, as conditions within the industry and the company are better than for a long time. Our stock is a sound investment at much higher levels."

IF THE writer had had any doubt as to the widespreadness of the public's interest in the stock market it would have been very effectively removed by the response accorded a Fox-Hearst "talkie" of his which has been appearing throughout the country, counselling investment—for cash—in choice stocks now on the bargain counter. Many men and women of modest means who never before owned a security have been attracted to the market by all the newspaper advertising the panic conditions have been receiving.

While many small people who were speculators, rather than investors, have been wiped out, the great increase in genuine investment recruits will go far to maintain the total number of security owners in this country. Well-selected stocks acquired during panic have always yielded profits in the past. They cannot fail to do so this time.

WELL, the "new era" so gleefully discovered and proclaimed by amateur economists of speculative proclivities did not last long and came to a very painful end.

The Durants and the Cuttens who talked glibly about prospective brokers' loans of 10 billions or 12 billions or still more billions being nothing to worry about, and the still greater number of blind optimists who cocksurely predicted that the stock market could never experience an old-fashioned collapse, sadly miscued. Stocks galore have tumbled to half-price or less and brokers' loans, instead of continuing to mount, have shriveled up almost two billions since the middle of October.

It is to be hoped that the lesson learned at such cost will prove lasting.

THE column printed here the other day warning against unwise price-cutting has brought letters and telegrams urging the need for spreading the message throughout the entire business world, and asking permission to reprint it.

Such permission is hereby granted.

The president of one large cement company, after mentioning that he had sent the column to "presidents and sales managers of the 90 cement makers in the United States," says:

"Ordinarily, a heavy volume of business is not accompanied by a reduction in price, but in the cement industry things are done differently. For instance, shipments of cement in the United States for August were 23,000,000 barrels, the greatest month's business ever recorded. The figure was 3,000,000 barrels greater than July of this year and 2,000,000 barrels greater than August last year. In spite of this fact, due to a combination of causes, the price structure collapsed in August and reductions in price became effective in practically all territory east of the Rocky Mountains, these reductions averaging about 25 cents per barrel, meaning a reduction in the net price received from about $1.50 to $1.30, the latter figure being one which will enable only a few companies to make fair earnings, most plants earning nothing or less."

This is exactly the kind of action industries should resist the temptation to indulge in at this time. Profitless business does not create but kills prosperity. And now is a time to guard vigilantly against taking any action calculated to injure business and employment.

WE CAN keep prosperity if we keep our heads.

VIEWS TRAFFIC SYSTEM HERE

Here to study the traffic lighting system, which he said was the best he had seen in his travels around the United States, M. O. Eldridge, assistant director of traffic of Washington, D. C., stated in an interview yesterday that he felt the Capital could learn something from Pittsburgh. Eldridge spent the day touring the city with Burton W. Marsh, traffic engineer, and also talked with Director James M. Clark.

"The alternate synchronization method is employed in Washington," said Eldridge, "but I believe Pittsburgh is getting better results from her system, the limited progressive method. Yours is more flexible, permitting of meeting varied conditions, according to the intersection."

One condition in Washington of which Eldridge was particularly proud, he declared, was the fact that the city on the Potomac enjoys a fatality record second to Boston, with other cities in the 100,000 class trailing.

ERIE PRESSES FIRE INQUIRY

ERIE, Pa., Nov. 9.—The Erie County Board of Commissioners launched an investigation into the mysterious fire in the basement of the court house which threatened to destroy the ballot boxes containing the records in the heated councilmanic election here. The proposal was made by Charles R. Davis, chairman of the board, and he was joined in the action by Commissioner Joseph Rogan.

The officials plan to summon everyone who has knowledge of the blaze, and it is believed that the investigation, among other things, will result in a definite working schedule for court house janitors so that someone will be on the job at all hours.

The official count of the ballots were concluded yesterday afternoon and showed that Theodore Eichhorn, Republican, had defeated Edward J. Allen, Democrat and Voters' Civic League, by a margin of 65 votes. Returns announced on election night gave Eichhorn a margin of 33 votes.

President to See Navy Battle Georgetown

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—President Hoover and Mrs. Hoover will occupy a box on the sidelines at Annapolis today to watch the Navy football team play Georgetown University of Washington in a game of keen sectional interest.

The President and his party will motor to Annapolis, reaching the academy grounds at about 2 o'clock. They will go to the home of the superintendent, Rear Admiral Robison, for a brief reception after which they will motor to the stadium.

As the President enters the reservation he will be greeted with a 21-gun salute from a battleship anchored in the harbor.

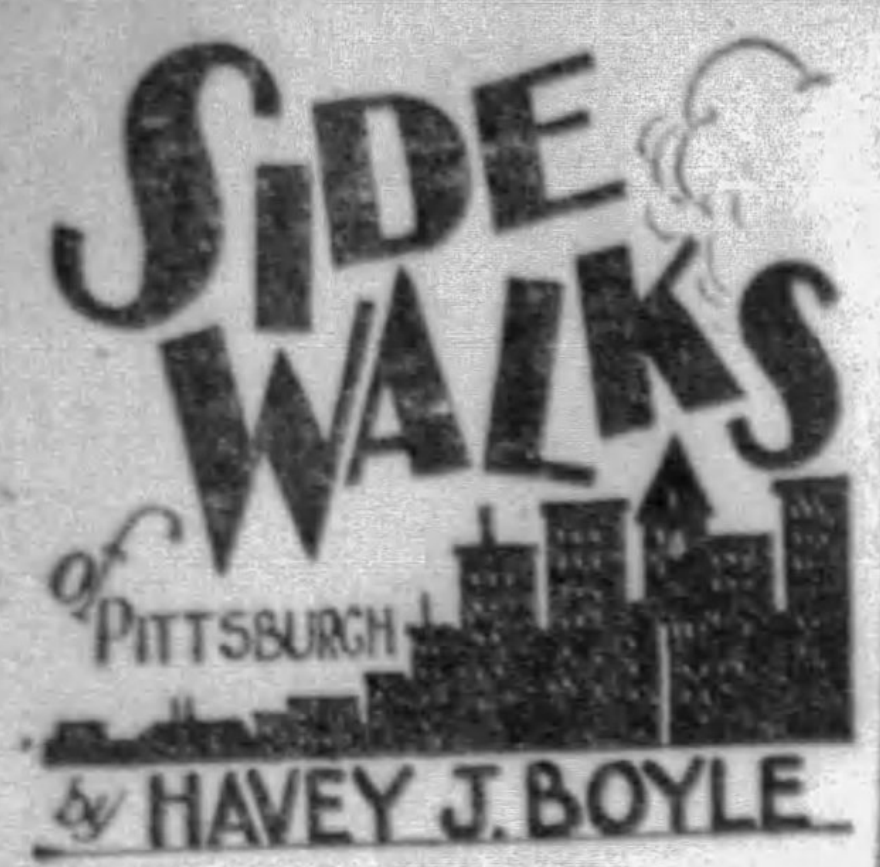
News From Motion Picture Studios and Local Theater Notes



SIDEWALKS of PITTSBURGH

by HAVEY J. BOYLE

A HIGH-POWERED promoter who was known as "Brooksey" worked three Pittsburghers for sums ranging from $500 to $1,500. One man recovered his money. He was the man who was "taken" temporarily for $500. The man who was fleeced and recovered his money by a ruse as well-planned as the scheme that first loosened him from the $500 is a well-known Pittsburgh lawyer. His name, Hiram D. Hirsh.

Havey J. Boyle.

The story of how the clever stranger manipulated his victims out of their hard cash is a long-drawn out affair in all its details. Briefly, he established himself as a man of integrity and honor. Even references he gave were looked up and reports coming back indorsed the stranger. One such reference, for example, was a former member of a president's cabinet.

AFTER, however, suspicions were raised, Mr. Hirsh figured his plan to get his money back. The stranger, it seemed, wanted in addition to the $500 a mere $5,000 more. When he asked for the $5,000 Mr. Hirsh was certain he was dealing with a highbinder. He, however, played the part of an innocent. He was figuring how he was going to get his $500 back, with no intention of giving up $5,000 more. When "Brooksey" wanted $5,000 more, Mr. Hirsh took him to a bank and in his hearing arranged to get the $5,000. Hirsh then told "Brooksey" to come back at 2 o'clock and at the appointed time both would go to the bank and get the $5,000.

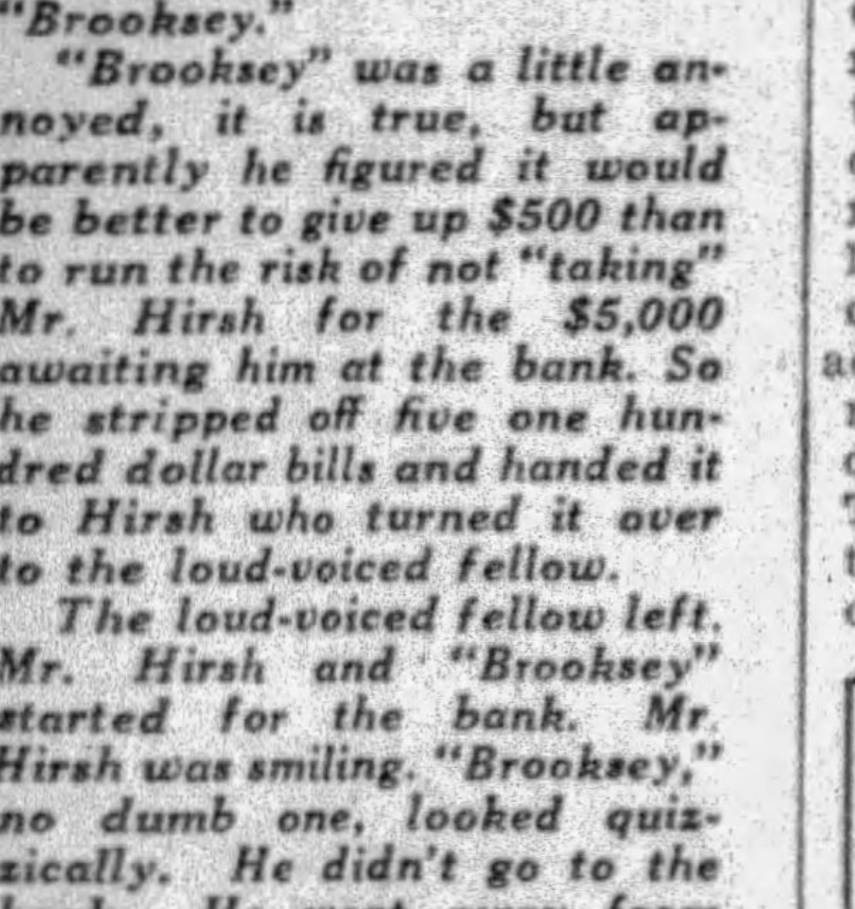
"Brooksey" entered Mr. Hirsh's office at 2 o'clock. As he walked in he heard a loud-voiced man berating Mr. Hirsh.

"I tell you I can't give you the $500 now. I don't have it," said Mr. Hirsh.

"Well, I won't be put off with that sort of talk," said the other. "I'll stay here until nightfall and I'll come back every day and hound you in your office," said the angry one.

"Brooksey," listening, was getting impatient. It was time almost to go to the bank to get that five grand and here was a loud-voiced fellow threatening to disrupt his appointment with Mr. Hirsh.

"But I have a date and I have to leave here now," said Mr. Hirsh.



"You ain't going to leave without me," said the loud-voiced one. "I'll follow you wherever you go."

"For Heavens' sake," exclaimed Mr. Hirsh in weary disgust, at the same time appealing by look and gesture to "Brooksey."

"Brooksey" was a little annoyed, it is true, but apparently he figured it would be better to give up $500 than to run the risk of not "taking" Mr. Hirsh for the $5,000 awaiting him at the bank. So he stripped off five one hundred dollar bills and handed it to Hirsh who turned it over to the loud-voiced fellow.

The loud-voiced fellow left. Mr. Hirsh and "Brooksey" started for the bank. Mr. Hirsh was smiling. "Brooksey," no dumb one, looked quizzically. He didn't go to the bank. He went away from there. An hour later Mr. Hirsh's friend, the loud-voiced stranger, returned and handed back the $500.

RUSSELL GLEASON GETS LEAD IN "ALL QUIET ON THE WESTERN FRONT"

By DOROTHY HERZOG

(Copyright, 1929, by Premier Syndicate)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 9.

ROGER DAVIS, the sultan of screams, topped the classics when he sped a wire to Mayor Jimmy Walker, of New York—just re-elected again by a landslide vote: "Congratulations," wired Roger, "On New York Renewing Your Option!"

These ancient ears leaned Universal-wards and heard that Russell Gleason has been borrowed from Pathe to portray the lead in "All Quiet on the Western Front." Russell is under contract to Pathe and for a lad of his 21 years—or is it only 20?—Is a humdinger. Director Lewis Milestone and George Zukor suddenly set their hearts on young Gleason playing this beaucoup important role. Negotiations were entered into and all that is necessary now to iron bound matters, via the dotted line is signatures.

Jimmy Gleason

As for Jimmy Gleason, Russell's pop, Jimmy settles back and reckons as how he'll be taking up golf pretty soon and letting Russell support him and the Missus in the style to which they can easily become accustomed.

He was a thirty-second cousin, or something as near, to the W. K. producer. The sundry sections of the family back in the hinterland pooled sufficient savings to send him to Hollywood with a letter of introduction to the producer. The producer read the letter. He gave young hopeful the once-over.

"You think you can write stories, do you?"

"Yessir."

"All right. You go to work. But remember," impressively, "the first good story you write, off the lot you're kicked!"

Janet Asks 28 So Cook Leaves

MR. AND MRS. LYDEL PECK (Janet Gaynor, to be sure) have leased a home in Beverly Hills. T'other eve., it being the premiere of Janet's and Charlie Farrell's flick, "Sunny Side Up," Janet decided to give a li'l dinner party. The cook was told there would be 28 guests. The cook promptly packed up and walked out!

Janet Gaynor.

But why Janet Gaynor and Charlie Farrell in such a soaked-in-sugar musical comedy story? Janet is not quite as miscast as Charlie. But enough so to cause sighs.

This department from now on is plugging for a Zane Grey musical comedy, with horses trained a la the Tiller Girls and trees and rocks coming through as choruses for the tenor-voiced hero and contralto-voiced heroine duets. If there be justice, we shall gamble the most on it.

STYLE REELS

By HOWARD GREER.

Dorothy Mackaill appreciates the figured moires and taffetas which are a feature of the new season's collections. One of her more formal evening gowns of shell pink taffeta printed in a flowery design of deep rose and gray, has the moulded bodice extending well below the hips. Surmounting a circular skirt are two small ruffles, adjusted like double peplums. The ruffles as well as the hem of the dress are bound in pale pink satin. Two triangular cutouts give a new touch to either side of the V decolletage.

JAPANESE VISIT CITY MONDAY

Twenty-five Japanese business men will spend two days in Pittsburgh next week as part of their tour of the United States. They are members of the Industrial Naturalization Association and will arrive here Monday morning.

During their stay they will have their headquarters in the Hotel Schenley. Their programs for Monday and Tuesday include visits to local manufacturing plants. The leader of the party is Salsa Nakagawa, ex-vice minister of the Japanese Imperial Government railway, and executive director of the Japan tourist bureau.

M'CANN'S BUYS IN EAST END

McCann & Co., retail grocers, are planning a new East Liberty store for the northwest corner of North Highland avenue and Broad street. Agreements have been signed for purchase of the property.

Construction work will not be started before the expiration of the present leases, the longest of which has one year to run. The deal is the second step in the expansion program of the company, the first being the start on the new McCann building in the downtown block bounded by Ferry street, Diamond street, Delray street and Fourth avenue.

The East Liberty site was purchased from Roger E. Loughney for slightly more than $250,000. The lot fronts 80 feet on Highland avenue and 200 feet on Broad street. It includes a two-story brick building with eight stores and four apartments. The sale was closed through the Porter & MacDowell Co.

The deal also marks the further expansion of the East Liberty business district in North Highland avenue. This movement was noted early in the year when Sears, Roebuck & Co. selected a site for their new store on the east side of North Highland avenue between Station and Rodman streets.

Daisytown Man Cut Seriously in Brawl

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., Nov. 9.—Arthur Gandy, 26, of Daisytown, near here, suffered severe lacerations of the chest and arms when cut during a brawl. He was treated at the local hospital.

Men to Hear Taylor

With today's show of "Married Love," in the Gayety, the first week of Dr. M. Sayle Taylor's return engagement comes to an end. Today is the last show for "women only." Opening Monday, the second week, will be for "men only," running continuously from 1 p. m. to 11 p. m. daily.

Camera Question Box

(The Sun-Telegraph's "Camera Question Box" each day will ask a question of public interest to Pittsburghers and will photograph those interviewed.)

Today's question: Should Pittsburgh increase its police force?

MINNIE STANDISH, 506 North avenue, Millvale, sales clerk: "The present force is adequate, but I think some good looking ones could be put on downtown. The officers are efficient but none is an Adonis as far as masculine beauty is concerned. I can see no reason why additions should be made unless they are put into the outlying districts. What a lot of them need is a little more courtesy."

Minnie Standish

JOSEPH SIMON, 112 Dinwiddie street, salesman: "Yes, it should. We need more officers—both in town and in the outlying districts. Several additions should be made at night time even in the downtown. It seems to be pretty hard to find a 'cop' downtown at nights if you happen to want one. A stranger who wants to ask directions at night must stop a pedestrian when he can't find an officer. This is bad business. It should be remedied. Cops should be stationed at strategic points."

Joseph Simon

GEORGE FOGGIN, Aspinwall, student: "The present force is below par, especially in a crisis. Last Saturday's traffic jam at the Ohio State-Pitt game was proof. In a congestion the officers don't know what to do. From the standpoint of efficiency in apprehending criminals and fugitives the department doesn't need much improvement. City cops here are brave, with but few exceptions."

George Foggin

MARGARET FITZGERALD, Keystone street, saleslady: "The present force is O. K. The officers know their duty. I can't see any reason why the department should be increased unless there is an emergency. If a crime wave broke out here, as in Chicago and New York, I believe the 'cops' and detectives could stop it quickly."

Margt. Fitzgerald

JAMES MORRIS, 83 Bigelow street, executive: "We need more police in the outlying districts and residential sections. The force is sufficient downtown. They care for motor jams and speed up traffic. When protection is needed it is hard to find. There are too few officers in dimly-lighted sections. Night pedestrians would feel safer in those districts if they knew they were properly patroled."

James Morris

EDWARD SETH, 1737 Buena Vista street, news vendor: "We have enough police now. They all do their duty and keep peace in Pittsburgh. You never hear any scandal. The blue coats are courteous and will go out of their way to help a stranger. They get a lot of razzing for inefficiency at times but they don't deserve it."

Edward Seth

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Nov. 9.

People were just about getting over this crazy epidemic of dieting when along come this stock market and drove 'em all back on it again.

All the big financiers and writers are saying "good values are worth as much as they ever were," but that's the trouble, nobody knows what they ever were worth.

To make things look prosperous every company is trying to declare a dividend, and they will do it too if they can sell enough stock to declare it on.

One thing I like about Senator Bingham, he didn't say "I did it for the wife and kiddies," he just said, "I did it for the poor manufacturers of Connecticut."

Yours, WILL.

BOOK 'PORGY' FOR NIXON RETURN

"Porgy," a Theater Guild production, comes to the Nixon Monday for a return engagement. The drama, seen here last season, presents a phase of Negro life. Charleston is the setting.

The Marx Brothers come to the Alvin Monday in their latest buffoonery, "Animal Crackers." Seats are now on sale at the box office.

"The Rose of Picardy" will be presented in the Pitt next week by the George Sharp Players. It is heralded as a romance of the war in France.

COLLEGE PICTURE

If Sam Wood doesn't like the story of "So This Is College," the new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer talking picture which he directed, and which comes to the Penn, Monday, November 11, the fault is his own. For Wood is author of this talking-singing-dancing feature, as well as director.

George Bancroft is supported by Esther Ralston, Warner Oland, Dorothy Revier and others in his latest production "The Mighty," current in the Stanley. On the stage Dick Powell is presenting "On Parade."

Ina Claire, stage comedienne, who recently married John Gilbert, comes to the Enright today in her first moving picture production, "The Awful Truth." It is an all-talking film. Jay Mills presents a dancing revue, "Step This Way," on the stage.

R. K. O. PREMIERE

Gus Arnheim and his Cocoanut Grove Ambassadors, now in Paris, play in the night club sequences of "Street Girl," Radio Pictures' screen musical romance, which opens in the Sheridan Square today as the first feature in that theater under Radio-Keith-Orpheum management. Betty Compson has the feminine lead.

Victor Graff, former master of ceremonies in the Sheridan Square, opens an engagement as M. C. on the Harris stage this week. The film feature is Laura La Plante in "Hold Your Man."

"The Virginian," with Gary Cooper in the title role, is the current feature in the Grand.

REVUE'S THIRD WEEK

Good luck talismans are worn in Hollywood. Anita Page, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer player, who appears in "The Hollywood Revue," which enters a third week in the Aldine Monday, wears a pair of "charm" bracelets given her by a fortune teller. They consist of gold and silver wire held together by gold bands.

"Social Maids," burlesque show, will be next week's attraction in the Academy.

OUT OF THE PAST

Gloria Swanson, visiting the old Essanay Studio in Chicago, where she started her film career for $10 a week 14 years ago, recalls the one-reel thrillers of those days in this scene at "The Old Homestead" with Lionel West.

MOVIES TAKE TALK TO SEA

Sea-going telephone poles, floating on end on the open sea, solved for Paramount technicians the problem of recording water scenes in Nancy Carroll's first starring picture, "Flesh of Eve."

Several of the more important scenes take place on the deck of a yacht, involving action between Miss Carroll and Richard Arlen, her leading man. It was obvious that the microphones should be on the boat above the players, and also that Paramount's huge and costly sound truck, a complete recording laboratory on wheels, should remain ashore.

The experts solved the problem by mounting short poles on floating rafts, tying them together to form a string that stretched from shore to far at sea. The wires that carried Miss Carroll's and Arlen's voices as they spoke their lines were stretched between these floating poles and perfect results were obtained.

"Flesh of Eve," directed by William Wellman, is the first successful attempt at the making of an all-talking film on the open ocean.

The company went on location to an island off the coast of Southern California.

Attack on Prince In Sound Pictures

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—Remarkable sound pictures showing the recent attempt to kill Crown Prince Humbert, of Italy, are in the current issues of Hearst Metrotone News and Fox Movietone News.

The sound of the shot aimed at Prince Humbert as he was about to lay a wreath on the tomb of the unknown soldier in Brussels is heard. There is a moment of tense silence and then the camera catches the stampede of the people.

UNBEATEN TEAMS LIKELY TO SURVIVE

THE extent to which today's football games might reduce the gradually narrowing field left in the running for the national intercollegiate championship was one subject of speculation among the gridiron fans as they awaited the outcome of the contests scheduled for this afternoon in various parts of the country.

Frank Carideo

Up to today, the list showed eight teams remaining that had not been defeated nor tied, these being Pitt and Cornell in the East; Western Maryland in the East or South as you will; Purdue, in the Western Conference; Notre Dame, in the Middle West, or rather among the "candidates at large," inasmuch as Field General Frank Carideo and his mates are playing almost everywhere except at home in South Bend; Tennessee and Tulane in the South, and Texas in the Southwest.

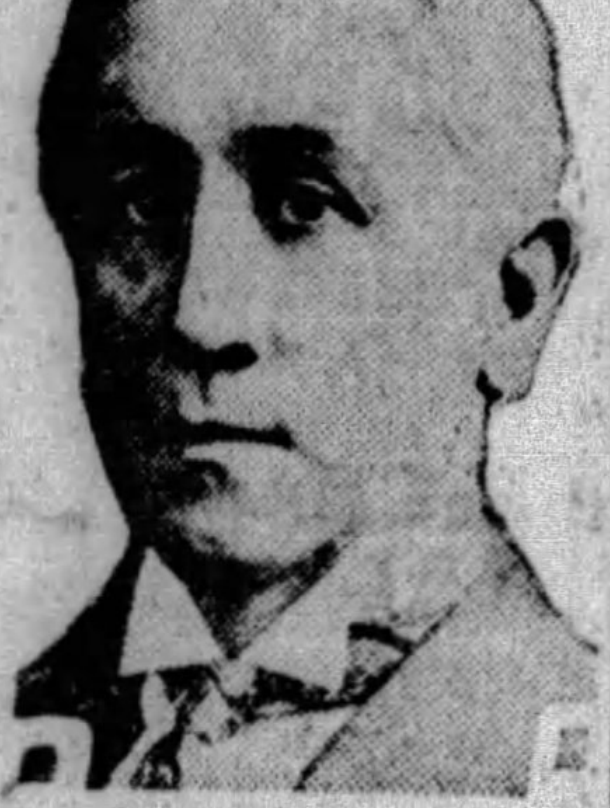
Yale and California, too, are outstanding elevens, but the Elis have been defeated by Georgia and the Berkeley gridders have been held to a tie by St. Marys.

ADVANCE dope did not show much chance of a reduction in the surviving field today. Pitt was being generally picked to defeat W. & J. in the annual sectional struggle at The Stadium, and Notre Dame looked like a winner over Drake.

Indications pointed further to victories for Cornell over Western Reserve, for Western Maryland over Loyola, of Baltimore; for Purdue over Mississippi, for Tulane over Alabama Poly, for Tennessee over Carson-Newman, and for Texas over Baylor. Texas appeared to be the only member of the clean-slate crowd that might be the victim of a slip.

HERE'S a chance for the local Chamber of Commerce and other civic organizations to step out in a new direction that may promote Pittsburgh's interests and help to keep this city in the national public eye. Los Angeles has withdrawn as an applicant for the 1930 national track and field championship meet of the A. A. U., on account of alterations being made at its Coliseum for the Olympic games in 1932.

This means that new bids will be received for the 1930 meet when the A. A. U. heads convene in St. Louis on November 16, 17 and 18. Cleveland, Lincoln and other cities that were in the field for the 1931 national championships will be asked to advance their bids by one year, and new applicants are certain to come to the front. The question that suggests itself is "Why not Pittsburgh?"



John T. Taylor.

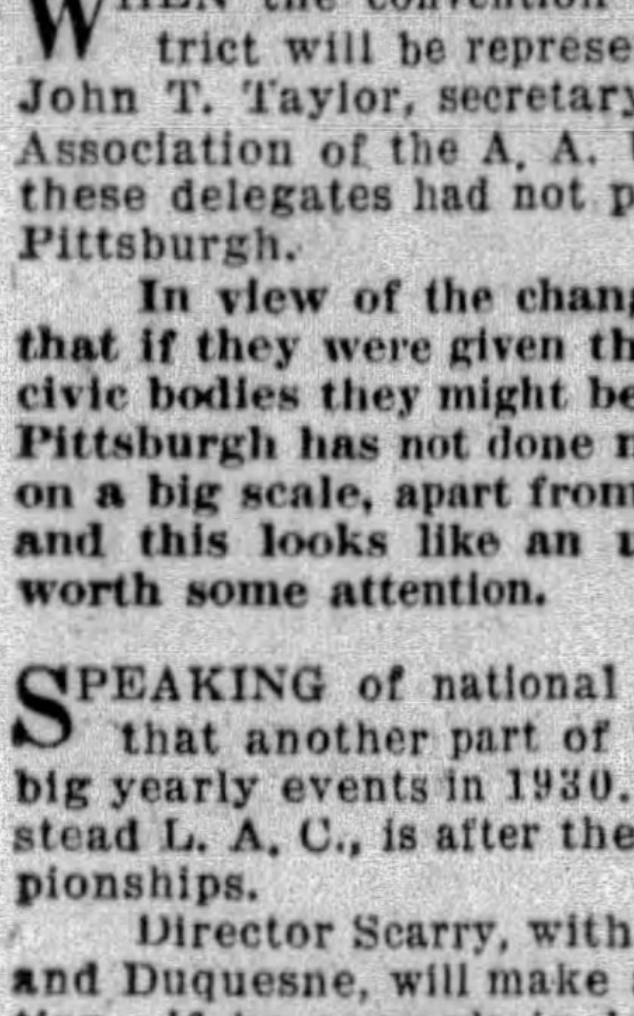
THE national track and field championships have not been held in this city since 1910 and 1911. In the meantime the Stadium has been built, with a seating capacity of 62,000, making it one of the country's ideal spots for such an event, and conditions here have improved otherwise to such an extent that the A. A. U.'s blue ribbon competition could be made to go over big. The title meet brings out the cream of the nation's amateur track and field athletes from all parts of the map, and the event is one of the outstanding American sports events of the year, attracting attention everywhere. It's good advertising for any city.

WHEN the convention opens in St. Louis next Saturday, this district will be represented by William S. Haddock, president, and John T. Taylor, secretary and treasurer of the Allegheny Mountain Association of the A. A. U. Prior to the withdrawal of Los Angeles these delegates had not planned any effort to get the 1930 games for Pittsburgh.

In view of the changed situation, however, it appears probable that if they were given the right encouragement and backing by local civic bodies they might be able to make a successful bid for the plum. Pittsburgh has not done much for the promotion of amateur athletics on a big scale, apart from the intercollegiate variety, in recent years, and this looks like an unusually good chance that might well be worth some attention.

SPEAKING of national A. A. U. competition, there is a prospect that another part of this district may be the scene of one of the big yearly events in 1930. John Scarry, director of athletics at Homestead L. A. C., is after the women's national outdoor swimming championships.

Director Scarry, with the support of some interests in Homestead and Duquesne, will make a try for that award at the St. Louis convention. If he succeeds in landing it, the intention is to hold the contests, in which the country's best women swimmers will compete for the championships, in the Kennywood Park pool.



John D. Holahan.

THAT patrons of the home football games of Duquesne University at Forbes Field will be spared at all future Duke events the confusion and delay that marred the handling of the crowd at the entrance gates when the first night contest with Geneva was staged on November 1, is the assurance given by John D. Holahan, graduate manager of athletics at the school on the Bluff. Manager Holahan explains that the jams at the gates and ticket windows and in the streets outside the park were due to the fact that the initial night game was largely in the nature of an experiment, and that it was not known, therefore, just what provisions would be necessary to run things off smoothly. But experience teaches, and the Red and Blue management is now prepared to avoid a repetition.

"I DESIRE to apologize to our patrons for any inconveniences or delays they may have suffered on the occasion of our first night game," said Manager Holahan, before leaving with the Dukes for Washington, "and to assure them that on Friday night of next week, and at all of our future games at Forbes Field they will find conditions just as perfect as we can make them.

"Instead of only eight ticket sellers, as at the Geneva game, we are going to have 28, and furthermore they will be experienced sellers instead of men unaccustomed to the work. There will be a corresponding improvement in the number and experience of the ticket takers and ushers, and a sufficient increase in police to assure better conditions outside the park and around the entrances, and a faster and more orderly handling of the crowd. We regret very much the confusion on the first night, and are determined that it shall not happen again."

SOME fighters take care of their money and are in comfortable circumstances for life when they quit the ring, whereas others, though perhaps getting greater financial returns for their fistic activities, squander their earnings and are actually in debt. Wilbur Wood, New York boxing critic, calls attention to Maxey Rosenbloom, light-heavyweight, and Corp. Izzy Schwartz, flyweight, as a couple of cases in point.

Rosenbloom, in seven years of fighting, has taken part in about

MACK HURLER, HERE, REVEALS HANDICAP

By JAMES J. LONG.

Though the baseball world still marvels at the amazing exhibition of pitching given by Howard Ehmke for the Philadelphia Athletics in the first game of the world series last month, when he started the Mackmen off with a 3-to-1 victory, smashed all records for the post-season classic by striking out 13 Cub batters, and would have registered a shutout but for a wild throw by Third Baseman Jimmy Dykes in the ninth inning, the said baseball world hasn't heard "the half of it."

For Ehmke pitched that game with a sore arm! The pages of diamond history will be splashed with glowing accounts of the performance given by the Mackian darkhorse in the series opener at Wrigley Field in Chicago on October 8, and the achievement will stand out on its own merits as one of the greatest of all time. Yet it was pitched under a handicap that almost challenges belief, as the wing that the Bruins found invincible was out of whack and gave the mound hero trouble in every inning.

EHMKE TELLS STORY

The information comes from such a fairly authoritative source as the great Ehmke himself, who told the inside story of his remarkable triumph while in Pittsburgh last night on a flying business trip.

"It may surprise you to learn that I pitched that game with a sore arm," said the 35-year-old sensation of the 1929 world series. "It's a fact nevertheless. My arm was giving me trouble in every inning, and I feared that at any time my control or effectiveness might be affected.

"But it was an opportunity for which I had been waiting for 16 years—my first world series game—and made up my mind to go through with it if it were the last thing that I ever did in baseball. Manager Mack had put his faith in me and I was determined to show that it had not been misplaced. I got away with it, but no one except myself will ever be able to realize what a task it was."

In the light of what Ehmke accomplished in his "crippled" state, it is painful to Chicago supporters to contemplate what might have happened to the Cubs if Howard had been feeling right.

WILL NOT RETIRE

"It has been published that you plan to retire from baseball and will not be back next year," was the next thing put up to Ehmke.

"I can say definitely now that I am not going to retire," replied the veteran right-hander.

"It is true that for a time I thought of quitting at the expiration of the 1929 season. That intention was due to the same arm trouble that I have been telling you about. My arm has been bothering me for four years, and I figured it was time for me to step out of the game.

"However, I had a talk with my boss, the one and only Connie in Philadelphia last Monday, and he prevailed upon me to stay in the game. So I'll be back with the A's next season and hope to be able to work regularly."

"How long had you known you were to be the pitcher for the White Elephants in the first game of the world series?" was asked.

"Four weeks. Connie told me before the middle of September that I was to get the assignment. But we kept it a secret and I did not pitch from September 12 until the big fight opened on October 8. All the time I was resting up and preparing for it. My arm felt good but it was not exactly right.

OFF FORM IN FIFTH

"I was far from being on the proper edge when I started the fifth game of the series on October 14. But Connie thought I might be able to get away with the game and avoid a trip back to Chicago for a sixth contest, so it was agreed that I should take a chance, as several of the other boys were fit to step in and take up the burden if I got into trouble, as I did in the fourth inning.

"Any pitcher would gladly work his head for such a fine manager as Connie Mack and with such a great team as the Athletics behind him. It's a remarkable club in all respects, and a finer lot of boys never played together.

"We're going to be better than ever next year too. Some of the 1929 regulars will improve, two or three new players are coming in who look as if they will help us, and the old team will be intact with the exception of George Burns, extra first baseman, who was released recently."

NO SIGNAL-TIPPING

The pitcher said he did not take seriously the report that Jimmy Dykes had asserted at a post-season dinner that the heavy-hitting of the A's against the Cubs' best pitchers was due to their baserunners having learned the Chicago battery signals and tipped them off to the batters.

"I cannot believe that Dykes made any statement of that kind seriously," said Ehmke. "I believe that either he was misquoted or

PANTHERS HOLD EDGE OVER WASH-JEFF

Nebraska, Waynesburg and Allegheny have fallen before the power of the Panther attack. Ashland, Ohio Northern, Bucknell and Lafayette have bowed to the Presidents.

Wash-Jeff's defensive record is more impressive than that of Pitt's, the Prexys having been scored on only once. Bucknell ran a touchdown over on the Red and Black while losing, 13 to 6. On the offense, W.-P. has tallied 127 points. Pitt has had 23 points recorded against it, and has run up 202 against the opposition. Thirteen of the scores made against the Panthers have been marked up against the second and third string elevens.

GOOD TILT IN PROSPECT

So much is at stake in today's struggle that the folks who peer at the fray from the concrete tiers of the Stadium bid fair to witness one of the most grueling Pitt-Presidents clinches ever. The Panthers are not going to stand for the Prexys upsetting 'em with the vision of a trip to California for the Tournament of Roses game ahead . . . not by as far as from here to Aunt Gussie's and back.

And don't get the impression that Bill Amos and Ray Ride, the kid coaches of the Washington Countians, have resigned themselves to taking their first thumping today. All this week they were cautioning their boys against being overconfident. They'll concede Pitt the edge in experience, and that's all.

Pitt's starting lineup figures to be as it was against Ohio State. Joe Donchess, the all-American (if ever there was one) and Rip Collins, the Iowa hog caller, will be stationed at the ends. Charlie Tully and Jimmsy MacMurdo, the hefty tackles, will be paired with the ends, and Capt. Al DiMeolo and Ray Montgomery will play the guards. Ralph Daugherty wins the snapper-back job without a murmur, except from Marclay Barnes, the senatorial appearing gent, who'll get the nod if a replacement is needed.

Eddie Naker at quarter; Toby Uansa and Josh Williams or Jim Rooney at the halves and Tom Parkinson, at full, will compose the

HANS ROBERTS HANDS LACING TO PROFIO

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

The Moose Temple Boxing Club played to its first sellout of the season last night, hundreds of fans being turned away when the seats and standing room were exhausted, and those lucky enough to get inside witnessed one of the best all-round shows put on here in recent years.

Every bout was brimful of action and the fans got more than their share of exciting moments. Even a pop bottle was thrown into the ring by an overwrought galleryite as the semi-final came to an abrupt ending. The missile barely escaped landing in the orchestra pit and injuring the spectators there and police went on the run to find the thrower in the crowd.

So heavy was the demand for seats that the gallery was jammed and the commission ordered a stop to the sale of tickets for it an hour before show time, and the seats and standing room downstairs and on the stage were entirely wiped out before the first bout got under way, the holders of reservations having to fight their way through a disgruntled army of disappointed would-be patrons who wended their way sadly and slowly down the stairs to seek entertainment elsewhere.

THRILLS BACK CARD

The card was well worth the clamor for pasteboards. It saw Hans Roberts, the German welterweight sensation, continue on his winning way at the expense of Dominick Profio, erstwhile knockout star, of Cecil, in the 10-round windup; Jackie Rodgers, local Negro bantamweight, knocked out Carl Cavelli, of Canton, O., in the third round of a sensational semi-final mix; Harry Spencer, of Washington, Pa., grab off an unmerited decision over Frank Monroe, Fair Haven veteran middleweight, in a rousing second bout, and Johnny Brown, of Lawrenceville, score over Jackie Griffiths, Negro, of the Hill, in the opener.

Roberts, who at 143½ pounds was outscaled two pounds by Profio, handed out an even more severe thrashing to the latter than he did to his stablemate, Young Rudy, of Charleroi, in the same ring two weeks before. He was entirely too clever, too ringwise and too aggressive and shifty for the slow-moving hard-swinging Italian and made a chopping block of his victim. He

DUKES PRIMED FOR BATTLE WITH CARDS

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN,
Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 9.—Twenty-eight determined Dukes stand primed here today for the whistle that will send 11 of them into bitter action against the brilliant Cardinal host of Catholic University of America at C. U. Stadium in Brookland this afternoon. With the zero hour for their Eastern debut at hand, the Laydenites are in the best of trim and, despite threat of titanic battle from an outfit that is probably the greatest in the annals of the famed local institution, their aim and intent is to preserve intact the unmarred record that has rewarded their efforts thus far this season.

TO START REGULARS

Coach Layden, unless present plans are altered before game time, will start his crack backfield quartet—Kovalcheck, Donnelli, Benedict, and McCarthy—but will hurl into the fray a line likely to be minus several familiar faces. Red Murphy and Abele, both of whom showed to excellent advantage against Geneva last week, are slated to hold down the wing positions at the opening kick-off, but there exists not the slightest doubt that Sammy Pratt and Joe Tavelli, regular terminals, will appear later. Maesh Silverstein, whom numerous critics have rated one of the most powerful pivot stars ever developed in the Steel City district, has been battered up badly in various contests this autumn. Though in shape at present to take up his duties on the field, he will probably be held under cover throughout a goodly portion of the contest while Pat Lally, rangy Sharpsville ace, cavorts at midline. At the guards, Mike Ferrare and Moon Clark will be at their old posts, with Lou Skender and Jim O'Donnell caring for the tackles and Kemp, Kirby, and McNerny set for plenty of hostilities.

The Catholic U., offensive, freely described thereabouts as exceedingly smooth, is constructed around Capt. Jack Malevich, a brilliant punter and pigskin-bearer. Injury to Joe Champa, shifty right halfback, has moved Coach McAuliffe to switch Quarterback Gene Murphy to half and to insert John Oliver, accomplished reserve, in the quarter job. Otherwise the Cardinal lineup will be largely the same as that which downed Mount St. Mary's, Rutgers and Manhattan and fought the crack Boston College crew to 13-7.

The Dukes spent an interesting, as well as active, day yesterday in and about the National capital. Arriving in Washington at 7:30 a.

ISSUE DEFI

LONDON, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—Encouraged by its success this year, Great Britain already has challenged for the Davis Cup in 1930 and will compete in the European zone, it was announced today.

WESTINGHOUSE VICTOR OVER PEABODY

Featured by the Shady Side Academy-Nichols School game at Shady Side, in which the Harpster-coached eleven will strive to keep its record for the season clear and clinch the tri-state preparatory school title, today's scholastic football card presents a colorful appearance. Kiski and Arnold, other district preparatory schools, also have tough assignments, the Saltsburg eleven taking on the Army plebes at West Point and Arnold meeting Western Reserve Academy in Cleveland.

Shady Side, experiencing its most successful season in history, will have an undefeated and united record of which to boast if Nichols can be accounted for. Coach Harpster has been priming his team for this game, which is the last on the local schedule.

ARNOLD IN CLEVELAND

Dr. Pat Scanlon, end on last year's Pitt eleven, is in charge of the Arnold School eleven in Cleveland and has high hopes of taking over the Reserve Academy warriors.

Schenley High is out of town for a game with the Big Red eleven of Steubenville High in the Ohio city. New Kensington invades Greensburg for a game with Earl Louck's team. Rochester undefeated and unscored on, meets an old rival in Monaca at Monaca. Beaver Falls hits Jeannette at Jeannette; McKeesport plays Duquesne at Duquesne and Grove City tackles Vandergrift at Vandergrift in other important battles.

The Shady Side and Nichols soccer teams met on the Shady Side grid in a game this morning.

WESTINGHOUSE VICTOR

Westinghouse High had a narrow escape at the hands of Peabody High, in their Section I, City League fight yesterday, the Silver Lakers winning by a margin of 12 to 7. The Burton machine registered its points in the first quarter, and the East Enders theirs in the third—but the Peabody lads came near to victory on several occasions. Bobby Noonan was the thorn in the side of Westinghouse, while Rentler, Shaltenbrand, Davis and Durzo starred for the victors.

In a Section II, battle, Allegheny High blanked Langley, 6 to 0, on the latter's gridiron. The lone score came at the hands of Phillips, in the second half.

Other games in which local teams were contenders saw Dormont High defeating Carnegie High, 13 to 7; Bellevue and Coraopolis battling to a scoreless tie and Aspinwall gaining a 19-to-0 triumph over Stowe Township. The lineups:

CROWELL WINS HORSE SHOW HONORS

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—Horses entered by H. Hollen Crowell, Boston sportsman, continued to turn in top notch performances in the National Horse Show at Madison Square Garden yesterday. Having won in one, two, three order in the pen jump, Crowell sent out three horses to all but sweep his opposition aside in the class for privately-owned jumpers.

His big brown gelding, Chantry, carried off the honors, but not far behind in third place was Fourth Estate, while fourth place went to Fairfax. Splitting the powerful trio of Boston jumpers was Lucifer, exhibited and ridden by Miss Ruth Cowans, of Montreal.

First among the jumpers were, Little Canada and Sinbad, a duo of winners on the summer circuits, exhibited by Long Acre Farm, of Warrenville, N. J.

Mrs. R. J. Goodman's (Hartford, Conn) Chestnut mare, Marion Gold, won a blue ribbon when she defeated an exceptionally fine class of three-gaited saddle horses in the division for 3-year-olds and over and exceeding 15.2 hands.

With the completion of the judging of hackney horses the name of the Cassilis farm of Mr. and Mrs. Macy Willets, of New Marlboro, Mass., began a regular procession to the result board, their home breds all but sweeping the field. They carried off two championship rosettes in addition to numerous ribbons. Their Irvington Aristocrat was first in the class for the champion hackney pony stallion and their Irvington Bounce III, won first in contest for champion hackney pony mare or filly. The reserve ribbon in the latter class also went to Mr. and Mrs. Willet with their Cassilis Easter Maid.

Mrs. Howard Kellogg scored for the Eclipse stables of Derby, N. Y., when she sent her Fashion Eclipse over the jumps to win the ladies green or qualified hunters class.

EHMKE VICTOR WITH SORE ARM

made the remark only as a joke. I'd have been 'in' on anything of that kind and I know that nothing of the sort was ever even discussed."

The slab star, who was accompanied by Mrs. Ehmke, made the trip from Philadelphia to Pittsburgh by automobile. They left this morning to drive back East.

Ehmke's visit here had to do with his off-season business of selling canvas covers for football and baseball fields.

"Pitt and Carnegie Tech jointly purchased one of my canvas covers and it has been in use at your splendid Stadium for a month," said Ehmke. "I am told that, as a result of the protection it afforded, the field was in good shape for the start of the Pitt-Ohio State game last Saturday and became soggy later on only because more rain fell after the shield was removed.

DRY FOOTBALL FIELDS

"It assures an even better playing surface for this week's game between Pitt and Wash-Jeff, and for other games to follow, as I went out to the Stadium Friday afternoon and was able to make a few suggestions that will improve the laying of it.

"The shield covers more than 72,000 square feet of playing surface, and in the future the fans here may rest assured of seeing football played on a dry field even after an all-night downpour, provided no rain falls after the canvas is removed shortly before game time.

"I have sold a cover of the same size to the promoters of the big sports field in Johnstown, and it will be in use there next year.

"Incidentally, I called at the offices of the Pittsburgh baseball club and discussed with Treasurer Sam Dreyfuss and Secretary Sam Watters the making of a new cover for Forbes Field. One of my covers has been in use there for four years, and the club is considering the purchase of a new one for next season."

Boy Drops Dead In Football Game

JASONVILLE, Ind., Nov. 9.—(AP.)—Charles Haymer, 12-year-old guard on the Green Castle High School football team, dropped dead as he walked from the playing field following the first half of a night football game here last night.

Haymer was known to have a weak heart, and it is believed exertion of the game was too much for him. His team was behind, 7 to 0, when the game was interrupted.

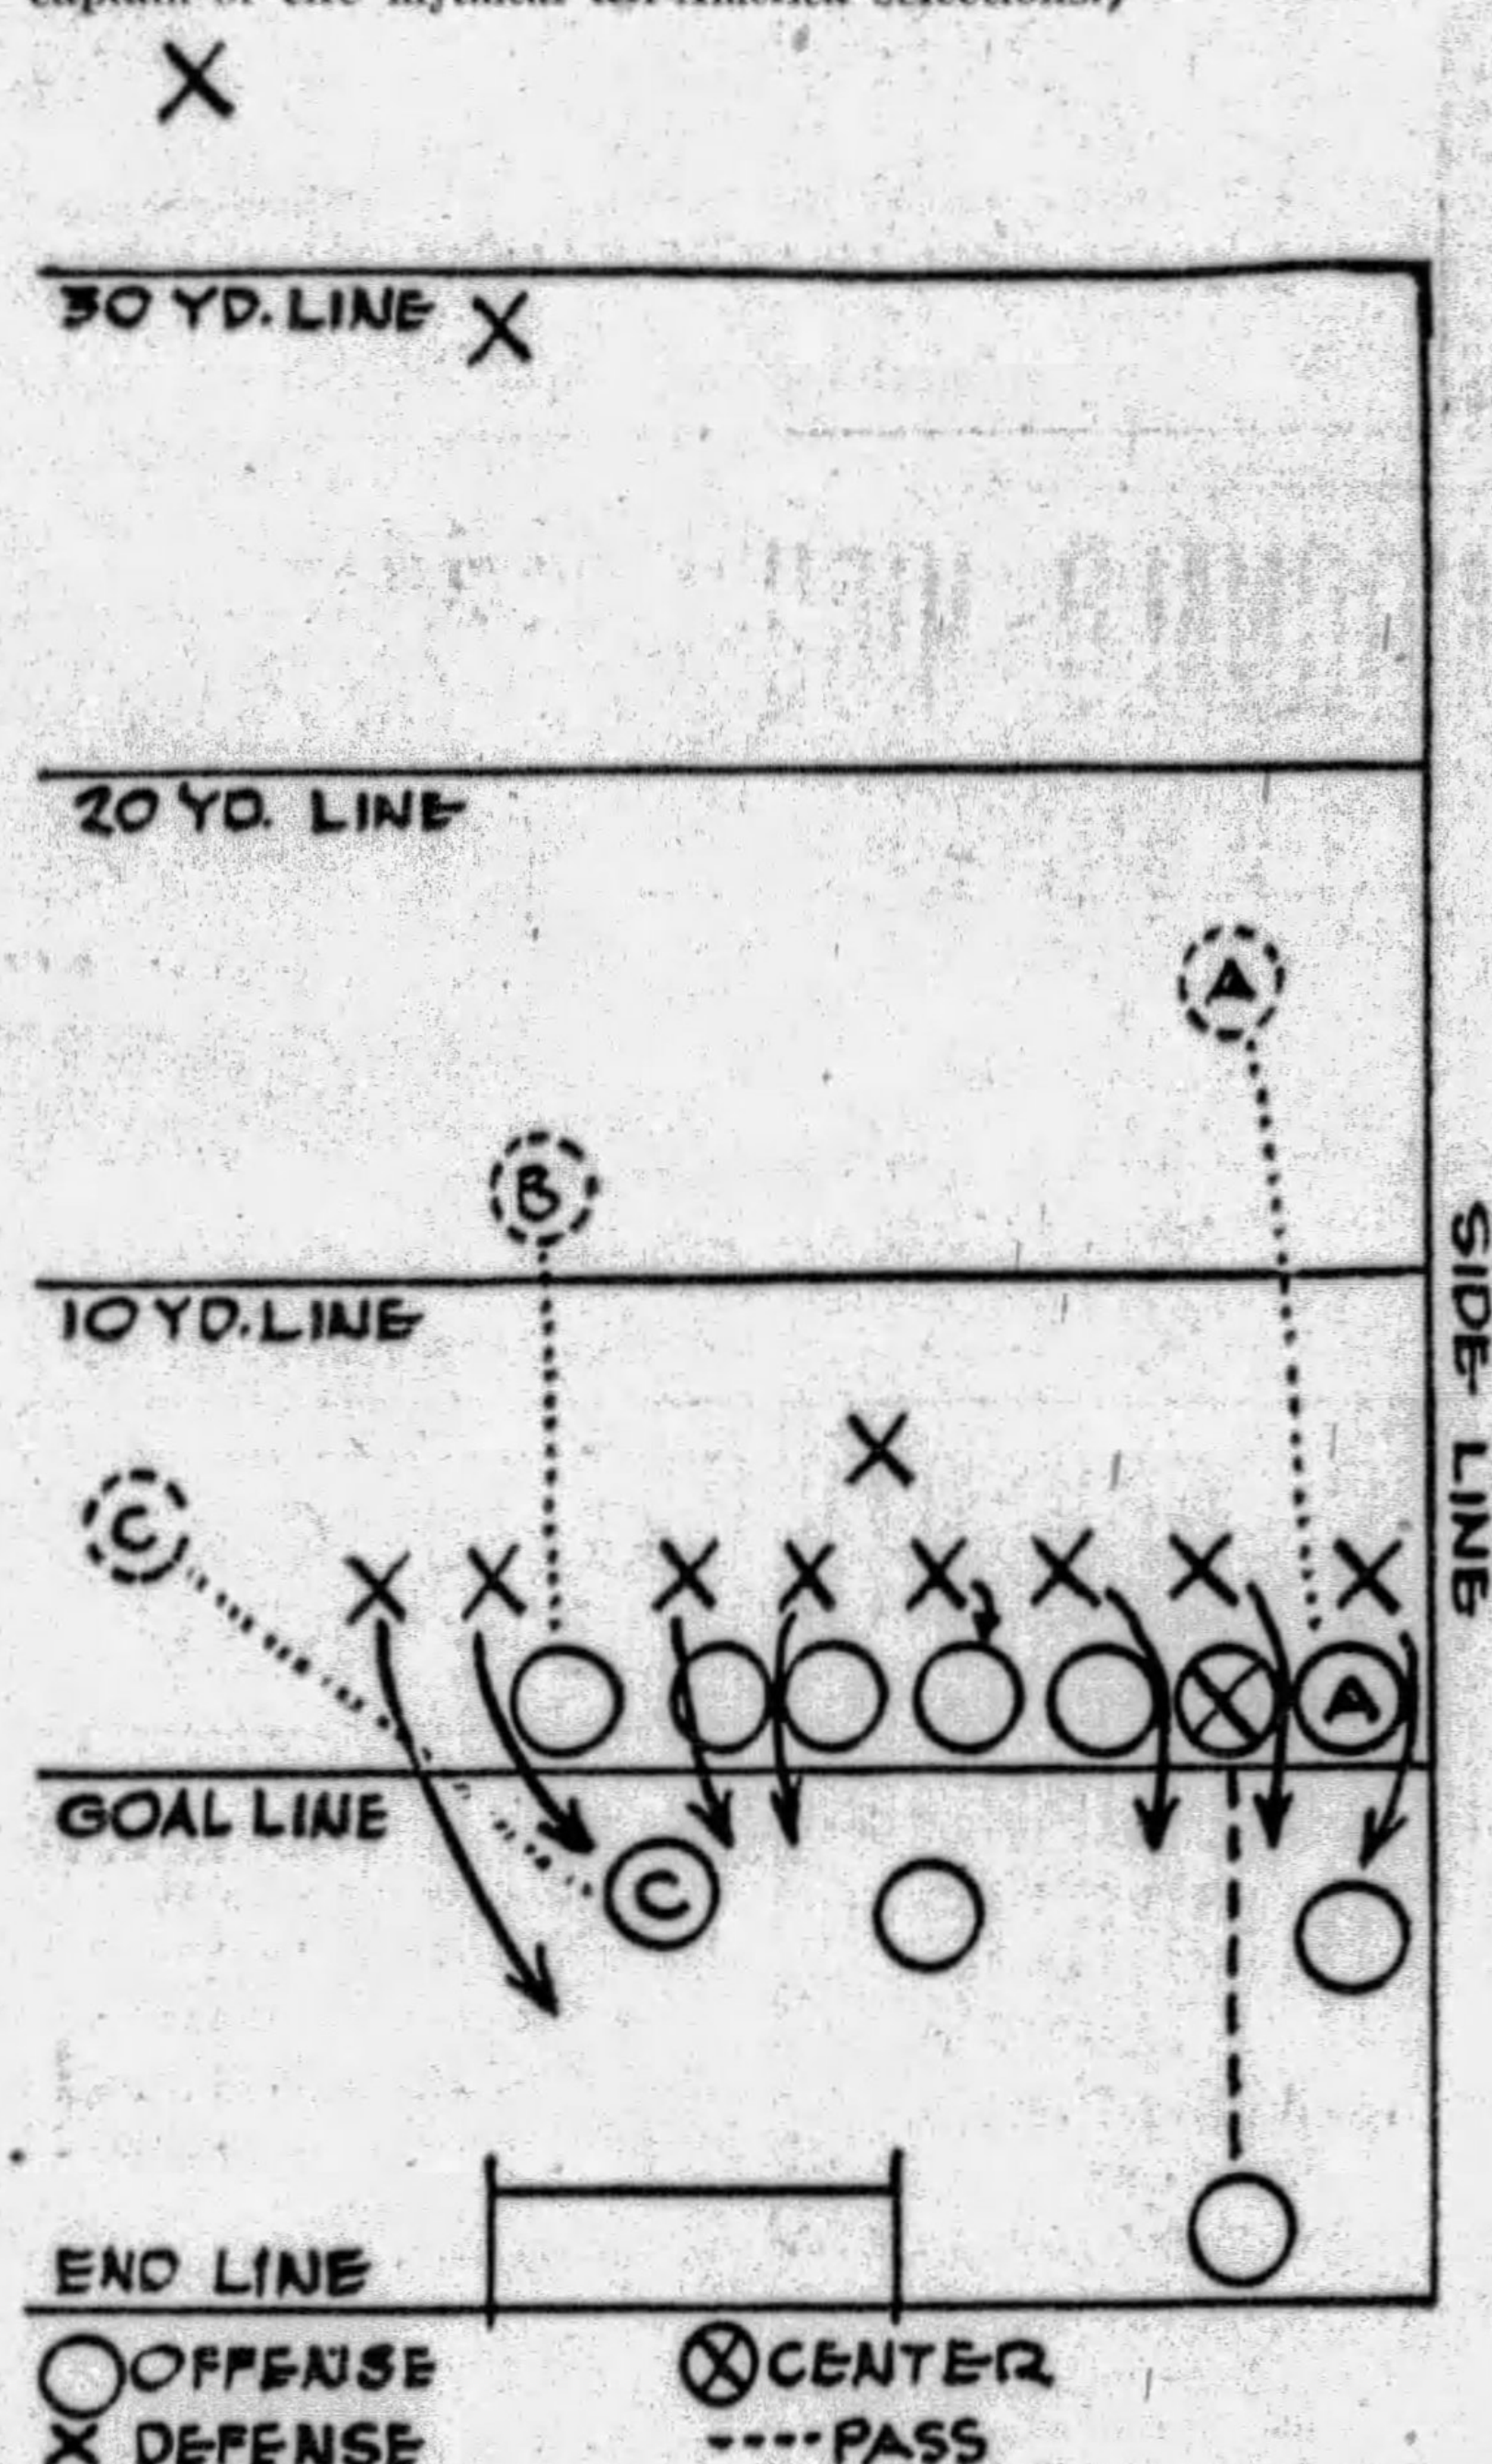
All-America Quarterback, 1928
Now Coach at Shady Side Academy

(Note.—Harpster, as the quarterback of the Carnegie Tech eleven last fall, gained national recognition as one of the most brilliant leaders of all time in the football realm. Experts hailed him as "the player with the mind of a coach." He captained the All-East team that defeated the All-West team in California at the end of the season and was generally picked as captain of the mythical all-America selections.)



NO. 18—PASS FROM BEHIND GOAL

THIS diagram shows the positions taken by the two teams, Georgia Tech and California, following Roy Riegel's famous backward run, which left California in possession of the ball on its own goal line, close to the side line, in the Tornament of Roses game last New Year's Day.

Georgia had eight men on the line of scrimmage, with a ninth man just a yard back, ready to run in and try to block the kick which Lom, of California, attempted to get off.

The kick was blocked and a safety scored against California, which enabled Georgia Tech to win, 8-6.

How easy it would have been to have completed a forward pass with the Georgia team lined up in such a manner. Three men were open to receive the pass, as clearly shown in the diagram.

Good Bouts Mark Millvale Show

BUCS EAGER TO TALK TRADE

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

Messrs. Dreyfuss and Ens, of the Pirates, are more than anxious to talk trade with other National League pilots, but the overtures of the local officials so far have not produced much fruit. The rival owners and pilots are either on hunting excursions or they do not wish to go into the important matters deeply until the annual convention of the minor leagues which is scheduled for Chattanooga early in December.

ENS HAS NEW HOME

Manager Ens writes headquarters to the effect that he has acquired a new home within horse and buggy distance of St. Louis. The Ens family is happily situated in Clayton, Mo., which is only 10 miles out from St. Louis and the silent Anheuser-Busch plants. The home-brew industry, however, is working beyond 100 per cent capacity in the Missouri metropolis.

Capt. Pie Traynor, who journeyed to St. Louis with the new manager with the intention of spending a short visit, decided to prolong his stay after encountering Pitcher Heinie Meine. Meine's home is so close to the big city he can mount his bicycle and reach home in short order. The hurler appears to have inveigled Pie into a week's hunting trip. Meine is a great fellow to take to the woods with a flock of dogs and the rest of the trappings.

READY FOR BUSINESS

Ens is going to stick close to the native heath in order to be ready to sit in on anything of interest to the Pittsburgh cause. Jewel has a fair idea of what he needs to make the Pirates of 1930 a formidable flag array, but he doesn't intend to be "David-Harumed" by any city slickers who have hardly any more than a perfunctory knowledge of the game.

The new pilot had a lot of success with the Buccos in the last month of the season, yet he knows there is much room for improvement, especially in the pitching and infield departments. Jewel and Sam Dreyfuss will be among the early arrivals at Chattanooga. Ens should be a valuable man to have around a session of this kind, as he is well acquainted with many of the heads of the smaller circuits.

Coffee, Buckeye Star, Is to Be Reinstated

COLUMBUS, Nov. 9.—Coach Sam Willaman, of the Ohio State football team, announced today that Charley Coffee, Salem, O., halfback, would be reinstated to the grid squad, effective Monday. He will be eligible to play in the final two games with Kenyon and Illinois. He is a senior and was suspended last week because of violation of training rules on the Pittsburgh trip.

Nevada Eleven Flies to Scene of U. S. C. Tilt

GLENDALE, Cal., Nov. 9.—(AP.)—Whatever it does in today's game with the University of Southern California, the University of Nevada football squad "took to the air" yesterday, arriving here—32 strong—in nine airplanes. The flight from Reno was made in four hours and 20 minutes.

PITT PRIMED FOR PREXYS

TO START REGULARS

For Wash-Jeff, Ride and Amos will start the same first eleven they've been employing all fall. Deb Secrist, the clever end, certain to give Joe Donchess a battle, will call the signals from right end. He'll wear number 14, so watch for him. Captain Jap Douds (2) will be at right tackle. The stellar lineman, already boasting of all-America selection, plays his final game in Pittsburgh. He is the type of lineman bound to stand out, and has done just that in times past here.

Don Malcom (3) and George Demas (4,) are to start at the guards. Charley Rigney (36) will oppose Daugherty at center. On the left side of the line, at tackle, Walter Levine (9) will anchor his 190 pounds of brawn. Johnny McNeil (5) will be at left end.

Jack Butler, quarterback (7,) Morry Rush (11) and Don Lewis (27) at the halves and Stewie Wilson (33,) 198 pound fullback make-up the Prexys' star backfield combination. Rush, the hard running halfback, is expected to be the big gun of the Wash-Jeff attack. He's busted loose against Lafayette and Bucknell and gave both the Tech and Temple defenses a bag full of worry.

Wilson, a fine kicker and passer, who does both southpaw style, will handle that department of the battle for Wash-Jeff.

Tre Prexy squad will get into town this morning and will be quartered, under guard, at Webster Hall.

DUKES IN CAPITAL

Duquesne University's eleven is in Washington, D. C., this day, there to tangle with the powerful Catholic University team. The Dukes, the tristate section's fourth undefeated eleven, expect a strenuous session with the Washington team, a team that gave both Boston College and Villa Nova hard battles.

Davis Elkins and West Virginia Wesleyan, meet in a feature game at Elkins, while West Virginia and Detroit, with their game at Morgantown, bolster the day's slate which is headed by Pitt and Wash-Jeff.

Allegheny, with two ties and no victories making its record look a bit phooie, invades Grove City for a contest with the Crimson. Walking into the nest of the Berrymen today will be like sticking one's nose into an Irish fight. The Grover were kicked over by Waynesburg last week in the season's biggest local upset. Imagine how they'll be laying for the Methodists this afternoon?

Thiel and Bethany, the only other tri-state eleven in action today, invade Ohio. Bethany tackles Muskingum at New Concord and Thiel plays Ashland at Ashland.

Long's Sport Comment

125 contests, and his share of the proceeds therefrom, with expenses and managerial cuts deducted, has approximated $60,000. Yet today he is "in the red" for $4,000.

Izzy Schwartz.

SCHWARTZ, who announced his retirement when defeated by Eugene Huat recently, presents a striking contrast. These two Jewish boys began fighting in the same year, 1923. Izzy did not earn as much money as Maxie, but he has $50,000 salted away in 5½ per cent bonds and has a steady job as a motion picture operator. He is fixed for life. Rosenbloom has never been of the saving type. He has blown his money right and left on betting, automobiles, gay parties and what not. When he was matched recently to fight James J. Braddock in New York on next Friday night he tried to get an advance of $500, but failed. Next day an automobile man called at Madison Square Garden to obtain an estimate as to how much Maxie would get out of the fight, explaining that the fighter, in spite of his debts, had put in an order for a new car. And, according to Frank Bachman, who has grown gray managing Rosenbloom, that will make a total of 1 automobiles that Maxie has had in the last few years. That isn' all of it, for Bachman says Rosenbloom has a new car now but i getting rid of it and wants another machine that will match his new fur coat.

DAVIES PLANS FOR SPEEDY COMEBACK

Willie Davies, of Charleroi, is not yet out of the running for the flyweight championship, despite his elimination from the New York State Commission's tournament in Madison Square Garden last Monday night. Already plans are under way to put him right back into the thick of the running. Meanwhile he is on a hunting trip in the mountains near Everett, Pa., resting up to resume his campaign and at the same time permit his cut eye to mend.

Davies has no alibis for his defeat by Black Bill in the tournament, saying that he couldn't get going and didn't fight his fight. As soon as he returned to his dressing room after losing the decision, he asked his manager, Jim Buchanan, to get Black Bill for him again, preferably in Pittsburgh. In three previous clashes with Black Bill, he won a decision in Philadelphia, in September, 1925, and then fought two 12-round draws with him in Havana, Cuba, in June, 1926.

IN CANADIAN TOURNEY

Some idea of the manner in which Davies may stage a grand comeback and still outstrip the field of contenders may be gained from the fact that he already is entered in the Canadian tournament, being staged by Playfair Brown, the Toronto promoter. In the first two bouts in this elimination, Happy Atherton defeated Ruby Bradley, who then was entered in the New York tournament, in which he eliminated Ernie Peters last Monday. In the second bout of the Canadian series, Gene Huat, the Frenchman, knocked out Frenchy Belanger in six rounds. Then Huat won decisively over Izzy Schwartz in New York, whereupon the latter announced his retirement from the ring.

The New York survivors now are Black Bill, Huat, Bradley and Midget Wolgast. Huat will box Black Bill in the second bout and Wolgast will meet Bradley in the third. Huat and Wolgast are favored to come through to the final. Regardless of the ultimate outcome, Huat will continue in the Canadian tournament, and the draw may bring him against Davies in the Dominion final. Davies' first appearance in the tournament at Toronto, where he is a prime favorite, will be against Steve Rocco, November 22. Rocco last night eliminated Atherton.

Toronto is the best city on the American continent for flyweights. The fans there go strong for the little fellows. On the other hand, the first night of the flyweight tournament in New York proved almost a flop, the four 10-round bouts in Madison Garden drawing less than $20,000, and it has been decided to stage the future elimination contests as semi-finals to battles featuring bigger performers.

Davies, by the way, is only 22 years old, despite his long service in the ring. Only recently he received from the town of Maesteg, Wales, where he was born, a copy of his birth certificate, which shows that he first saw the light of day on January 22, 1907. This should set at rest the belief that he is close to the 30-year mark in age.

AMATEURS AT P. A. A.

An all-star card has been arranged for the inter-city amateur boxing show to be staged at the P. A. A. tonight. Three Uniontown lads will be members of the local team. The lineup of bouts follows: 112-pound class, Joe Kusher, Cleveland, vs. Tony Marino, Duke O'Hara Club, McKeesport; 118-pound class, Frankie Wallace, Cleveland, vs. John Warner, Clairton A. C.; 126-pound class, Billy Anzick, Cleveland, vs. Don Asto, Sands A. C., Uniontown; 126-pound class, Don Gonzales, Cleveland, vs. George Flaherty, Duke O'Hara Club; 135-pound class, Ken Disch, Cleveland, vs. Joey Speigle, Uniontown; 160-pound class, Jimmy Taylor, Cleveland, vs. Carl Cesko, Sands A. C., Uniontown; 175-pound class, Jack Weinert, Cleveland, vs. Nick Maloy, Duke O'Hara Club.

There will be no boxing show at New Castle next Monday night. However, on the following Monday night, Ernie Peters, Indian flyweight, of Chicago, will meet Phil Tobias, Jewish star, of Brooklyn, in the main bout in the Jolly Bowl. Joey Katkish will box Romeo Paceili in the semi-final.

Eddie Brannon, Negro featherweight, of the Hill, and Young Corsey, of Canton, have been matched to box the main event of the double windup card at McKeesport next Thursday night. George Panka, Homestead heavyweight, and Ray Fay, of Charleroi, are in the other feature battle.

CHOCOLATE BACK

Kid Chocolate inaugurates his new campaign in the United States with a bout against Johnny Erickson in New York tonight. Cuban stablemates of Chocolate appear in all of the preliminaries. Floyd Hybert meets Pal Silvers in Brooklyn.

Buck McTiernan and George Panka wind up their training at Flynn's gym this afternoon for their feature battles in the Motor Square ring Monday night. Buck meets Farmer Joe Cooper, of Terre Haute, Ind., while Panka is in with Eddie O'Neill, of Steubenville, O., in the second bout of six rounds. Cooper is due to arrive tomorrow morning and will work out in the Motor Square gym in the afternoon. In the other bouts on the card, Ken Hargraves meets Chet Smallwood for eight rounds in the semi-final and Walter Ketchel opens the show with Tarzan Joe Poole.

Johnny Ryan (formerly Johnny Urban), Red Mason's new heavyweight, will make his local bow shortly against Harry Williams or George Panka. The Moose Club probably will get the first crack at his services.

PANTHER STAR MAY PLAY IN SHRINE GAME

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 9.—(INS.)—Nine eastern college stars have been invited to play in the annual East vs. West Shrine football game in San Francisco on New Year's Day, according to information received yesterday by Hugh McKevitt, general chairman, from Coaches Andy Kerr and Richard Hanley, now in the East.

The nine, all picked as "All-Americans" last year, are: Welch, Purdue, fullback; Brazil, Detroit, halfback; Uansa, Pittsburgh, halfback; Tanner, Minnesota, end; Nagurski, Minnesota, tackle; Glenn, West Virginia, quarterback; Gordon, Illinois, tackle; Anderson, Northwestern, guard, and Sebo, Syracuse, guard.

ROBERTS BEATS PROFIO

won every round but the first, in which he sampled Profio's best bet, a peculiar, looping uppercut inside, and learned how to smother it. Dominick took this session by only a shade, for he started late.

Beginning with the second round, Roberts had evolved his plan of battle and from then on he walked in with the decision. In the third round, a left swing followed by a glancing right caught the German off balance and spilled him for no count, but he got up to outfight Profio. In the fifth round, Profio began bleeding from the nose. In the sixth, his left eye was split and in the eighth it was cut underneath, giving him a gory appearance. In the final round, he was bleeding profusely from the slashed optic and was swinging wildly and futilely after the fashion of a drowning man gasping for the proverbial straw.

ROBERTS WINS CROWD

The crowd again was won over by Hans' willing mixing and gave him a big hand at the finish. It is likely his next local start will be against Jimmy Belmont, another Mason entry, or Tug Phillips or Tiger Joe Randall. Incidentally, Mason did more rooting for his fighter last night than the fighter did fighting, or was permitted by his opponent to do.

The Rodgers-Cavelli semi-final brought together two hitters both of whom had knocked out Dan Billick, of Duquesne, in a single round, Cavelli turning the trick at Motor Square Garden last Monday night and Rodgers at the Meyers Bowl during the summer. Rodgers, who had height and reach on his opponent, stepped out to make short work of his midget foe and battered him with both fists throughout the first round and continued the assault in the second, finishing up by flooring Carl, only to have the bell ring at the count of four. Cavelli appeared willing to chuck it at this stage, for he did not make a move until he heard the clang of the gong and then jumped up with alacrity.

Rodgers rushed out of finish the uneven battle in the third round and was cuffing Cavelli about at will when the latter finally decided to fight back in self defense. He scored with several telling rights and picked up confidence and for more than a minute they slugged toe to toe about the ring with the crowd up cheering. Cavelli finally played out and a right to the jaw staggered him in his own corner. He covered up and managed to get away, but Rodgers, fighting one of his best fights, caught up with him on the other side of the ring and spilled him with a left. Carl stretched out to take the count and then, just as the referee completed the toll over him, jumped up and made a bluff to fight back, but he was through for the evening.

The crowd not realizing that Cavelli had failed to beat the count and thinking the bout was being stopped, booed and jeered, and a rowdy in the gallery tossed the pop bottle that might easily have injured someone or caused a riot in the densely packed hall. The bottle was aimed at the referee, who had made a good job of doing his duty with Cavelli putting him in a tough spot with his acting on both counts. Rodgers weighed 120 pounds and Cavelli 119¾.

MONROE VERDICT VICTIM

For two rounds, Spencer boxed carefully about Monroe in the second bout, pecking with his left and bringing up short uppercuts that jarred the veteran. Then, beginning with the third round, he found Monroe's mauling tactics too tough and went on a bicycle for the remainder of the bout, with Monroe chasing him and hammering and clubbing away at the head and body to win by a clear margin. However, the judges disagreed and the referee's vote went to Spencer. A month ago, the pair fought a hard draw in the same ring. Both weighed 164½ pounds for last night's meeting.

Johnny Brown, of Lawrenceville, 140½, was too rugged and aggressive for Jackie Griffiths, Negro, of the Hill, 133½, and easily won the unanimous decision in the opener.

It was announced that Rudy Ceder of Tarentum, and Jimmy Belmont, of Braddock, will box the windup next Friday night. Ceder won decisively over Jimmy at the Meyers Bowl during the recent outdoor season.

Jim McLaughlin refereed all of the bouts last night, while the judges were Jock Simco and Frank Ferris. A. C. Couch was the timer and Bill Schuster the announcer.

POTOMAC TOPS BROADDUS

KEYSER, W. Va., Nov. 9.—(AP.)—Broaddus College, West Virginia State Conference leaders, suffered their initial defeat of the season and had their goal crossed for the first time in the game with Potomac State here yesterday. Potomac won, 7 to 6.

A fumble by Snow, Broaddus fullback, that was recovered by Lyons, Potomac fullback, on the visiting team's two-yard line paved the way for the Potomac touchdown late in the fourth period. Mills carried the ball over and Broaddus was offside to give the home school the extra point and the victory.

Broaddus registered its touchdown in the first eight minutes of play in the opening quarter. Snow made the marker after having gained most of the ground in the drive that ended across the goal. Trimble's kick for point was blocked. The lineup:

Broaddus—6.		Potomac—7.
Contini	L.E.	Miers
Newlon	L.T.	Zemo

GAMES TODAY

WEST PENN CUP

Thomas Run at Beadling (Brannigan).
Clan Douglas at Celtics (Simpson).
Beaver Falls at Jeannette (Corns).
Glendale at U. S. & S. (Peckovitch).
Cecil at Eagles (Stevenson).

Rovers at Crafton Heights (O'Connor).

BEAVER VALLEY LEAGUE

Beaver Falls at Ambridge.
Sewickly at New Castle.

By TOM BIRKS

Cup ties will hold the interest of soccerdom this afternoon, five West Penn cup ties being scheduled. The Glendale-at-Union Switch and Signal game seems to be the outstanding battle of the afternoon, for Glendale has quite an impressive record in the cup ties this season.

Jack Thomas has a good club, which will play an entirely different brand of soccer from the typical American swinging style employed by Glendale.

Frank Mincher will take Douglas to meet the Celtics. This will be a hard game, but we feel that Douglas should win. The Clan has one of the finest outfits in the district this season, although Celtic fights hard in cup ties.

One game will be played in the District League. The Pittsburgh Rovers meet Crafton. In the Beaver Valley loop, Ambridge entertains Beaver Falls, and Sewickly meets New Castle.

PIGEON RACE MONDAY

The Lawrenceville Center Mid-Season Club has arranged a special Newark pigeon race for Armistice Day, which will be open to all center fanciers. The keenest of bluebloods will be selected for this race, as each and every fancier knows the value and importance of his entry. Clocks will be set and birds shipped Sunday evening. Counter marking will start at 7:30 o'clock. The Lawrenceville Center Club also will hold its annual turkey race on Sunday, November 17. For further information call E. J. Ninehauser, Fisk 1524-R.

N. Y. U. Negro Not Able to Play, Surgeons Say

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—A committee of surgeons yesterday announced that, in their opinion, Dave Myers, Negro quarterback of the New York University football eleven, was in no condition to play against Georgia today.

The committee's announcement was made after Myers had been examined in the offices of Dr. George David Stewart, past president of the American College of Surgeons, and Dr. Edward A. King, of St. Vincent's Hospital. Dr. Stewart and Dr. King, with Dr. Michael Tetelman, of the French Hospital, made up the committee.

In effect, the surgeons declared that Myers had suffered a severe shoulder injury and ought not to play against Georgia for fear of possible permanent injury.

M'DONALD HIGH 19-0 VICTOR

WASHINGTON, Pa., Nov. 9.—McDonald High School continued their undefeated string and march toward the Class B Washington County championship yesterday when they trimmed the East Pike Run eleven, 19 to 0.

East Bethlehem High came through to blank Waynesburg's eleven, 12 to 0, in a game at Waynesburg, while Claysville dropped its last game of the season to Hickory, 7 to 0, at Hickory.

Centerville High was swamped by Ellsworth High, 33 to 0, and Carmichaels kept its place in the race for the Greene County championship by topping Nineveh, 13 to 7. Jefferson copped its seventh in a row by upsetting East Washington, 26 to 0.

Redstone Township appeared to be a Fayette County title contender after beating German Township at McClellandtown, 8 to 6, and Masontown, a new contender from the same district, smothered Brownsville High, 12 to 0.

Atherton Beaten By Steve Rocco

TORONTO, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—Steve Rocco, former Canadian flyweight champion, easily defeated Happy Atherton, of Indianapolis, in their 10-round bout here last night.

Jack Purvis, of Indianapolis, won a close decision from Joe Coffman, of Memphis, in the six-round semi-final. Billy Ayrton, of Toronto, defeated Kid Woods, of Indianapolis, by a narrow margin.

Pitt Cross-Country Teams at State Today

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Nov. 9.—The Universty of Pittsburgh varsity and freshman cross-country runners will compete against Penn State's teams in races here today. The State Varsity boasts a record of no defeats in dual meets in the last four years.

DISPLAY VICTOR

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—Walter J. Salmon's 6-year-old long distance star, Display, romped home in front of a small field in Pimlico's feature yesterday, a mile and one-sixteenth gallop for 3-year-olds and up.

Crane to Plead Guilty to Slaying

HARRISBURG, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—Sam (Red) Crane, former major and minor league baseball player, awaiting sentence for the slaying of Della Lyter, his alleged former sweetheart, and State Highway Department employe, will plead guilty to second degree murder in the slaying of Jack Oren.

This became known when District Attorney Robert T. Fox said yesterday that he had agreed to accept Crane's plea of guilty to second degree murder. He did not reveal the date when the plea will be accepted.

Crane was convicted last September of second degree murder for the killing of Miss Lyter. Crane shot and fatally wounded Oren and Miss Lyter in a saloon here last August. Oren died the following day and Miss Lyter died on August 5.

Crane testified at his trial he was so intoxicated at the time of the shooting he did not know what he was doing.

CADETS EAGER FOR ILLINI FIGHT

DANVILLE, ., Nov. 9.—(AP.)—The Army gridiron forces, led by Capt. Red Cagle, encamped here last night on the outskirts of the opposing stronghold, ready to battle Illinois this afternoon in the first intersectional warfare with a Big Ten team in 24 years. The Soldiers will play the Western Conference champions before a crowd of 68,000 in the Champaign Stadium.

In the Pullman car comfort of a special train, the squad of 39 husky West Pointers completed the jaunt of about 900 miles early yesterday afternoon, in time to enjoy a snappy workout under Head Coach Biff Jones, display an appetite that would make a longshoreman envious and manifest sophomoric enthusiasm at a motion picture show.

Except for a patched-up left eye of no less a warrior than Capt. Cagle himself, the squad arrived with every indication of being in good condition, as well as confident spirits. Cagle's eyebrow was decorated largely for protection of a slight cut. Wendell Bowman, quarterback, who was injured early in the Harvard game, has been dismissed from the casualty column, and will call signals for the first time since the battle of Cambridge.

CADETS EAGER

"The boys realize they are up against real competition," said Jones. "I expect them to make a good showing, but Illinois has a more experienced team and figures to be the favorite.

"From all reports I have had, Zuppke has a fast set of backs with a seasoned line, strong from end to end. I expect to see a lot of passing and if Cagle gets the range, we will have at least a chance to win."

In the present squad are three veterans of the 1926 Army team that made the last Western trip, Capt. Cagle, Fullback Murrell, and George Washington Perry, giant tackle.

They have only an ancient memory to remind them of the last occasion as Army team played any representative of the Big Ten. It was in 1905 and the Cadets on their home grounds, beat the Chicago team led by the famous Walter Eckersall. West Point then was piloted by Horatio B. Hackett, later Col. Hackett, and now a noted football official in the midwest.

En route from West Point, Cagle got in a little broken field practice by wandering off the station platform at Indanapolis, and being farced to gallop through a flock of trucks to board the train as it started. The squad had a little exercise before breakfast at Bellefontaine, Ohio.

On their first long trip of the season the players acted as though out on a big frolic.

PETERS TO PLAY

Over at the Champaign Country Club, Bob Zuppke put the finishing touches to his team's drill and indicated the versatile Frosty Peters, out of the game for some time with a cracked rib, will be at quarterback today. With Fritz Humbert, plunging fullback also in shape, the Illini have Walker and Timm to round out their strongest ball-toting quartet, with capable reserves in Mills and Yanuskus.

The game will be broadcast over a network of the National Broadcasting Company, as well as by WGN, of Chicago, and WILL, the University station. Kickoff is at 2 p. m. The probable lineup:

Army.		Illinois.
Carlmark	L.E.	Wolgast
Price	L.T.	Gordon

in., the team attended mass in a body before proceeding to the hostelry. A last-minute mix-up over reservations landed the Bluffites at the Cairo Hotel instead of at the Arlington, where they had originally figured upon putting up.

PAY VISIT TO WHITE HOUSE

The morning hours were consumed with a sight-seeing tour, this latter being topped off at 12:45 by a visit to the White House and and audience with President Hoover. Following a brief introduction indoors, the Pittsburghers repaired with the chief executive to the lawn of the presidential mansion, where the photographers got in a series of effective licks. Congressman Guy E. Campbell arranged the party.

"I wish you the best of Luck!" was Hoover's parting remark.

From the White House, the squad shoved off immediately for the Cardinal stadium, a chamingly situated structure capable of accommodating 20,000 spectators. A fast, two-hour signal drill ensued on the excellent turf within the arena, after which all hands were hustled back to the hotel for a quiet evening and a good night's rest.

Today is Homecoming Day at Catholic U., a fact that lends color to what already had loomed as a most attractive contest. Although omens for good weather are not the most propitious, quite a monster throng is expected to attend the engagement. The kick-off is set for 2:30 o'clock.

La Fay Rallies, Wins Over Maxie Strub

ERIE, Pa., Nov. 9.—Frankie La Fay, Troy lightweight, staged a whirlwind finish in the last six rounds here last night to cart off the decision over Maxie Strub, of Erie, in the 10-round main event.

Heavy Andrews, Erie, outclassed Eddie Ryan, Jamestown, and won by a technical knockout in the third round of what was to have been a six-round semi-final.

Johnny Dunn, New Kensington, handed Dandy Allen, Erie, Negro, a decisive trimming in a six-rounder, and Johnny Willis, Philadelphia, outpointed Pete Mazzeo, Cleveland, in a great fight.

In the six-round opened, Lou Wallace, Cleveland, outpointed Matty Oldach, Erie.

IRWIN AT MONESSEN

The Irwin Mohawks will be the attraction at Monessen this afternoon, meeting the Olympics. Manager Jack Mier is looking for a banner crowd. The Mohawks play a great game, although the Olympics are not hitting their best stride.

Football Whoopee, Opera Variety on Air Tonight

By DARRELL V. MARTIN,
Sun-Telegraph Radio Editor.

ANTICIPATING a gridiron victory over Catholic U. at Washington, the Duquesne University Band has prepared to celebrate over KQV at 8 o'clock tonight.

Messages and news items, furnished by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, will be broadcast from Station KDKA at 12:15 a. m. to Sir Hubert Wilkins and members of his expedition now nearing their base at Deception Island in the Antartic. Music and personal greetings will be included in the program.

Let's go sight-seeing over the United States with Bradford Browne, Norman Brokenshire and other Nit Wits at 6:30 p. m. through WJAS.

KDKA will have the Chicago Civic Opera Company in Verdi's "Il Trovatore" at 10.

A pre-Armistice Day program will be given by the Lyric Challengers, KDKA at 8 o'clock. It is entitled "The Unknown Soldier" and is based on the burial in Arlington Cemetery of a doughboy who was stopped by enemy guns in the World War.

Dance lovers will have Paul Specht's orchestra, WJAS at 8:30, while Walter Damrosch and Floyd Gibbons will collaborate in another General Electric hour program through WCAE at 9.

We Now Present

Francis C. Owen departs tomorrow for Canada, there to shoot a moose for the boys at the local I. O. O. M.

He takes with him a special dispensation from James J. Davis to get as many moosers as he can.

Our pleasure to hear some grand singing by the Orpheus Choir on the WTAM grand opening program the other night. The Ordpheus, under Charles Dawe, has captured two of the International Eisteddfods held in Europe.

Learned that Mr. Dawe is a personal friend of our own "Bob" Davies, Sun-Telegraph makeup man, and a most proud Welshman.

Helen Douglass, whom you've heard often on the Gospel Song Hour, is "Ma" in the "Seth Parker Singing School" at WCAE.

While most of the men at KDKA live in Wilkinsburg, most of the feminine artists at WCAE reside in the Beaver Valley.

TOUCHDOWN: Milton Tully is playing a new game which should land him in a hospital sooner or later. Approaching a friend from the rear he smacks him a healthy crack on the back and yells, "Hi, Friend!"

The Negro janitor at KQV also has a new game. It is called "530" but so far he has never won.

"I bean to lunch," said the KDKA telephone operator cutely the other day when invited to dine.

TODAY'S TID BIT:

Microphones are most expensive, ranging in price from $75 to $400.

Play, "The Unknown Soldier."

The story takes place on November 11, 1921, at the unveiling of the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier at Arlington Cemetery in Washington, D. C. It centers about an old mother who watches the ceremonies and believes that the Unknown Soldier is her son, who had been killed in action. As she stands before the tomb, memory takes her back to the days before she was a gold star mother. She reviews the three most memorable stages of her son's life, when he was 7 years of age, when he was 14, and when he was just 21 and went off with countless others to accept the challenge to keep the world safe for democracy.

Verdi's "Il Trovatore."

The story of the opera, which will be told in part during the broadcast, tells of the lifelong hate and successful revenge of the gypsy woman Azucena against the Count di Luna. This tale of complexities and coincidences opens with a gruesome ballad in which Ferrando, captain of the Guard, discloses that Azucena's hatred is based on the burning of her mother, a condemned witch, by the Count's father. Azucena, as her first act of revenge, he tells, stole the brother of the Count di Luna.

Manrico and the Count are rivals for the love of the Duchess of Aragon. The rivals meet after visiting the Duchess, and fight a duel in which Manrico spares the life of the Count.

The Duchess, Lenora, retires to a convent when Manrico is reported dead. The Count attempts to carry her off before her vows are completed. Manrico arrives in time to liberate Leonara. As she is about to become the bride of Manrico, word is received that the long-sought Azucena has been captured and is about to be burned. Manrico rushes to save his foster mother. He is captured and thrown into prison with her.

Lenora offers herself to the Count as the price of Manrico's freedom. With her lover's freedom assured, she takes poison from her ring and dies. The Count di Luna, finding Leonora dead in her lover's arms, orders Manrico's execution. He drags Azucena to a window to witness the execution. "He was thy brother!" screams the hag in mad glee.

Elliott Forgets to Call on Pat After Witnessing Plane Crash

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Mary Patricia Dawn, pert, young, demi-brunette, sees her little brother, Dickie, fail to rise after a dive in the lake. Pat brings up the apparently lifeless body. All hope seems gone when suddenly an airplane sweeps down out of the sky. Pat's father arrives with Guy Elliott, a tall, handsome youth as pilot. Quick action follows and Dickie recovers. Later Elliott kisses and takes Pat for an air ride. Happy days follow, with Pat and Guy in love. Then comes Barbara Bryce with the seductive lure of shadowy eyes.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER IV.

SHE was dressed in a black flying suit. This enhanced her pallor and the pale brightness of hair fluttering at her forehead.

She was an arousing woman—Barbara Bryce—with an unconscious gift for presenting herself in picturesque and romantic attitudes.

It was two years since young William Bryce, her dashing, daredevil husband, went down to instant death in his plane. But she still wore the deepest mourning. She still caused a stir by her white and lovely quiet.

And she flew every twilight in one of her husband's planes about the very scene where he had crashed. A legend sprang up that she was seeking his spirit in these skies which he so loved and wished to conquer. She believed he dwelt there and there awaited her.

Often Guy met her. At times they flew together. Or, they stopped to chat after landing. She intrigued him. Those lovely, haunting eyes, that lustrous pallor and the brilliant courage of her.

She said with childlike gaiety: "I've a new plane! Oh, a beauty. I'm taking it up just as soon as I can deposit my small son with his grandfather. Please come and watch Silver Streak's maiden flight."

She flashed when her eyes met his. A faint perfume of jasmine drifted upward as Barbara stopped and took her little boy's hand.

He pulled from her with an engaging: "Pardon me!" and pointed to the model: "I want one of them. Tell him to make me one."

Barbara laughed: "We'll rush right over and tell the grandfather. That's the quickest way to get your order filled, laddie!"

Pleasantly excited, Guy returned to his work table. Two delightful faces passed before him; one was romantically sad, the other had piquant joyousness, and its green eyes looked up to his with shy, yearning appeal. "Ah, the loves" he murmured.

In the midst of these pleasant musings he became conscious of muttering, ferocious undertones. He turned just as Tom Burns, mechanic, man of all work and at present acting as draughtsman, brushed pencils from him with an angry clatter. He was a dark, thin man, with bitter lines from his nose to his drawn lips.

"It's an outrage! It's a burning shame. That kid can have a fortune squandered on toys; my kid can ask in vain for mere food! Did you see the wrist watch that 2-year-old wore?"

"Why get sore, Tom, because Billy Bryce has a grandfather with the money-making gift?"

"Wait till you see a child starved, Elliott! Wait till you hear it crying out in the dark for food you can't earn."

"Those days are over. Why don't you forget them?"

For a brief moment Burns stared hotly into the young man's face. His eyes had the wild, fevered look of a madman's. He grabbed his hat.

"Over? The effect of them isn't. My kid never will forget them—his body—his poor hungry little body will bear the brunt of those days for life!"

"Poor devil," thought Guy as the fellow flung past him into the yards. "Chip on his shoulder for the whole world because his kid is doomed. Tough break!"

He adjusted his straw hat at a jaunty angle and grinned at his image in the fragment of mirror above the wash-basin. After all, what was the grouch of Tom Burns to a young man upon whom fate and the fair ones both were smiling?

He took himself with young swagger to the flying field.

Barbara was already in the cockpit of her beautiful new plane. It was painted lavender with long streamers of silver. She caught his hand, her brown eyes filled with tears: "I'm just giddy about it. Father gave it to me for my birthday. Do you think you can catch me? Hop on your swallow and try!"

She took off just a moment or two before him. She rose with long, sweeping curve.

It was very clear. Very still. He found himself admiring the cleverness with which she executed a chandelle. She flew close and waved.

"Yes," he shouted, knowing well she couldn't hear. "You're very smart indeed!"

Suddenly she began to bank, and suddenly before he could guess what could have happened, her plane went into a spin.

He could see that she fought it. For one terrible moment the ship floundered. Then it was spinning and spinning. She couldn't right it.

He thought in anguish: "God, why doesn't she jump!"

He was about to send his plane close—wildly close, when Barbara climbed out of the cockpit. She stood poised on the cowling of the dizzily spinning ship; stood hesitant, unwilling to plunge.

A frozen eternity she stood before that blind leap; before he saw her body drop like a stone. She fell faster than the ship.

Would she pull the cord? Would she never pull it!

Guy shut his eyes. He thought, sickened: "She's crashed by now."

The parachute was opened. And she was floating, but in the path of the falling plane. They went spining in the sunset like two unearthly phantoms.

At last she was guiding the 'chute; she was on the outside of the plane's orbit.

With a sob of relief he watched her sailing. Down—down. She was landing.

He followed. He came running across an open field. Barbara lay on the ground, tangled a little in the shroud lines.

Half an hour later they came upon the wrecked plane. It was tangled into a ball-shaped mass. They stood in the orchard where it had crashed. They regarded it mutely as though a living thing was finished. Their hands found each others.

Barbara said shakily: "Now you'll have to take me home." When he lifted her to the cockpit of the Bryce-Swallow, she said, warmly: "I'm glad you're with me." Then in a strange, frightened tone: "I wonder why it happened?"

He answered eagerly. "Are you sure you're not hurt? Not hurt at all?"

She gave him a happy, reassuring smile. But her eyes had an awed look, and her pale face touched with dreams, caught the young man with a pang. How terrible that so beautiful a girl should live Barbara's lonely life; how tragic that her love was snatched from her before it had scarce bloomed.

He wrapped a blanket that he found in the plane about her. And she was grateful as a child for his ministrations. She touched his hand with a soft: "You're very kind."

He answered blithely: "Very easy being kind. To you."

At 8 o'clock that memorable evening a young girl waited in the moonlight. She dreamed of love and a brown young man—dark, god-like youth in whose eyes was the glory of the ages, was the summons to love. Pat's heart rapped out a song of happy yearning.

At a quarter past eight Dickie came along, perched at her side. "Gee, you're all dolled up. Let's go to a movie."

"Don't feel like it, thank you."

He began practicing with a stick and an imaginary golf ball.

At 8:30 he made a second advance. "Say—gonna stand there mooning the rest of the night?"

"Be quiet."

"Aw—come off—let's go and make fudge."

She gave him a lofty, silencing glare.

"Gee—you're touchy and grand, all right!"

At a quarter of nine he said: "Gosh, it's getting cold! Aren't you ever coming in?"

"Who's holding your feet! Siamese twin!"

She moved haughtily down to the big pepper tree and stood gazing into the deep shadows on the distant hills. Inside in the living room, Laura would be wondering... Laura would say: "Isn't it strange—why didn't he phone?"

Pat wondered with aching heart: "Why didn't he? I wonder what's happened."

She stole quietly across the little inclosed patio. This was one of the things they so loved about their home. Laura Dawn had planted pink Castillian roses and these were now climbing up the walls.

Whenever Pat entered the hushed inclosure she fancied herself a romantic senorita for whom men gladly sang and perished.

But she went quickly and with hot cheeks tonight. She hoped to heaven that Laura wouldn't remember—wouldn't come softly into her room to inquire and to comfort.

A pair of blazing green eyes stared long into the darkness that night.

At 11 o'clock Guy Elliott, emptying out his pockets, came across a little card—"Pat—dinner 7:30—" He stared at it. He had completely forgotten.

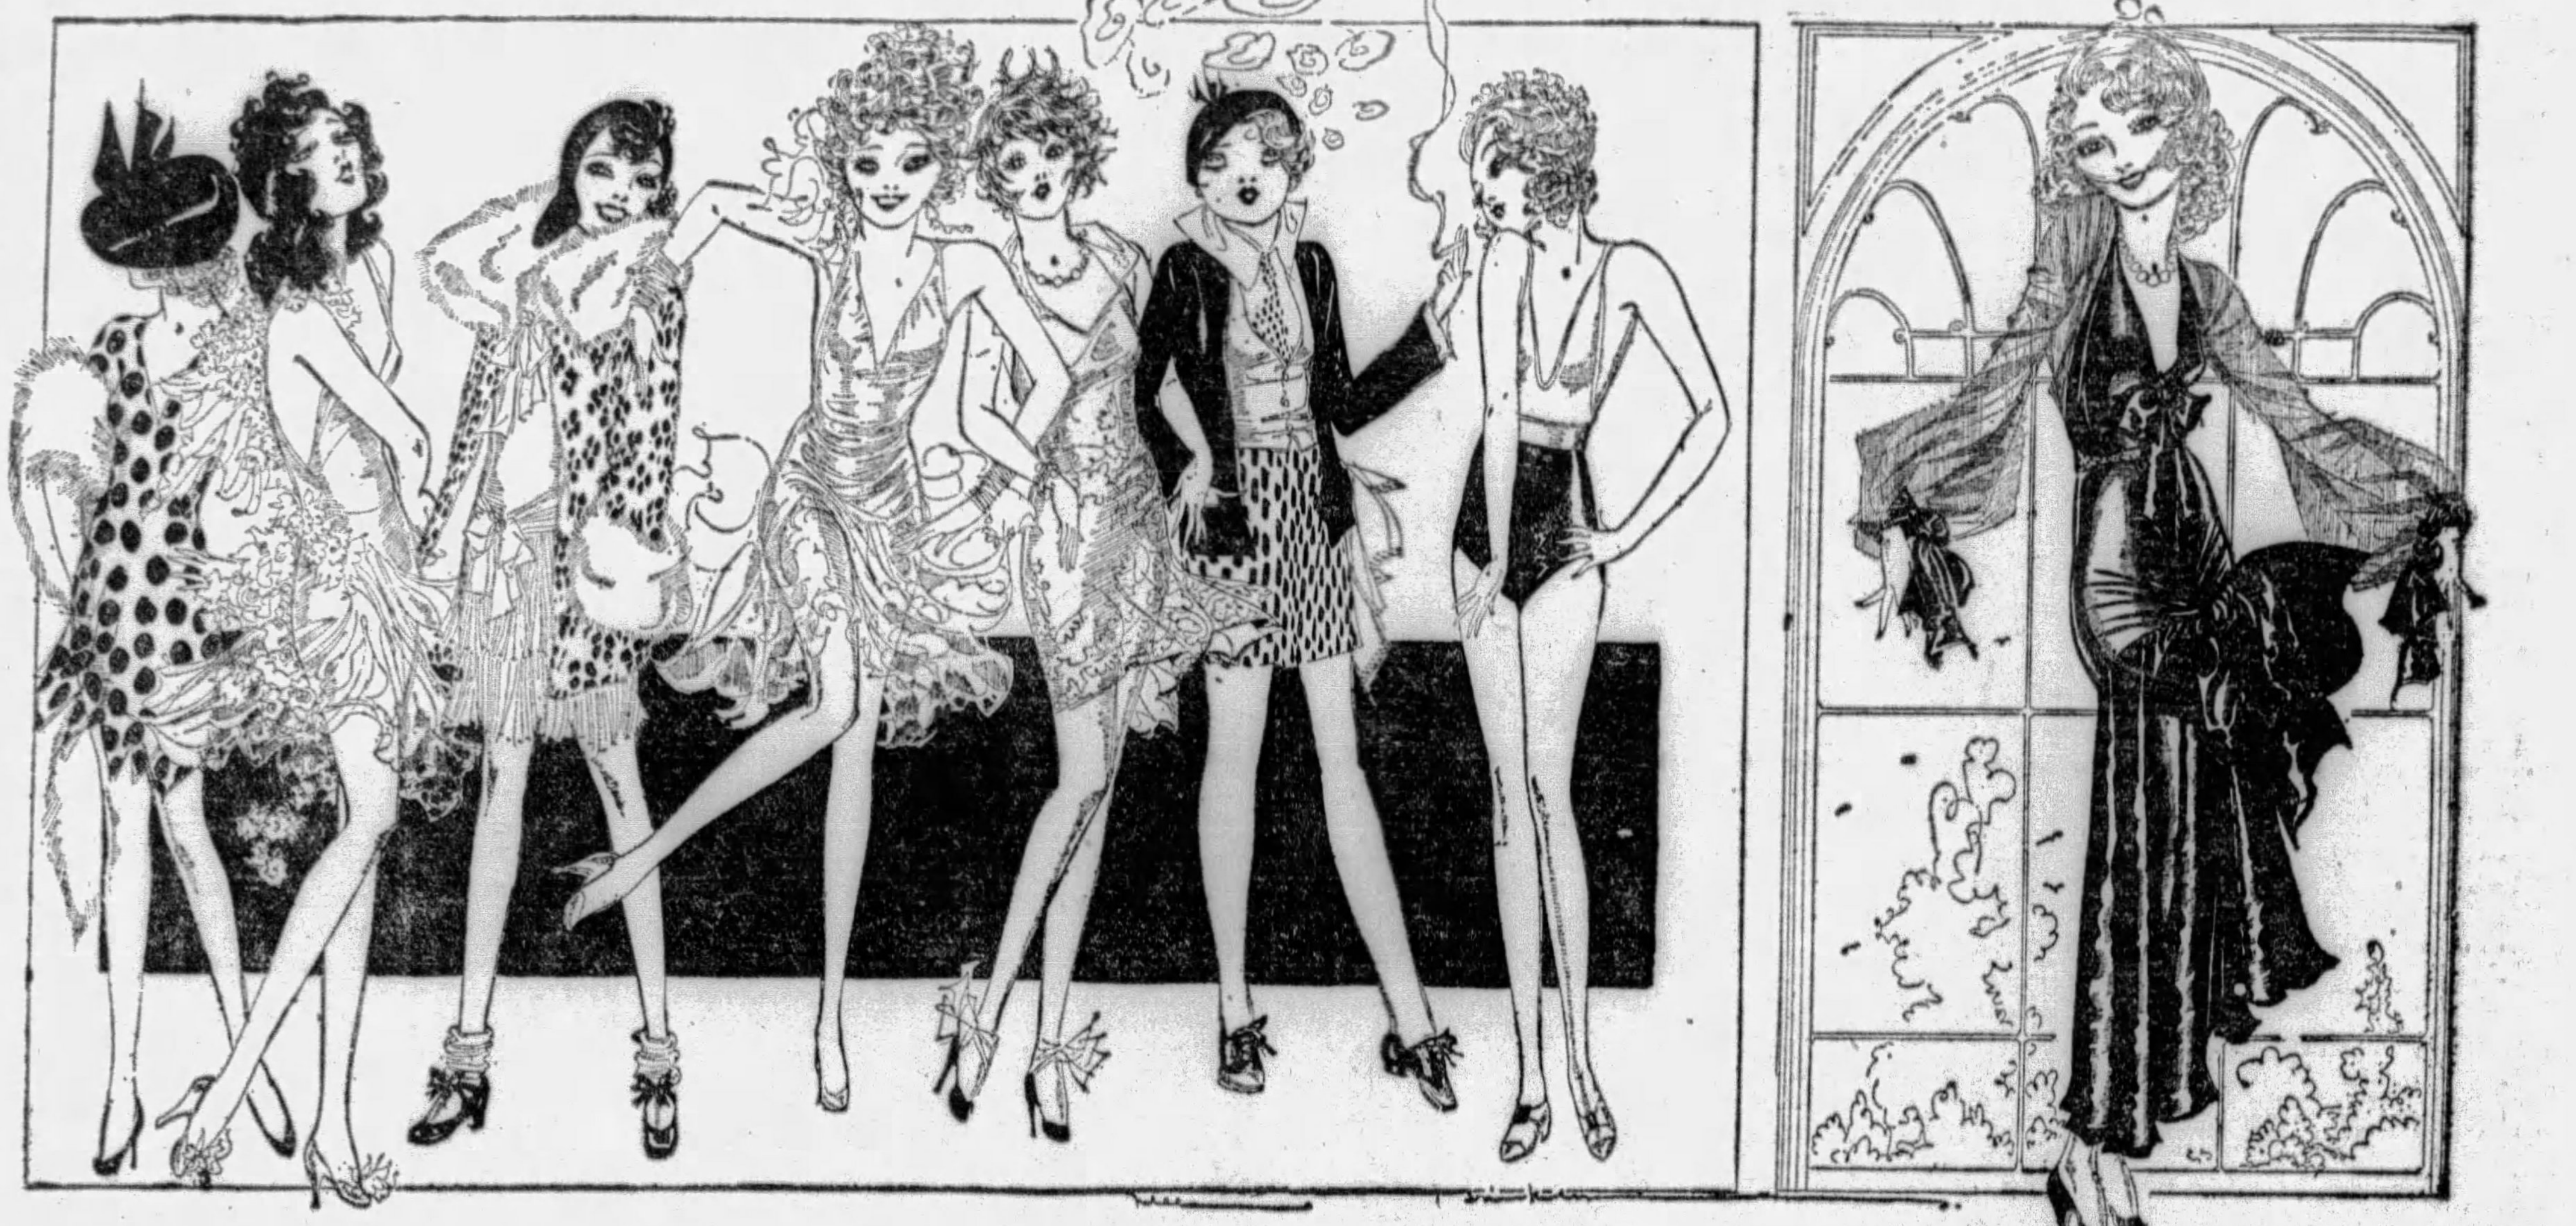
"It Won't be Long Now" Until They're Long!

Drawn by NELL BRINKLEY



FASHION says, "It won't be long now" that you will be surrounded by such a feminine landscape as this! The at-last-old familiar sights are fading out and a new girl is taking shape on the fashion-screen. At last we have gotten use to knees, so used to them that we can look through them and not see them.

It took quite a while. And the feminine world by now is used to her own being out in the air and is no more self-conscious of them. For, believe it or not, says Mr. Ripley, girls WERE self-conscious of the scope of leg that must be displayed to not be different from all the rest of the lady-world.

And now that both the lady herself and the gentleman who admires her are almost in a state of coma so far as legs—feminine—are concerned, now when we have almost come to regard the brief skirt as a uniform that could never change greatly, now that we know the comfort of short skirts to the last drop—what must it have been like to try and climb a mountain trail, to negotiate a fence or even the Alps of a broken-up New York street in those days of innumerable ruffles around the feet and trailing behind!—now that we have finished telling ourselves that "really long skirts can never come back," lo! they are here. The screen, fashion herself, the French woman—that barometer of style—the shop-windows, returning stars on the big boats from Europe, the best-dressed woman and girl on the street—all these are already parading in at least longer skirts. Even now it is old-fashioned to show the knees. "The freedom of the knees," just as grandmother has begun to feel chipper showing hers, is gone.

Knees are passe. Some of the latest velvet gowns look as if the owners had fallen in the river and gotten all wet, so LONG they look from the high waist line to the ankle hem!

One beautiful thing. Gentlemen can WONDER again about us. And that will be an interesting state of mind for both him and us.

Take a long look, gentlemen, while knees, a few of them, are still out, before they all go into a long, long retirement from the world. For women will change; knees, my dear, have had a long whoopee, and now the lambs are called in for—nobody knows how long.

We'll take the longer frock, both boys and girls, with gratitude if only it will know where to stop. But marching along with long skirts has always come those hateful poor relations—corsets, boned bodices, tight shoes, blocks of heavy petticoats, choker collars—all the uncomfortable housing that women at last have gotten rid of and are so HAPPY without!

There's the dread. If those horrors come again, after this freedom, life won't be worth living for a lady!

Love's Awakening A Continuation of Love's Embers

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge and Lillian Decide to Announce Engagements

I COULD only look at Lillian in mute reproach as she outlined the plan of seating for our trip to the city upon the next day. She laughed aloud as she saw my expression, then clapped me reassuringly upon the shoulder.

"Don't look so doleful, dear heart," she adjured me. "I'll guarantee that old Phil won't eat you, and the Dicky-bird has had his weekly tantrum. He's not due for an ascension for at least six days. And how my dear old dramatic friend will cuss inwardly all the way to the city. He's always uncomfortable when there are three people in his car—two is his limit—and four will drive him batty. However, it will serve him right. Why can't he proffer his car without restrictions and go into the city by train or hire a car—he can well afford to fly in if he wants to."

"To do him justice," I began.

"Oh, yes, I know that he probably said he would leave it with us," she said scornfully, "knowing full well that we knew he would think us most boorish if we did not invite him. But at that I don't see what harm he can do."

"He'll be with Noel and Olina all the way in," I said.

"And you," Lillian retorted. "Don't forget that little circumstance. If you can't make him forget the other two are on earth, I miss my guess."

She laughed with malicious glee as I drew myself up, instinctively offended.

"Aha! drew you that time," she said. "But, don't get me wrong, I don't mean that you are to vamp the old lad. Just get him talking about his new plans—oh, he'll be glad to show off before Olina, and he won't have a second's inclination to discuss his son's romantic affairs—or his own."

She threw me another provocative glance which I ignored.

"Nevertheless," I said steadily, "I think it would be a very wise thing to see that neither Olina nor Noel gives him any news of the two betrothals."

"Right you are," she said, adding coolly. "And you're the logical lady to do that little thing."

She gave me no time to protest, rushing on with another malicious little grin.

"By the way, when do you think those announcements will be made. You can't put them off forever, you know."

"I had thought," I said slowly, "that it wouldn't be a bad idea to have them announced at the dinner in the hotel day after tomorrow, to which we already have invited Philip Veritzen."

"Good enough," she commented. "Let's see—our four young romanticists, you and Dicky, Harry and I, and old Phil. He'll be an extra man, but that won't matter. I'll take care of both Dicky and Harry, leaving the guest of honor to you as the hostess. We'll have dinner served in your living room, if you don't mind. It's the largest room of the two suites. Of course, the public dining room is out of the question for any meal until this danger is over."

"Of course," I repeated mechanically. Lillian looked at me keenly and again clapped me on the shoulder.

"Take the weight of the world off your shoulders," she advised. "You'll see that Phil will be most tractable, and I'll throw myself into the breach. I'll warn Noel that no mention must be made of his engagement before the dinner. Leave the rest of it to him. Those eyes of his could persuade any girl to his way of thinking."

"If you would!" I exclaimed relievedly, ignoring her comment upon Noel, with which, however, I thoroughly agreed.

"I will if you'll smooth out your forehead and park that load of care in the nearest dumping place," she retorted. "There isn't the slightest reason for it. If I know you, everything is packed except your toothbrush."

I flushed and asknowledged her thrust.

"And you certainly don't have to worry about arrangements here with Mother Graham, Katherine and Katie on the job."

"Worrying would be an impertinence," I said, smiling in spite of the depression which I could not shake off.

"Exactly. Then for the love of all the patriarchs go and do the thing you want most to do for the rest of the time you're here. Get your father and Junior and go out into the orchard or somewhere not too far from the house for safety, but far enough so that nobody will disturb you. I'll engage to keep everybody away. Here, turn that faucet off—" as she saw the quick tears in my eyes. "You've been too much of a Trojan through all this to weaken now."

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

The Gentleman Stands.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I went to visit my wife's parents, and while sitting on the porch of their house my wife's sister, who is 15 years of age, was sitting on the porch with one of her young boy friends. About 10 minutes later he arose to leave, and she accompanied him. When they passed my wife and me she introduced the boy to us. He was about 17. I did not rise from my chair, but shook hands with him. Later I was told that I should have stood up. Was I correct in remaining seated?

IRVING.

NO, you should have stood up. Your wife's sister was standing, and therefore you should have stood. And especially when she was making an introduction. The fact that she is so young makes no difference.

A Simple Home Wedding.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. I am planning to have a simple home wedding. Do I engage the minister, or is the groom supposed to pay for this?

2. Would it be correct for me to wear the clothes I intend to wear on our trip to be married in? Say a dark brown dress, coat and hat?

3. However, if I should be married at the parsonage do I make an appointment with our minister and take care of the cost in advance?

AN EVERY-DAY READER.

YOU go to see the minister—with your mother, perhaps—and engage him, but the groom gives him the fee for performing the ceremony.

2. Yes, since your wedding is, apparently, to be informal.

3. No.

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

Love Is Enough!

LIFE, without the ONE man or the ONE woman who loves you and understands, is like chatting over the telephone with nobody at the other end of the wire.

HELEN ROWLAND

Just as we always leave something behind in every hotel room we vacate, so we leave something of ourselves behind in every marriage we abandon, and a few of our illusions in every love-affair we check out of.

There are times, when a disgruntled wife can't help thinking what a "sympathetic husband" her lawyer would make.

This country is going "antique!" Its furniture goes as far back as Queen Anne, its architecture dates back to Colonial days or the early Spanish, and its morals, its love-making and its manners appear to have been revived from the Stone Age.

A man may not need any woman's shoulder to weep on. He may be strong enough to bear his own burdens, keep his troubles to himself, do his own cooking and mix his own cough medicine. But he MUST have somebody to help him admire himself, believe in him and amuse him! And only a woman can do that!

* * *

Divorce was once just an antidote for domestic suffering; but now it is becoming a "prescription" which some women have filled and re-filled periodically, like a spring tonic.

Nature is good to women, when she blows the star-dust of desire into a man's eyes, so that he can't see where he's going when he's heading for matrimony.

The most wearisome task of a woman's life, these days, is waiting for the marrying idea to penetrate the top-soil of a man's mind sufficiently to take root.

Some men struggle out of a love-affair, others crawl out of it, and others just "check out" of it, with perfect nonchalance.

Horoscopes

Sunday, November 10

SUNDAY'S horoscope is a rather disconcerting and menacing one for all affairs other than social, domestic, romantic and artistic. There may be peculiar and sinister moods as well as openly violent actions—to make the day an unholy one, unless well governed.

Those whose birthday it is are urged to take themselves in hand during the year lest violence, passion, sublety and conspiracy beset them. Steady application may help obviate hostilities both open and hidden.

A child born on this day will have many humane and lovable qualities despite proclivities toward strife. Early training in elements of principle and self-control are enjoined.

Monday, November 11

A VERY lively and eventful day is the presage made from the strong positions of Mercury and Uranus in friendly aspect with Luna. There may be much stirring about, with new contacts and agreements, but these may not be profitable unless conservative use of funds and the curbing of personal extravagance be held in mind.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a lively year, with much movement and new contacts, but success may not be attained unless speculation, extravagance and generally reckless use of money be avoided. With good judgment and conservatism things may flourish.

A child born on this day will be clever, original and adventurous, but will not profit financially unless extravagance and speculation be avoided.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Avoid Complications of Nasal Infections

ONE ailment, common at that, is practically disregarded by most persons, I refer to the cold, prevalent at every time of year. Nobody thinks of going to bed to nurse a cold and, unless it is very bad indeed, almost nothing is done to relieve it.

DR COPELAND

Of course, a cold is like influenza, in one sense. It is not serious if uncomplicated. Nobody ever died of influenza; nobody ever dies from the immediate effects of a cold. It is the secondary pneumonia that is responsible for the serious and even fatal effects of influenza. The complications are what make a neglected cold dangerous.

The familiar type of cold begins in the nose. First there is a sense of dryness and then the nose begins to "run." Then it creeps around to other tissues than those lining the nasal passages.

In order to appreciate what the cold may do or where it may go, we must consider the nose in its relationship to other structures. What passageways exist, down which the disease may march to cause further trouble?

The direction usually taken is downward into the throat, perhaps in the bronchial tubes and lungs. Perhaps the severity of the ailment may decrease within a few days, so that it sort of "tapers off" and disappears. Unfortunately, the symptoms may grow worse, because to the first infection has been added the disturbance produced by a second variety of germs.

But there is another passageway, besides the large and open one to the throat. It is known as the Eustachian tube. This is a canal running from a point where the nose and throat join, upward and backward, somewhat more than an inch in distance, to the interior of the ear, to what is called the "middle ear."

There is such a passageway on each side. The Eustachian tube is the drainage canal and ventilation pipe of the middle ear. It provides a means of escape for the secretions of the ear and also permits the passage of air.

If the tube is swollen and closed it gives the "stopped up" feeling you have in a cold. This condition may cause slight deafness, similar to that caused by getting the ears full of water while in swimming.

A cold in the nose may find its way into the Eustachian tube. The lining of the nasal passages and of the ear passage are the same—mucous membrane passes from one part into the other. Disease may take this route and produce swelling of the passageway.

If the tissues are so swollen that air cannot get through, you can understand why the secretions from the lining of the ear, secretions increased by the inflammation, will be penned up within that cavity.

What happens then?

Earache! Bursting, throbbing, cutting pain. That is the way the trouble starts. A neglected cold in the nose becomes a violent inflammation in the ear.

Things That Burn Me Up and Knock Me Cold!

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.

DALE "RED" JACKSON, who with Forest O'Brien, held the attention of America and probably the world when they broke the endurance flight record over St. Louis a few months ago by staying up 420 hours, is now out of a job!

The Curtiss people have just abolished the special department in which the hero was employed.

There ought to be a law!

ADD SIMILIES

As rare as a plus sign in the stock market columns.

NIFTY

An actor was saying that William A. Brady who uses numerous players in his "Street Scene" hit was buying actors to appear in the Chicago company for one dollar the bushel.

"Really!" ejaculated Mary Phelps, "when did the price go up?"

ONE OF THE OLDEST

SPEAKING of Ripley's "Believe It or Not," as we were speaking a column or so ago, when Rip said that Red Rum and Murder spelled the same backward as forward, George Jean Nathan reminds us that the oldest and best palindrome was Napoleon's, viz: "Able was I ere I saw Elba."

OOP!

Page 20 of the current Brentano's Book Chat offers among other complaints from readers: "I was very much surprised to see an article on Walter Winchell in the columns of so sane and sound a magazine as Book Chat. And I might go so far as to say that I was disappointed. Why not let him stay in the tabloids where he belongs?—L. L."

Wonder how L. L. knows that we work for a tabloid.

IMAGINE!

WHAT probably is the dirtiest Broadway trick in many seasons was accounted for by a New York critic recently when he said of a new show: "It is, however, a pediculous play. As a matter of fact, the leading lady's acting is most pediculous and she looks pediculous."

The actress was thrilled. After buying two dozen copies of the newspaper she sent the writeup to her family and particularly to a manager of a stock company who once fired her.

Then she looked up pediculous in the Dictionary.

THE MORNING MAIL

"MY DEAR WALTER," passionately writes Irene Delroy, the leading lady of the "Follow Thru" show (who also incloses a clipping from Variety), "the inclosed clipping has annoyed me no end. I want you to know that I have no reason for disliking you or your notices. I have always found you fair. You certainly are entitled to your own opinion!

"So far as disturbing your sleep—I'm very sorry about that, and shall try to vocalize more softly in the future. The person who wrote that article in Variety has been most unfair.

"I like you and want you to like me!—Irene Delroy."

My Irene is the village scream!

"Dear Walter," writes Ona Munson, recently the leading lady of "Hold Everything!" (who doesn't begin her missive so fervently because she is Mrs. Eddie Buzzell), "I have been out of town for the past two weeks, so have just read that article in Variety about my vocalizing every morning at my vocal tutor's apartment and robbing you of your sleep. All I want to say is this is the first I've heard of the entire incident, and the reply Variety credited me with is purely out of their own imagination, or else they got the names mixed. Gosh, I know what you must be up against as we have a fiddle player next door to us that starts practicing at 8 a. m. I guess the moral is, we should all live in pent-houses.

At any rate, I feel badly about it, Walter, after the way we recently kissed and made up, and even Variety cannot come between us!—Ona Munson."

RACKET

OF THE new Broadway schemes to win a surefire wager this one is the most intriguing. The surefire winner says: "How long do you think it will take you to button up your vest after opening it?" If you say six seconds (which is what we said) he will say: "Would you bet that you couldn't button up your vest in 15 seconds or 30?"

Of course you bite, and argue that you certainly can, and then some one takes out a watch and times you. But you will lose every time!

UNSCRAMBLE THESE ANAGRAMBLES
DAILY ANAGRAM PUZZLES

TRY your hand at this fascinating game of Anagrambles—the game that is taking the town like the crossword puzzle craze took the whole nation for a ride through the dictionary.

The game is quite simple. Merely change the following words by the addition of the single letter indicated. Do not omit any letter of the original word. The letter may be inserted at the beginning of the word, anywhere within the word, or at the end. Thus, the word "pate," by the addition of the letter "l," becomes either "pleat" or "plate." The word "drag" may be changed to either "grade" or "raged" by the addition of the letter "e."

The original word must be changed in meaning by the commentary letter. To change "mine" by adding "d," to form "mined," would be incorrect. Rearrange the letters of your word to change its meaning, not its tense or number. Take a pencil now and write in your newly formed word in the spaces provided.

AS THIS PICTURE PLAY NEARS ITS END WE COME TO THE PART WHERE TRIXIE BLACK IS BLAMED FOR STEALING DIAMOND RINGS A GUEST LEFT ON THE TABLE. HER FATHER, ROCKNEY FLINT, BELIEVING HER GUILTY; TAKES THE BLAME AND LEAVES TOWN — BUT EMMA, THE COOK, SAW A WAITRESS TAKE THEM AND PUT THEM IN TRIXIE'S LOCKER AND MAKES HER CONFESS.
DO YOU SUPPOSE EMMA, THE COOK, COULD TAKE THE PART SHE PLAYED IN THE REAL STORY.
WHY NOT? — IT'S THE FIRST PICTURE WHERE MOST EVERY PART WAS PLAYED BY THE REAL CHARACTERS
MISS EMMA, DO YOU THINK YOU COULD TAKE THE PART WHERE YOU SAW THE WAITRESS STEAL THE DIAMONDS AND MADE HER CONFESS?
I DON'T WANT TO START BRAGGIN' BUT IF YOU WANT ME TO ACT IT LIKE IT WAS, I GUESS I CAN TAKE MY OWN PART BETTERN SOMEBODY ELSE
I'M IN THE PICTURE TOO AND I'M ACTIN' MY OWN PART — IT AIN'T NO ARTIFICIAL PART TRYING TO BE SOMEBODY ELSE — SOMETIMES SMALL BEGINNINGS HAVE BIG ENDINGS SO DON'T BE SO UPPISH.
AW, ANYBODY COULD PLAY THEIR OWN PART BUT I DONT KNOW NOBODY COULD PLAY YOURS LOTS OF SMALL BEGINNINGS HAVE A BIG FLOP SO COME OFF YOUR HIGH HORSE AND GET BACK ON YOUR PONY.

IN OTHER WORDS ACCORDING TO WHAT THEY SAID, IF I TOLD THEM A STOCK WAS SURE TO GO UP THEY FIGURED IT WAS A THOUSAND TO ONE SHOT IT WOULD GO DOWN. CAN YOU TIE THAT! IN OTHER WORDS, THEY ACCUSED ME OF PUTTING THE FIRM ON THE FRITZ BY PICKING STOCKS THAT REALLY WENT UP. THAT'S GOOD, EH?
WELL GEORGE I'M REALLY NOT SURPRISED. I KNEW THERE WAS SOMETHING ALL WRONG ABOUT THEM PAYING YOU $500. A WEEK FOR YOUR ADVICE.
WELL THEY MADE A BIG MISTAKE IN HIRING ME UNDER FALSE PRETENSES, OR WHATEVER THE NAME IS OF WHAT THEY DID TO ME. I'M GOING TO GET A NERVOUS BREAKDOWN, A FLEET OF GOOD LAWYERS, AND START HOLLERING FOR JUSTICE.
OH GEORGE DON'T TALK SO SILLY. THOSE MEN ALREADY GAVE YOU A LOT OF MONEY FOR NOTHING.
ALL THEY GAVE ME FOR NOTHING WAS THE AIR. I WANT JUSTICE. THIS THING IS SO MIXED UP LEGALLY THAT I KNOW I SHOULDN'T EVEN THINK ABOUT IT WITHOUT ADVICE FROM MY LAWYERS. THOSE BABIES WONT THINK I'M WRONG ALL THE TIME WHEN THEY HEAR A GOOD JURY FINDING THEM GUILTY, AT LEAST, OF BEING MILLIONAIRES.

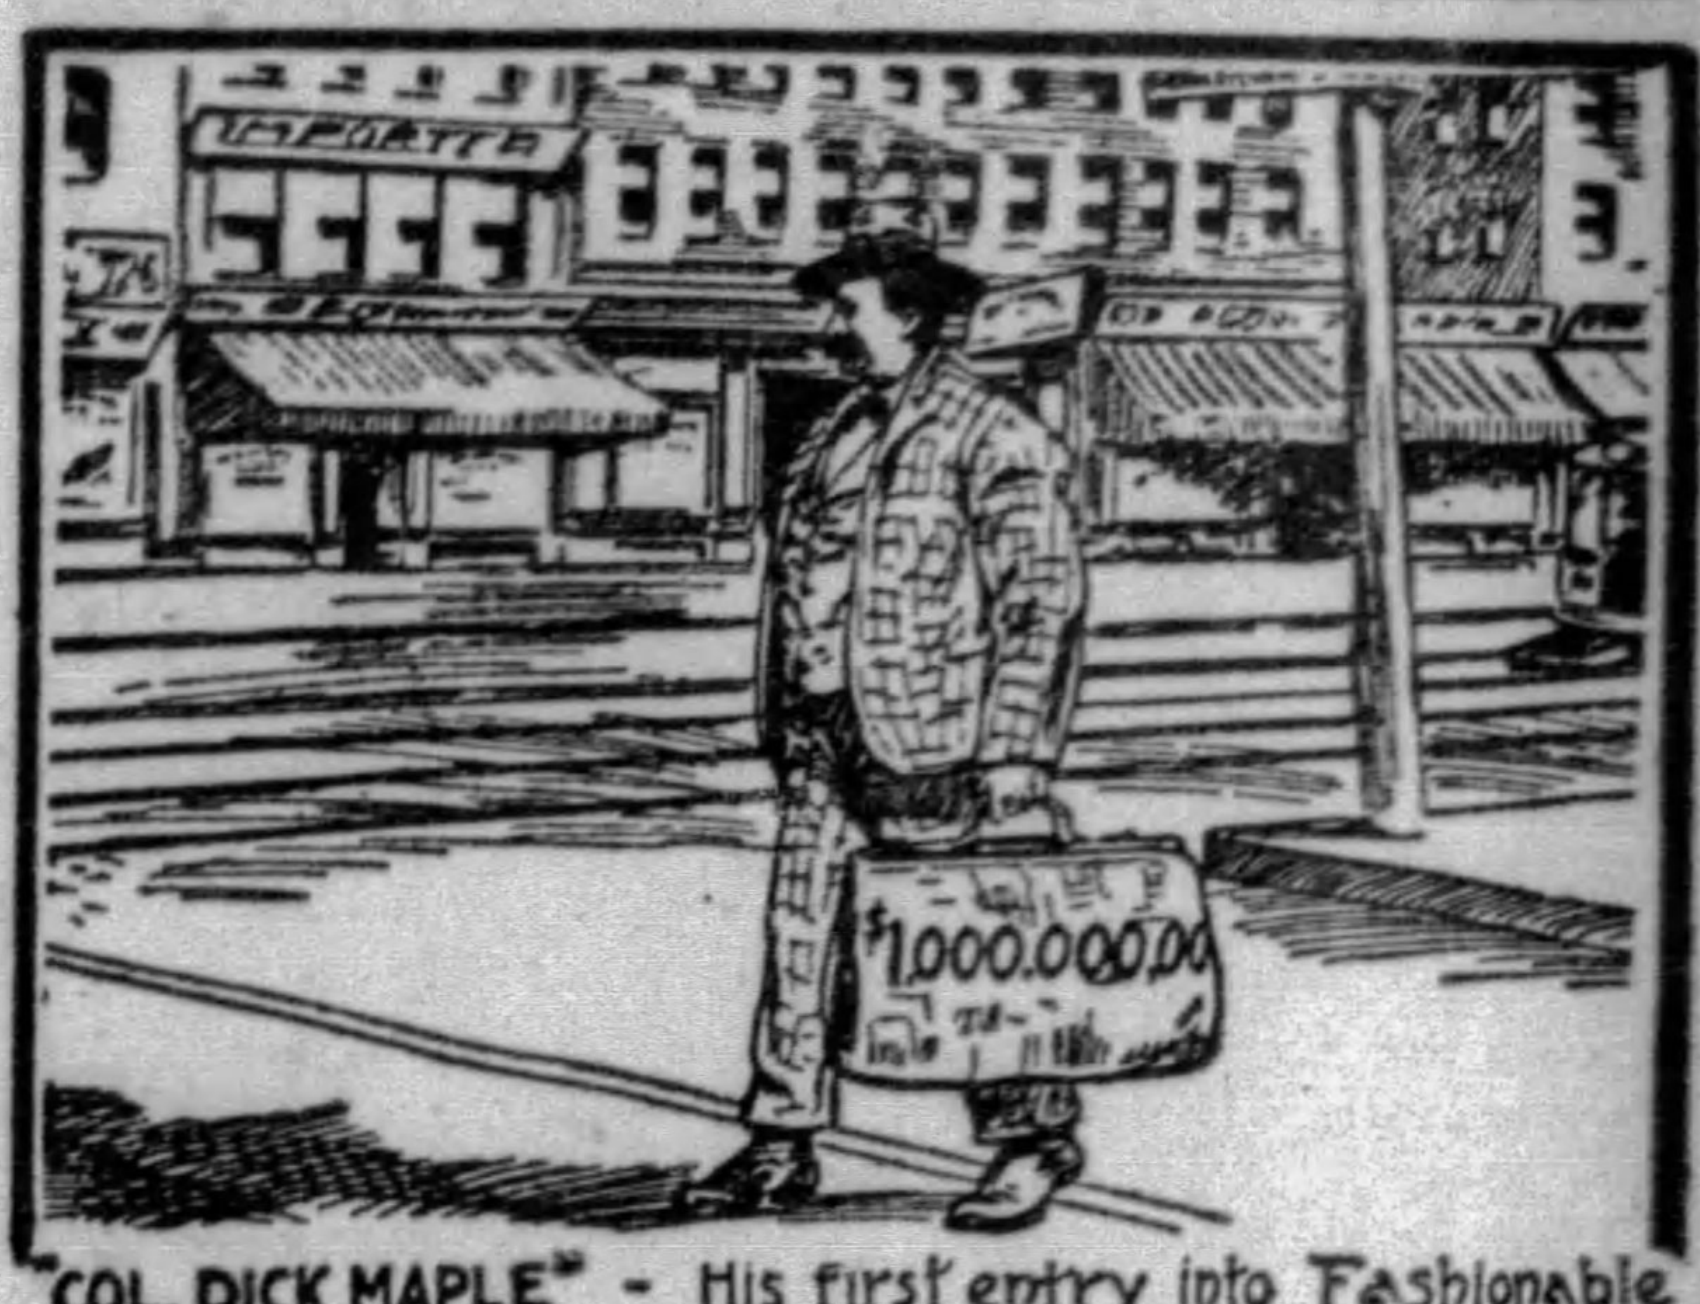
Why Colonel Maple Wrote "Palaces of Sin!"



"COL. DICK MAPLE" - His first entry into Fashionable Society after falling heir to his Aunt's money

(Actual illustration from the book.)

Editor's Note—Colonel Dick Maple, whose reform tracts will appear in this column, made it his business to investigate goings on in society and "wave the flag of warning to his fellowman." His "Palaces of Sin, or the Devil in Society" was published by the National Book Concern, St. Louis, a generation ago. It is our purpose to give the book a comprehensive review—and help stamp out the evils which this fearless crusader "painted in letters of fire."

"MANY are the mothers and fathers," says Colonel Maple in his preface, "who have, with tears in their eyes, begged me in the name of humanity to expose high society. I hesitated a number of years and then decided it was my duty."

And then Colonel Maple dashes off a sentence that is at once a masterful indictment, a literary gem, and at the same time an answer to a baffling puzzle. He says:

"It is easy to explain why no one has ever written a book like mine—as those who are in the seething cauldron of shame called high society are too busily engaged in their giddy whirl to destruction to pay any attention to humanity and but few who have ever entered this cyclonic whirlwind emerge from its blighting influence with sufficient manhood and womanhood to correctly portray the scenes of the awful abyss, but I have received so many letters from mothers and fathers that I have decided to send through the land a volume that will brand myself as once being a dupe and follower of the society herd, although, Reader, I am ashamed of the life I lived, but I had the manhood to extricate myself from Society's abominations and place my feet once more on solid foundation."

Tomorrow Colonel Dick will present more of his high purpose, and faultless logic. In a few days he will begin his detailed recital of life in society as he found it in Washington, D. C.

Pittsburgh Has Market In New Zeppelin Works

A new market for Pittsburgh industrial products was brought to the attention of the general public in the activities incident to "laying the ring" of the United States Navy dirigible airship, largest craft of the Zeppelin type in the world, in Akron the other day.

"Akron, it is our hope, will become the Zeppelin center of the world," asserted P. W. Litchfield, president of the Goodyear Zeppelin Corporation. "Pittsburgh and its industries will make such a hope possible."

Mr. Litchfield had concrete facts as a basis of his statement, half wish and half prophesy. He could acknowledge Akron's debt to Pittsburgh because Pittsburgh enterprise and material were employed in the construction of the huge edifice in which the new Zeppelin is to be built. And because Pittsburgh material will be used in the interior construction of the big airship.

This is another indication of why it always is possible to be optimistic about Pittsburgh's future. This particular market at our very door was not foreseen 10 years ago—or even less. Other unforeseen markets are held by the future. It is not possible to know all that the people of the United States will be doing next year, but it is certain they will be engaged in progress and that they will be making demands upon Pittsburgh.

Rigidly Enforced Law Against Lobbying Needed

Thanks to the thoroughness with which the Caraway committee is probing the lobby evil all its poisonous roots are being dragged into the light.

It now appears from the testimony of Lobbyist Arnold, of the Southern Tariff Association and the American Taxpayers League that the President as well as the Congress was a target for the lobbying activities of these organizations.

Senator Walsh, of Montana, put Mr. Arnold through a course of questions that brought from him the admission that "stiffening the backbone of the President" so that he would accept the high rates of the tariff bill passed by the House was part of this lobby's program.

With a view to bringing the President into line with the program of the Arnold lobbies, "interested parties" in widely scattered parts of the country were given to understand that "a campaign of education" in support of the House schedule for sugar and other commodities might have the desired effect upon the President.

All the while southern Democratic Senators opposed to the House bill were being subjected to an attack from their own states which was being bought and paid for by the lobbies operated by Mr. Arnold and his associates.

And the objective of all this direct and indirect lobbying was to mislead both the President and the Congress, if not intimidate them, into supporting a tariff bill acceptable to the special interests supporting the Arnold lobbies.

Not content with attempting to pollute legislation at the source these lobbyists appear to have been trying to intimidate both the President and the Congress with a stuffed club in the form of manufactured "public opinion" bought and paid for by lobbyists.

The revelations before the Caraway committee are becoming more astounding with each day's testimony. They go to show that the lobby evil is not only a disgrace to the American people but a grave danger to the integrity of their government.

And no halfway measures will suffice to eradicate this plague. It must be dealt a body blow. LOBBYING MUST BE MADE A PENAL OFFENSE AND THE LAW AGAINST LOBBYING RIGIDLY ENFORCED BEFORE THE LOBBY EVIL CAN BE ERADICATED.

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

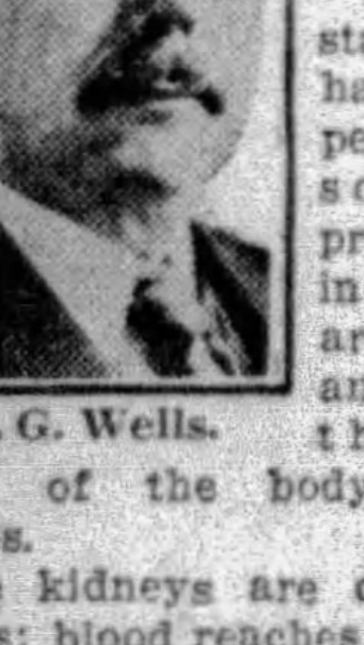
By H. G. WELLS

In Collaboration With

Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

IN general, the results of defective elimination are chronic and cumulative; they represent not an immediate disaster, but a slow fouling of the living machine.

Excretion is the word used to express the removal of these substances. Carbon dioxide can exist in gaseous form and is therefore excreted by the lungs. It diffuses into the blood.



H. G. Wells.

The other substances, however, have to be expelled in watery solution; the principal agents in this process are the kidneys and liver, although other parts of the body take minor shares.

The kidneys are chemical separators; blood reaches them with various undesirable matters dissolved in it and it flows away cleansed, while the impurities leave along a different channel which guides them safely out of the body. The liver is a chemical accomplice of the kidneys; it performs certain operations on the waste products in the blood, and converts them into other substances with which the kidney can more readily deal.

The duties of the liver are many; it is an organ to which we shall constantly refer.

Its most important function is concerned with the ammonia produced by active tissues. Ammonia is a definitely harmful substance, and has a convulstant action on nerve-centers; there is, therefore, danger in the ammonia, which living cells are continually shedding into the blood.

It is interesting to note that every living cell in us is doing its best to poison us as a whole and has to be specially restrained. It so happens that as blood flows through the liver the ammonia is converted into urea, a comparatively harmless substance, and in this way its sting is removed.

Since the whole of the blood from the intestines flows directly by a special route along a special system of veins (portal veins) to the liver, the ammonia is all dealt with before it can reach and injure any other part of the body.

Besides ammonia there are other dangerous products which are made harmless by the liver. For example, bacteria in the intestines produce two foul-smelling poisons, called indol and skatol, which find their way in small quantities into the portal blood, but here again the liver intervenes and converts them, before they can reach the general circulation into harmless substances that the kidneys can remove.

The liver may be imagined as a chemical censor of the blood that leaves the intestines, detecting such poisons as result from the digestive process. It does not actually expel them; it modifies them and then returns the disarmed products into the blood stream for the kidneys to expel at their convenience.

Our kidneys, much the same shape as those of a sheep, are about four and a half inches long and lie just in front of the vertebral column in the small of the back. Their blood-supply is copious; they receive blood by a short branch from the aorta, the great main artery of the body, and return it to the main venous trunk, the posteria vena cava.

Like the liver, the kidneys also censor the blood that passes them, but in addition they remove undesirable molecules altogether from the blood-stream, instead of merely neutralizing them. The liver rebukes and neutralizes, but the kidneys expel.

In addition to the blood-vessels, there is another tube leading out of each kidney—the ureter—down which there runs a continual trickle of water, carrying dissolved in it those substances which have been separated from the blood. This trickle of fluid—the urine—accumulates in the bladder, whence from time to time, it is expelled.

The kidneys regulate the proportions in which the various blood-constituents are present.

The kidneys assist in regulating the salt-concentration of blood by varying the proportion of salt to water in the urine it produces. Suppose, for example, that after violent sweating (which involves loss of salt) we drink a lot of water, the blood becomes watery and contains too little salt. To compensate for this deviation, the kidneys produce a large amount of urine which is practically pure water.

"Bugs" Baer Says:

A Grand Old Name

WE are indebted to the Senate inquiry for putting the finger on Mr. Grundy of Pennsylvania.

For 30 years we have been passing a chimney in this state. On that chimney was the name Grundy in fireproof brick.

"Bugs" Baer

Which is about the way Mr. Grundy acted in the senatorial spelling bee. He tossed them his signature in bricks.

In front of Mr. Grundy's factory there is a lake in which no swans float. Around that lake there are trees in which no birds sing.

It was a very mysterious series of buildings. Only the chimney was indorsed by Mr. Grundy.

We thought that the factory must have been dedicated to the manufacture of hand grenades for the holiday trade. Now we learn that Mr. Grundy is in no more deadly business than woolens and yarns.

During his spare hours he spares nobody. He is head-lobbyist of the high-tariff band.

Being from Pennsylvania, an alert state that had a whisky rebellion a century ahead of the other 47, Mr. Grundy feels like the largest of the Great Lakes.

He says that backward states should not have two Senators. He calls Idaho a moss-covered suburb because Borah comes from there.

When Senator Walsh (Montana, no moss), requested Mr. Grundy to apologize to the people of Idaho, Mr. Grundy said:

"It ain't my fault that Borah comes from there."

Mr. Grundy is grouched up because the western plateaus show no inclination to protect the industries of Pennsylvania. Senator Blaine (Wisconsin, alfalfa) asked of Mr. Grundy:

"Would you call Utah a backward state?"

"No," said Mr. Grundy (Pennsylvania, wools), "Utah is doing pretty well."

Mr. Grundy (Pennsylvania, yarns) didn't say why he thought Utah was not backward. Probably because the Mormons came from there.

"Is California backward?" asked Senator Borah (Idaho, and an authority on the subject) in purring emphasis.

"I should say not," Mr. Grundy whirled, "Mr. Borah don't come from there."

And that's where the investigation simmers. We hope for Mr. Grundy's sake that his beautiful chimney doesn't take a bow.

OSCAR TAKES A RIDE

By Herbert Kaufman

OSCAR arrived yesterday.

When he stepped down the gangplank of the Ellis Island tender, his brother was waiting at the dock with a brand new, shining, plush-upholstered sedan.

Oscar left Europe in the steerage. He enters America in a private car. You can't tell HIM that he doesn't stand a chance in the United States.

He begins life in a new world on terms of WHEELED EQUALITY, not on the CURB-EDGE, taking the dust of PRIVILEGED classes.

The cornerstone of Socialism was the carriage block. So long as the average passerby was reminded of his inferiority by that symbol, confiscatory political doctrines increasingly played upon envy and discontent.

ACTUAL democracy reached this continent by way of Detroit and Akron. Present social organization became shock-proof when the flivver began to roll out of the carpenter's yard and the charwoman's husband started to call for her in his own machine.

Until then we lived in TWO camps—the riders versus the walkers. And it had been so since Time's boyhood. The chariot and the palanquin were ancient Asia's cachets of aristocracy and affluence. "Patrician" and "equestrian" were synonymous terms in Rome. "Chevalier," "caballero" and "cavalier," once common aliases of knighthood, simply mean "horseback rider."

FOR ages, the ruling classes were separated from the toiling masses by hoof and wheel. It waited upon the gasoline engine to establish the FEELING of equality, which is quite a DIFFERENT thing from the THEORY of equality.

Now all men are reminded of their peerage by the traffic signal, which recognizes no exceptions.

There are no speed privileges or special rights of way for any citizen.

A BILLIONAIRE can no more block thoroughfare than a BUTCHER BOY. And when his granddaughter defies the rules of the road, passes a light, takes the wrong turn or steps on the gas, traffic law nabs HER just as promptly as a TAXI DRIVER.

All of which will FURTHER tend to convince Oscar that the Declaration of Independence is not an empty gesture and that class discrimination is as un-American in 1929 as it was in 1776.

If Bartholdi had waited until now to design his statue of Liberty, he would not only stick a torch of enlightenment in her hand, but add a gasoline tank to FEED the FLAME.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

JUST a small, country beauty shop, in a little Sierra mining town . . . "Dorothy Glass," written on the window . . . you wouldn't expect to find anything amazing there.

Coming in from the heat of the dusty, mountain roads, its coolness is comforting. At first, after the blinding light, you see little. Neat tables . . . the dim sparkle of bottles, jars, nickled instruments through the fragrant shadows . . . a small woman moving quietly, quickly to greet you. A low voice—

Tired as you are, you notice the oddness of that voice. Such a LIVE low voice, with something so rich and full stirring beneath its gentleness . . . like the hidden bells one hears within the bubbling of a brook. Strange, how quickly a voice can rest one—a voice like that. A moment ago you were hot, cross, weary . . . now, already, you feel rested.

Can you have a facial? You can. You relax in the long chair. For the first time you give attention to the woman moving about you. How quickly she moves, how surely.

You have never seen anyone move so surely. There is not a waste motion. She is very dainty, her clothes beautifully adjusted. And in her fingers, as she touches you, there is the same exquisite adjustment.

You begin to talk, as women do during a facial. She is a pleasant person to talk to. Evidently her mind dwells on charming things. She tells you of a lovely gown she has seen, the clinging softness of its silk. She speaks of a mountain sunset, the stillness of the air . . . the lazy whispering of the wind through the pines . . . the call of a rare bird . . . the feeling of rain, hanging, unfallen, in the air.

Children race by . . . with a sudden spatter of laughter. She tells you about them . . . their quaintness and delicious naughtiness.

She IS a nice person, you say to yourself . . . not just nice outside but nice all through. Already you are wonderfully rested, not only by the deft manipulation of her fingers but by the lovely rhythm of her thoughts. It must be beautiful to be able to live like that, finding such perfect pleasure in small things. Lucky girl! You wonder if she has ever known sorrow—sorrow like yours, which has made you so bitter and weary.

You lift your head to look at her closely for the first time. As you do so you realize that she is not looking at you! Nor is she looking at her fingers! Her face is quite blank, save for that smile which seems to shine through it. Nothing at all is happening in her eyes . . .

"Yes," she says, smiling, sensing the words before they can struggle through your shocked confusion, "I am blind."

Blind . . . lacking even the sense of darkness and light . . . shut out forever from your vivid world—

YET OWNING THAT WORLD AS YOU HAVE NEVER OWNED IT! Feeling its loveliness to the full . . . intimate with secrets which have never touched your coarser senses.

Blind! For nearly all her youth she has lived that way, seeing the world go dark when she was still a child, then battling to keep her spirit from going dark with it. For I haven't a doubt she battled, terribly . . . though she will not speak about that. And now, there in her little shop she makes beauty. Gives rest and bloom to tired bodies and cheer and new vision to dusty spirits.

BLIND? I WONDER! I ONLY WISH I COULD SEE AS WELL AS DOROTHY GLASS OF SONORA!

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS.

A SALESMAN in a clothing store attracted a lot of attention by the way he acted with a sporty-looking customer. The guy ordered a certain necktie, and while the salesman was getting it and wrapping it up he says to the customer, "Will you have a new hat?"

"No, just a tie."

"But your hat is a little frayed, you know. I could do wonders for you with a new one. Make you look better."

"No."

"New shoes? Those you've got on has seen their best days."

"No."

"A couple of handkerchiefs would dress you up a bit. You need 'em."

"No, I tell you, I don't want nothing but a tie!"

"Yes, but how about a little shirt or two? Good for your appearance."

"Stop now, or I'll report you! I want that tie quick, and shut up."

"All right," says the clerk, handing him his change, "but I'd like to fit you out with a new suit. You need one awful bad."

The customer went out cursing and yelling. The clerk explained to his boss, who was just about to fire him. "You see, that's my barber, and I was getting even."

Isn't It So?

Joys

JOYS blossom sometimes like magnolia flowers,
So sweet they drug the senses
with delight,
Their heavy petals mellow in the light,
And lending vague enchantment to the hours.
The great joys, these, confering splendid dowers,
The joy of harbor after storm-
swept ways,
The joy of meeting after barren days,
With life grown sweet again as
April bowers.

But, like the ivy carpeting the earth
Beneath the straight pride of magnolia trees,
Loved, humbler things bring lesser joys than these,
Each tiny joy an emerald leaf of mirth.
A little while magnolia reigns as queen,
But all year long the ivy leaf is green.

Text for Today

Therefore if any man be in Christ, he is a new creature: old things are passed away; and behold, all things are become new.—II Corinthians, xvii:5.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—Young folk, touched by romance, find almost every obstacle in the path of courtship in New York. So compact is the average family apartment that few girls can receive their beaux at home. They are generally forced to meet them at the corner.

Public parks are policed and unsentimental cops often order the young lovers away. So thoughtless is the galloping metropolis toward starry-eyed youngsters that one Bronx apartment house has this warning in its foyer: "No Necking In These Halls."

For poor but fervid romanticists about the only paradises left are the bus tops and darkened movies. Even some of the ferryboats display: "No Spooning." So lacking in sentiment is New York that more hand-holders are rebuked for a public display of affection than there are speakeasies warned for selling poison.

But the repression has flared up in a blaze of independence. Love making, cast into the open, is making a brazen stand. Lumbering buses swaying along in the evening reveal cuddlers in tight embrace and exchanging smacks for all the curiosity minded to see.

In the cinema cathedrals when lights bob on suddenly there is a hurried effort to break from strangle holds. The majority in the house seem more interested—and sensibly so—in whispering sweet nothings than listening to lisping hams on the screen.

In the moderate priced cafes and table d'hotes hands are no longer entwined under the table, but on top, and it is not unusual to see a tete-tete-ing couple lean across for a lingering kiss. Indeed, along such a crowded thoroughfare as Broadway strolling couples frequently stop to embrace.

Another phase of the rebellion is seen at the quitting hour when young men wait outside office and factory buildings for their girls. Instead of a polite lift of the hat or a limpid handshake, the young folk often snap into a quivering clinch and a Gilbert-Garbo kiss.

Middle West farmers who have spent years in back-breaking toil without budging the mortgage may like to hear the top price for a single ear of corn-on-cob in New York restaurants this season was 95 cents.

* * *

And a cafe on Broadway offers a diverting combination of French, Italian, Chinese and Irish dinners. The Irish meal is a puzzler but "ten on the nose" it includes corned beef and——.

A lover of pets suffered so many anguishing hours following the demise of dogs, horses, cats, birds and even a marmoset, he finally decided to concentrate on a parrot, having learned they live to the age of 100. Becoming attached to the bird, he is now multiplying wrinkles wondering what will happen to the pet when he passes on.

* * *

Every time the radio is turned on lately some one is singing "My Sin." Perhaps it is persnickety, but many of us have sins of our own to think about.

* * *

Bootleggers are peddling pernod—the French substitute for absinthe, a favored exhilirant along Parisian boulevards. It brings $25 a bottle in America, and after two of them strong men have been known to buzz right off to the landlord to offer six months rent in advance.

* * *

A young Japanese, six years in America, sold his first short story and says nothing is quite so easy as Occidental literature. Hot pagoda! But don't stub an illustrious toe—Oh, Boothiest of Tarkingtons!

True. Any dunker knows the Broadway doughnut does not hold the coffee it used to.

OH, THESE WOMEN

By Leola Allard

SHE is one of these independent, big strong women, with ideas of her own. The men like her, pal with her, eat dinner with her (and let her pay the check), and other women say "isn't she grand."

But every now and then one of the men who go to lunch with her, and all but slap her on the back, steps out and marries a nice sweet feminine thing all ruffles and pink ribbons and dimples.

And that's what's the matter with this boasted independence. It makes it so easy for the few girls who stick to their feminine foibles and remember how to cry and pout and simper.

It's playing straight into their hands. The business women go out and mix with the men and the others stay at home and let the men come and get them. And the home girls continue to retain all their privileges in spite of the talks by women in current magazines, about how women's minds stagnate cooking steaks and pies. How they must be active in big business and come out of the kitchen.

A successful wife tells me: "The reason we are so happy is that I manage to get lost when we come out of big buildings, and ask where we are, and I let hubby lead me, and think he's a big strong man while I am entirely dependent upon his strength and superior intelligence. And how men EAT THAT UP! He thinks I'd get lost. Fancy! And I used to be a reporter and climb stairs in dark tenements at all hours, alone, and go home at 2 a. m. alone, and I've suddenly gone blah! A poor little afraid thing, leaning on a great big he-man! That's all I do. It's a miracle worker."

You can take it or leave it, but the advice is sound. I have seen the lady work.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

AREN'T you too hasty in passing harsh judgment on persons and their actions?

Without waiting for explanations you form opinions and act accordingly. You may have done much toward ruining the reputation of one who is innocent of the charge you have made against him.

Undoubtedly, if you would stop to think, you might bring to mind many times when your own actions might have been misjudged.

Perhaps you consider your position secure and that none could think of accusing you of evil intent.

You place more confidence in human nature than is warranted, if you hold such an opinion. It is surprising how little it takes to cause a sentiment of serious suspicion against anyone.

If you are too quick in forming an opinion of others you are not giving people a square deal.

You are asking more than you are willing to extend to others.

"The Chimes Tower"

One of the interesting and unique features of the new Allegheny County Memorial Park, now under construction, is the Tower of Chimes, a great stone tower located on a commanding eminence in the central portion of the Park. It will house a full set of cathedral chimes for funeral and concert use. The hours of the day will also peal across the countryside in the Westminster code.
